President Promises 'Decisive Action to See Coal Is Mined'

Mine Seizure Likely Move If Workers Go on Strike

Deadline Near

By Ben W. Gilbert

President Roosevelt promised last night "to take decisive action to see that coal is mined" in the event the United Mine Workers policy committee rejects the War Labor Board's Illinois decision at a scheduled Monday morning meeting.

The President's statement was contained in a letter to War Labor Board Chairman William H. Davis made public by the White House at a time when more than 142,000 coal miners were reported idle.

Seizure of the mines, immediately invoking the criminal penalties of the Connally-Smith Antistrike Act, was regarded as the most likely "decisive" action the President would take, although a Selective Service order to induct striking miners was also in the picture.

"Watching Situation"

Spokesmen for the Appalachian coal operators estimated that 90,000 soft coal operators were idle yesterday. The Associated Press reported that an additional 52,700 hard coal miners stayed away from work yesterday to celebrate John Mitchell Day, in honor of a founder of the UMW and leader of historic anthracite strikes in 1900 and 1902.

President Roosevelt said he would take no action until after the policy committee meeting, but was "watching the situation carefully."

The seriousness of the coal shortage was emphasized by the President and by Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes, who in a separate action froze at the mines all hard and soft coal in domestic sizes to use as an emergency pool to provide home heating coal needed to relieve distress situations.

In a remark believed directed at the threatened fourth general coal strike starting with the expiration of the current coal "truce" tomorrow midnight, the President said, "We can no more tolerate the letting down of coal production than we can tolerate letting down of the shipping of supplies to our fighting men."

The effect of the President's letter was to put the miners squarely on the spot—to decide whether to

$65,000 'Kitty' for Tax Lobby Admitted at Brewster Hearing

Representative Grant Urges Investigation After Soucek Testifies

By Mary Spargo

Justice Department action may follow congressional disclosure that four airplane companies raised a $65,000 "kitty" to obtain an amendment to the Revenue Act of 1940 to reduce their taxes, The Post learned last night.

Demands for such action were voiced yesterday by Representative Grant (Republican) of Indiana, after Zeus Soucek, vice president of Brewester Aeronautical Corp., former Navy flier, told the House Naval Affairs Committee that the fund was hastily raised to obtain legislation the companies wanted.

Grant said that he was going to ask his colleagues on the subcommittee investigating Brewster to join him in the request, which, he said, he was sure all responsible Government officials would favor. Grant also indicated that several prominent figures connected with the deal might be invited to appear before the committee.

Soucek admitted frankly that the fund was a last-minute move to obtain an amendment to the excess profits tax so that advance payments on contracts could be considered part of capital, thus avoiding the new excess profits scheduled under the 1940 bill, already passed through the House.

He said the whole fund was paid to William D. Jamieson, Washington representative of a New York law firm and former Democratic Congressman from Iowa. He said Consolidated-Vultee and Curtiss-Wright joined with Brewster on a pro-rata basis to share the cost.

The tax amendment was passed by Congress October 1, 1940, after it was introduced by former Senator Herring (Democrat) of Iowa on September 18. Soucek told the committee he flew to Washington just three or four days before the amendment was introduced.

Herring, now associated with OPA, said he offered the amendment at the request of a friend. He declared the amendment was "only for clarification," was drafted by the Treasury and had been ap-

Out of the Sky

Allied Headquarters, Southwest Pacific (Saturday), Oct. 30 (AP).—American paratroops, spearheading a drive to clear the Japanese from all the Solomons, landed Thursday morning at the village of Voza on southwestern Choiseul Island and the Japanese there fled north without offering a fight.

This second invasion move in as many days increased the threat to Bougainville, the last big enemy island barring the way to Japan's key southwest Pacific fortress of Rabaul, New Britain.

Bougainville's southern airfields already had been bombed out and unable to figure in the opposition, and headquarters, in announcing the Choiseul strike today, reported a heavy attack by lightning-screened Mitchells on the Buka Airdrome north of Bougainville during which 200 Japanese working on the runway were killed, seven grounded planes damaged. The bombers also sank an auxiliary ship.

Second in Two Days

The Choiseul invasion followed by a day American and New Zealand amphibious landings in the little Treasury Islands, 30 miles south of Bougainville. There, on the larger cone-shaped island of Mono, the attackers, supported by Ventura bombers, drove the Japanese toward its northeastern end.

Bougainville is approximately 100 miles northwest of the paratroop landing scene on Choiseul, but it is less than 50 miles from that island's northern tip.

A spokesman at South Pacific headquarters of Admiral William F. Halsey, who is in command of the Solomons forces, said there are only a few hundred Japanese on Mono. Allied forces are taking steps to prevent their evacuation.

Patrols Moving Up

Elaborating on MacArthur's reports, he said the Japanese had retreated to Malsi village at Lua point, about 4 miles from the Allied landing point and across the elevated portion of heavily wooded Mono. Allied patrols now are moving up the beach along an 8-mile route.

Red Army Pursues Foe 50 Miles From Crimea

London (Saturday), Oct. 30 (AP).—Red army troops of the Nogaisk steppe converged on the lower Dneiper River stronghold of Nikopol after shattering a German defense line 25 miles to the southeast yesterday and also pounded a demoralized enemy back to the approaches of the imperiled Crimea, Moscow announced today.

Paced by Cossack cavalrymen who slashed the enemy far in the rear of every improvised German rearguard stand, the Russians swept through 80 more villages in smashing 15-mile gains which put them within 30 miles of the Sivash salt marshes bordering the northeastern gateway to the Crimea, and within 50 miles of the Perekop bottleneck at the northwestern corner of the peninsula.

Inside the Dnieper Bend another Red army under Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky, striking 30 miles southwest of Dnepropetrovsk, gained 6 miles to capture Alexandrovka, only 42 miles north of Nikopol, said a communique recorded by the Soviet radio monitor here.

This two-way threat to Nikopol by the Steppe army under Gen. Feodor Tolbukhin and the units under General Malinovsky was expanded into a three-way strike by other Russians making a new crossing of the Dnieper just below Zaporozhe, a Berlin broadcast said.

Zaporozhe is 40 miles northeast of Nikopol, and the Russians were silent about this new outpouring of men and materials. Moscow's silence is usual until her offensives are well under way.

The communique's midnight supplement said the Russians under General Tolbukhin cracked a German line of trenches, minefields and barbed wire erected in the Balki - Malaya - Byelozerka sector, and went on to take Bolshoi-Byeloozerka, within 25 miles of the river crossing leading to the west bank manganese center of Nikopol.

Malaya - Balgoveshchenka, 14 miles above Bolshoi-Byelozerka, also was overrun, putting the Russians only 5 miles from the lower bend of the Dnieper where it flows westward to Nikopol.

The fleeing Germans were abandoning "personal arms," in their

Tripartite Agreement's Terms to Be Made Public

All Now Required Is the Signatures, President Reveals; Lauds Parley's Spirit

By Edward T. Folliard

President Roosevelt, scooping the world, announced yesterday that the three-power conference in Moscow had reached a general agreement and that all that remained was the signing of the documents. He said that the conference had been a tremendous success.

As soon as the documents are signed, Mr. Roosevelt said at his news conference, they will be made public in Moscow. He declined to talk about them except to say that they bore on the objective of the three-power conference, which is unanimity among the United States, Great Britain, and Soviet Russia during the war and the transition period afterward.

The ultimate objective, Mr. Roosevelt went on to say, is an arrangement to keep the peace and to avoid aggression.

Points of Agreement

The expectation here has been that Secretary of State Hull, Foreign Secretary Eden and Foreign Commissar Molotov would strive for an understanding on the following points:

Germany—An agreement on the treatment of Germany after her defeat.

Military—A dovetailing of the strategic plans of America and Britain on the one hand and Soviet Russia on the other. There has been no "second front" clamor out of Moscow since Secretary Hull and Secretary Eden arrived there 10 days ago. In this connection, much interest was aroused here by Dr. Goebbels' statement that Russia was "the real danger of this war," but that as far as the home front was concerned Allied bombings "represent the lion's share of our troubles."

Postwar—a broad agreement on an international organization to prevent wars in the future.

The Russian newspapers announced in advance there would be no action on Russia's postwar boundaries. It was believed, however, that something might be done about a resumption of diplomatic relations between Russia and the Polish government-in-exile. Also it was expected that an agreement would be sought on an Allied invasion of the Balkans. Russia, feeling that the Balkans come within her sphere of influence, has objected to such an invasion in the past.

The chief significance of what has happened in Moscow lies in the fact that the Big Three of the United Nations have met in harmony and agreed on some broad principles, thus shattering whatever hopes Hitler may have had of driving a wedge between them.

President Exultant

This appeared to be the thought uppermost in President Roosevelt's mind yesterday as he gave out the news. Beaming and exultant, he said that the Moscow conference had been a tremendous success, not only from the standpoint of arriving at certain agreements but from the standpoint of the spirit that prevailed.

Many cynics, he said, thought that the delegates would agree to disagree, and that they would get nowhere. But the spirit of the whole Moscow conference had been amazingly good. The President thought Secretary Hull should have a good deal of the credit for that, along with the Russians and the British. Relations between them, he continued, had been 100 per cent good, and, in the language of the Navy, they had organized a happy ship.

"Do you think this brings the meeting between you, Churchill, and Stalin any closer?" a reporter asked.

Point Values For Jam, Jelly Set by OPA

Other Processed Foods Cut, Boosted In November Chart

Effective Tomorrow

By the Associated Press

Jams, jellies and fruit spreads, which will be rationed beginning tomorrow, were assigned values of four and six points a pound jar by the Office of Price Administration yesterday.

Accompanying this announcement in the agency's November chart of point values for processed foods were increases of from two to five points in the ration cost of berries, apples, fruit cocktail, pears and pineapple in cans or bottles. Boosts were ordered also for pineapple juice and three tomato products, but the values on beets, pumpkin or squash and grapefruit juice were reduced.

In other processed food changes, all effective tomorrow, pickled, spiced and brandied fruits were eliminated from rationing and the frozen foods category was revised.

6 Points for Jams

A value of six points a pound jar was assigned to jams, preserves and noncitrus marmalades, while the ration cost of jellies and fruit butters was fixed at four points a pound.

Changes increase the point value of common No. 2 cans of apples and berries of all varieties from 10 to 15 points. No. 1 tall cans of fruit cocktail get a 20-point value instead of 18, while the boost on a No. 2½ can of pears is from 21 to 24 points. Pineapple in No. 2½ cans goes from 34 to 36 points.

Beets go down to 5 points from 8, for a No. 2 can. A No. 2½ can of pumpkin or squash will cost 15

Attain Goal, 'Freckles' Asks In Fund Appeal

"Take the slogan of the Navy Sea Bees, 'Can Do' and make it 'Will Do,'" Fireman First Class George Wendelkin, wounded veteran of Guadalcanal, told Community War Fund workers at the U. S. Chamber of Commerce Building yesterday.

"You've got to reach your goal for the boys fighting out there," said the 26-year-old Construction Battalion seaman, who is known to movie goers as Freckles of the old Our Gang Comedies. "They're depending upon you." He described what soldiers are up against, and said the boys out there are counting on Washington residents to make up the 30 per cent gap in their $4,800,000 war fund goal.

"Guadalcanal may look like a tropical paradise suitable for Dorothy Lamour from the air, but it's far from that in reality. It's jungle filled with disease, with Japs sniping at you from every side. There's plenty of malaria, black fever, and the islands are swarming with rats. We ate fish heads and rice for two weeks.

Jungle Trials

"I've been thinking of all these things since I've been back. I wish we didn't have to build so many cemeteries on Guadalcanal. I also wish you could realize just what help from you people at home means to us over there.

"We worked from sunup to sundown in jungles filled with Jap snipers in heat so intense that no one had been able to work there before. At times we worked day and night, we worked until we were wounded or fainted from exhaustion. We were shelled, bombed, strafed, sniped at, but we built Henderson Field, and we built a bridge directly in the face of enemy fire."

Wounded in both legs by a Jap bomb dropped on Henderson Field, Wendelkin, lay unconscious for 14 hours before he was found and taken to a dressing station. When the bombing raid was continued he was placed in a fox hole to remain there until he was evacuated 15

Vinson Denies Rise in Price Of Crude Oil

Would Have Cost Consumer 500 Millions Yearly, Says Director

By Walter Wood

Acting under the President's hold-the-line order, Economic Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson last night denied the proposed 35-cent per barrel increase in the price of crude oil, which, he said, would have cost consumers of petroleum products at least 500 million dollars annually.

Vinson's action ends a fight for a price increase, originally recommended in April by Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes, Petroleum Administrator for War, and twice turned down by the Price Administrator.

In finally rejecting the proposed general increase, Vinson directed Ickes to prepare a program giving more financial incentive for drilling wildcat wells and for development of new oil fields.

Suggests Alternatives

"To keep faith with the unnumbered millions of wage earners, producers and merchants whose wages and prices have been stabilized, no price increase can be granted in the price of crude oil in the light of other practical measures available to insure an adequate supply of petroleum," Vinson said.

Present producer prices are about $1.18 a barrel.

By Noland Norgaard

Algiers, Oct. 29 (AP).—American and British troops, struggling up 1600-foot slopes with fixed bayonets against massed German artillery, reached a position today to apply a powerful cut-off play against the mighty fortress into which the enemy has converted Massico Ridge on the southwestern end of the Italian Front.

Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's American infantry, advancing through a driving rain, smashed 3 miles beyond Sparanise, and official reports from the front said they were threatening the road junction of Teano, from which a highway passes northward of lofty Massico Ridge toward Rome, 94 miles away.

Five miles south of Teano other Fifth Army units already had seized Francolise, on a main highway that also stabs through the mountains just north of the Massico fortress. These two forces, by converging and pushing through the available pass, would isolate German troops on Massico, anchor of the entire Rommel defense line.

U. S. Ships Pour in Shells

While Allied ground forces moved into position before the strongest line the Nazis have yet established in Italy, the United States Navy applied pressure on the seaward side of the ridge. An American cruiser and destroyers stood off in the darkness Wednesday night and poured shells into the enemy's line of communications along the ancient Appian Way in the Minturno area, some 12 miles north of the front.

The Fifth Army's coastal flank still was held up by elaborate

5-Day Postwar Debate Ends Without Vote

Senate Overwhelmingly For His Resolution, Declares Connally

By Robert C. Albright

A five-point summary of the Atlantic Charter yesterday was urged as an amendment to the Senate's compromise foreign policy declaration as the Senate concluded the first week of postwar debate without a single vote.

Provisions of the charter were included in a definition of "peace" submitted by Senator John A. Danaher (Republican) of Connecticut. "Peace" was one of 20 terms in the 65-word compromise which Danaher insisted be explicitly defined, so neither the President nor the State Department can have any doubt about what the Senate means.

Vote Slated Monday

A record vote on the Danaher amendment is slated when the Senate returns to debate Monday, but Acting Senate Leader Tom Connally claimed the votes to sidetrack not only the Danaher definitions but also the more threatening Ball-Burton-Hatch-Hill strengthening changes providing specifically for machinery to settle disputes peacefully, and use of military force if needed to prevent aggression.

Although the bipartisan Ball-Burton-Hatch-Hill amendment was gathering support slowly, Connally predicted it will not muster more than 20 votes on the showdown late next week and said no concessions will be made to the "B-2 H-2" group. Said Connally: "The Senate is overwhelmingly for the resolution and we are not going to make a change."

Roosevelt "In Favor"

Developments on the fifth day of Senate debate:

1. President Roosevelt told his press conference he was very much in favor of the Senate adopting a peace policy resolution, but did not specify the kind of a resolution he liked. He said he thought

Scotch Tape and Screen

Marigny Defense Hits Hard At Fingerprint Authenticity

Nassau, Oct. 29 (AP).—Grim-faced and uncompromising, Defense Attorney Godfrey S. Higgs demanded today that an American detective point to the exact spot on a figured bedscreen from which he lifted a fingerprint offered by the crown as evidence that Alfred de Marigny killed Sir Harry Oakes.

De Marigny's murder trial was adjourned before Higgs reached the crux of a day-long cross-examination, but obviously he was attempting to show that the print could not have been lifted from the screen, which stood in the bedroom of Sir Harry the night the aged millionaire was slugged and left to die in a burning bed.

The dapper defendant, Oakes' son-in-law, smiled happily as Higgs sent Capt. James O. Barker to the screen where it stood in the Bahamas Supreme Court chamber and insisted that he indicate the place from which he lifted the print with adhesive rubber.

His face flushed from the relentless questioning, Barker motioned to several places from which he said he might have raised the print without showing also the grooves and lines of the screen decorations.

"Take your time, Mr. Barker, don't let them rush you," cautioned Chief Justice Sir Oscar Bedford Daly, who abruptly adjourned court when he indicated that Higgs was pressing the witness too closely.

Higgs laid the groundwork for his questioning by asking whether indentations and irregularities in the surface wouldn't show on the adhesive rubber or Scotch tape used to lift a fingerprint. Barker said they could be shown, and Higgs then wanted to know why the impression on exhibit did not show surface markings.

"Because it was lifted from a part of the surface where no irregularities would show," Barker replied.

At the screen, Barker pointed to one spot and remarked: "The exhibit could have come from this area."

"We want full information," replied Higgs, motioning for Barker to continue.

The chief justice joined the two men at the screen as they measured to determine which spots on the screen the 1-by-3-inch piece of rubber could have been used without lifting an impression of a decoration as well as a fingerprint.

In longhand, the jurist recorded the findings as Higgs and Barker measured. Their finding was: "The piece of lifting rubber could not have been imposed on the upper portion of panel five unless a portion extended on the panel to the left without lifting a part of the background."

Barker previously had testified that he could not recall the spot where he took the print he said was an impression of De Marginy's right little finger.

The fingerprint—exhibit J—is the crown's most important evidence to connect the accused man

Now Close to Take-offs

Bolling Field Won't Suggest Patterson School Be Moved

No recommendation will be made to move the Patterson Elementary School to another site because of its proximity to Bolling Field plane take-offs, a spokesman at the field said yesterday.

The statement followed one by District Engineer Commissioner C. W. Kutz, Wednesday, that probably no action would be taken on conditions complained of at the school by parents of pupils, until it was learned whether the school would remain where it is or be ordered moved to a location more distant from Bolling Field. A request to the War Department to study the safety of the present school site was made several months ago by a member of the District Board of Education.

The situation complained of by parents and members of the Washington Highland Citizens Committee (a group independent of the Citizens Association in that community) concerned flooding of the school playground after recent heavy rains, and inadequate outdoor play space for the pupils.

They also claimed that although money for the purpose had been appropriated by Congress under the Lanham Act, the playground had been neither graded nor paved. Commissioner Kutz explained this week that funds for ground improvements had not been included in the appropriation.

Meanwhile the citizens committee, represented by the Rev. George J. Cannon, pastor of the Washington Highlands Baptist Church, indicated it would seek a final interview with the Commissioner on Monday to discover how "serious overcrowding" and the "deplorable" playground condition at the school could be remedied.

"If we fail, we will put the matter before the District committees in Congress," Mr. Cannon said.

Old Contracts Canceled

New Navy Shipbuilding Plan Stresses Types for Offensive

By John G. Norris

The Navy last night announced a sweeping revision of its huge ship building program under which contracts or plans for 502 ships of an essentially defensive type have been canceled and hundreds of new craft for offensive war will be constructed instead.

Secretary Knox said that orders for 427 destroyer escorts, patrol craft and submarine chasers placed earlier have been rescinded. The building ways thus released, he stated, will be used to construct large numbers of ships required for amphibious operations throughout the world.

In addition, plans for building 75 minor craft of various types scheduled for construction under the Navy's program but not ordered—have been scrapped.

Though no details of the new program were given, it is expected that it will include hundreds f landing craft of all types—large tank and infantry landing ships and smaller craft for the same work.

"From time to time we have to revise our estimated needs in the light of our war experiences," Knox said in explanation of the change. "We are cutting our program for antisubmarine craft and increasing the number of vessels used in amphibious operations.

"The revision results from the improvement in the submarine situation in the Atlantic and the increasing need for vessels employed in amphibious attacks," he declared.

At the same time the Navy Secretary announced the cancellation of contracts previously placed with West Coast shipyards for building three light cruisers, seven destroyers, and nine fleet tugs. The craft will be constructed, instead, in East Coast yards to free Pacific ways for

Gen. Tito Reported Arming Italians

Nazis 'Beef' About Allied Prison Camps

By Edwin Shanke

Stockholm, Oct. 29 (AP).—The Berlin newspaper Lokalanzeiger, received here today, said repatriated Nazi soldiers had complained bitterly about prison camps in Africa "under American guard and controlled mainly by Jews."

The paper said in reporting interviews with Nazi soldiers returning home in the war's first military exchange between the Allies and Germany:

"The torments, worries and troubles which the prisoners were subjected to in the unbearable climate of Africa and under treatment which was not always unobjectionable, did not amount to anything in relation to the joy of standing again under the protection of German weapons."

Another of the Nazi papers, the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung of Berlin, said in a dispatch from Goeteborg, Sweden, where a part of the exchange took place, that internment for most of the Germans involved meant "great suffering and physical strain. Communication with the homeland was limited and sparse and the exchange of letters and packages via the Red Cross often was delayed for months. Available news came only from enemy sources."

This paper said all Allied "attempts to influence" German prisoners failed because the Germans "retained confidence in victory and trusted the ability of the German armed forces and homeland."

OWI Given Credit inItalian Fleet Fiasco

Morgantown, W. Va., Oct. 29 (AP). The part Allied propaganda played in bringing about the surrender of the Italian fleet was described tonight by Ferdinand Kuhn, deputy director of the overseas branch of the Office of War Information.

Speaking at the West Virginia Journalism Conference, the former New York Times correspondent credited an OWI radio engineer, whom he did not identify, with solving the problem of relaying appeals to the Italian navy to surrender their ships, rather than to scuttle them or turn them over to the Nazis.

"This engineer managed with great ingenuity," the deputy director said, "to shift the radio messages to the international distress frequency . . . and this was repeated at 15-minute intervals for a 24-hour period.

"Admiral Cunningham was standing on the bridge of his flagship at Malta when the first of the long line of Italian ships came into view. He spotted them through his glasses, turned to his aide and said, 'Tell General McClure (of the psychological warfare branch of the army, of which OWI is a part) that he has accomplished more with propaganda in one day, than I have been able to do in three years with all the ships of the Navy.'

'Cut-Off' Play Brewing in Italy

German defenses along the Regia Canal, only 4 miles north of the Volturno. British troops which landed from the sea had, for the most part, been unable to cross this barrier.

At the other extrer of the front that bisects the ninsula, Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery sent his British and Canadians forward on the mountainous inland sectors toward the upper reaches of the Trigno River, while near its mouth British troops clung tenaciously to the small bridgehead they gained over the stream nearly a week ago.

Daniel De Luce, Associated Press correspondent at that front, said Montgomery's troops, facing "mud and mountains in seemingly inexhaustible quantities," were encountering their toughest going since they entered Italy September 3. "Not one offensive, but several, will be necessary before the Eighth Army can hope to see the seven hills of the Eternal City," De Luce wrote. "Tanks are an almost useless luxury in this sector."

Today's advices said Montgomery's veterans were clashing bitterly with the enemy near the town of San Salvo, two miles north of the Trigno River and three miles inland from the Adriatic.

Fifteen miles inland Eighth Army units occupied Montefalcone after a 5-mile advance from Castelmauro, and still farther inland Canadian regiments fought their way into Molise, a town perched on a 2500-foot mountain 18 miles east of the important enemy communications center of Isernia.

Both Allied fighters and bombers braved the unsettled weather across the front to attack enemy gun and troop positions, road junctions, trains, bridges and airdromes. Two Nazi planes were shot down, while, as frequently occurs in recent weeks, the Allies did not lose a single craft.

24-Hour Battle Against Germans In North Reported

By William Smith White

London, Oct. 29 (AP).—An Italian army of 30,000 trained fighters has been established in northern Italy and, with the aid of arms supplied through Yugoslav Partisans, already has engaged German troops, a Swiss dispatch reported tonight.

This perhaps significant widening of the Germans' long northern Adriatic defensive front was reported soon after Yugoslav armies announced they had cut Yugoslavia's main railway both above and below the capital of Belgrade.

A dispatch dated at the Italian frontier printed in the Basel, Switzerland, newspaper Nachrichten said that the trained Italian army had been formed in Venezia Province, comprising the northeastern part of Italy and bordering on Yugoslavia and Austria.

24-Hour Battle Reported

The new army already has fought a 24-hour battle with German troops at Verona, this report said, resulting in many being killed and wounded on both sides. The battle was said to have ended when the Germans rushed in reinforcements from Turin, Milan and Venice, the Italians withdrawing into the mountains.

The Basel Nachrichten said that German communications throughout this region are being cut constantly, and the Nazi transport intercepted.

Each of the two leading factions fighting in Yugoslavia announced attacks on the country's main rail artery today.

The Yugoslav information office in Cairo announced that the forces of Gen. Draja Mihailovic had cut the section leading from Belgrade to Salonika—the Germans' principal highway to Greece and the Aegean—near Leskovac. This town is about 20 miles south of the junction of Nis, bombed several times by Allied airmen.

Line Declared Disabled

The line was disabled for a considerable period, the Mihailovic forces said, and the Germans and Bulgarians in South Serbia and Greece were cut off. Elsewhere rail connections between Serbia and Bosnia and the Adriatic coast were reported to have been cut at several places recently.

The Partisan supporters of Gen. Josip Broz (Tito) announced in their daily broadcast communique that their troops had cut the big Yugoslav railway at 130 places along a 40-mile stretch between Belgrade and Zagreb. They told also of the capture by Yugoslav forces of the mountain stronghold of Rogatica, 30 miles east of Sarajevo.

Germany was reported today to have dispatched altogether as many as 30 divisions to the Balkans to hold that territory, certainly to participate in the campaign against the Yugoslav armies and probably to be prepared for any allied invasion.

Bulgaria Landing Suggested

The Finnish radio, a German-associated enterprise although not always a slavish mouthpiece for Hitler, said that "Berlin in apprehensive of a Soviet landing in Bulgaria synchronized with Allied landings in other Balkan countries."

There was speculation here that the Balkans might actually be the arena of the next big Allied lunge. This was based on these factors:

1. The Italian invasion has now been run down by a combination of weather, terrain and bad luck into a relatively static affair which, lacking intervention elsewhere, certainly will require a long and nasty period before any real decision.

2. The Russian offensive in the East has beyond doubt outrun the anticipations of the western Allies and has brought into sharp focus opportunities that could be presented in a hard and sharp Allied flanking thrust up from south Europe.

Anti-Fascist Editors Finally Win Freedom

By Wes Gallagher

Bari, Italy, Oct. 29 (AP).—Allied authorities on the armistice commission, who lack authority to enforce their requests to Prime Minister Pietro Badoglio and King Vittorio Emanuele, have won a 10-day battle to obtain the release of editors of anti-Fascist newspapers—men arrested under laws laid down by former Premier Mussolini.

Because this area is under the direct control of the Italian government as contrasted with the battle area which in under Allied military government (AMG), Allied authorities here can only request the government to release jailed men or remove certain officials.

"The trouble is that sometimes when we get one Fascist official removed, a worse one is appointed in his place," one American on the mission explained.

Badoglio and the King have said that fascism is ended but they apparently have taken no steps to repeal the Fascist laws by which Mussolini kept himself in power. Under these laws anyone can be arrested without a formal charge.

When Italy surrendered and Badoglio called an end to fascism, the underground movements of Bari, such as Communists, Liberals, and Action Parties, came to the surface and tried to hold meetings. They were stopped by police.

They then put out a newspaper, and the editors were immediately arrested by the prefecture at Bari. It took the Allies 10 days to obtain their release and another day of bitter wrangling to obtain the right for these political groups, now under one head as "the action committee," to publish a newspaper and hold meetings.

(Badoglio's Bari radio broadcast today that freedom of the press had been restored to the liberated areas of Italy by the Badoglio government as "one of the essential liberties of civilized people." The broadcast said, "All political parties of the nation are entitled to publish their papers freely and express their political ideas freely.")

Count Carlo Sforza, former Italian foreign minister who has returned to Italy after many years exile in the United States, issued a statement published in the official government newspaper La Gazzetta Del Mezzogiorno calling for the punishment of Fascists still in office. It was considered significant that Sforza, after a tour of the country, found it necessary to issue a public statement on fascism which was in fact a demand that Badoglio and the King clean house.

Army Cuts Goal 500,000

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 29 (AP).—Maj. Gen. T. A. Terry, commanding general of the Second Service Command, said yesterday the U. S. Army is examining "every possible device to save manpower" and has reduced its demand for military manpower by "more than one-half million" since its original goal was set.

curred near the Japanese barge staging area. It was to Choiseul that many remnants of the Japanese troops driven out of the central Solomons were evacuated, with Bougainville their ultimate designation.

Choiseul is separated by Bougainville Strait from Bougainville and its investment would control waters by which both southern Bougainville and the nearby Shortland Islands are supplied.

The Choiseul landing marked the second such employment of paratroops in the current Pacific offensive. Paratroopers landed September 5 northwest of Lae, New Guinea, prior to pincers envelopment of that air base.

There have been no indications of any airfield on Choiseul, but it has shore accommodations for small shipping.

Bombers of all categories, escorted by fighters, struck anew at Kahili, left all of its runways unserviceable and knocked out anti-aircraft positions.

"As war operations in the Pacific mount in intensity," Knox explained, "the amount of repair work required by the fleet is bound to increase."

The shift of the construction of the vessels will not decrease the amount of work done on the West Coast, he emphasized, but merely substitute repair work for new ships.

Actual construction had not started on any of the 19 ships being shifted from West to East Coast yards, or on any of the 427 ships the contracts for which are being canceled, Knox said.

Deleted Types Listed

The antisubmarine ships which the Navy deleted from its construction program in favor of additional landing craft are: 305 destroyer escorts (1400-ton vessels); 60 patrol craft escorts (180-foot vessels); 50 steel patrol craft (173 footers); 12 wooden submarine chasers (110-footers).

The three light cruisers being shifted from the West to the East Coasts were to have been built by the Bethlehem Union plant at San Francisco. They will be constructed at the Federal Shipbuilding Co. plant at New York instead. The seven destroyers—originally scheduled for building at the Bethlehem San Francisco yard—will be transferred to other Bethlehem ways at Fore River, Mass., and Staten Island, N. Y. The nine fleet tugs were to have been built at the United Engineering Co. of Alameda, Calif. Instead, they will be constructed by the Charleston Shipbuilding Co. of Charleston, S. C.

U. S. Subs Add 10 Jap Ships To Rising Toll

American submarines have sunk 10 more Japanese ships and damaged 4 others in new raids on enemy shipping in the Pacific, the Navy announced late yesterday.

These latest successful undersea operations brought to 474 the number of Nipponese vessels distroyed or crippled by United States subs since Pearl Harbor.

Of the total, 329 vessels have been sunk, while 36 are listed as "probably sunk" and 109 as damaged.

All vessels listed in yesterday's communique were merchantmen. Announced as sunk were: a large troop transport, a large tanker, five medium-sized freighters and two small freighters.

The enemy craft damaged were a large freighter, two medium-sized freighters and a small freighter.

No details of the actions were given. Secretary Knox, asked for comment in the matter, said that the report illustrated the fact that "our submarine campaign against Japanse shipping is proceeding at full speed with steadily increasing forces."

Meanwhile, Berlin broadcast a DNB dispatch from Tokyo yesterday saying that the Japanese merchant ships Kamu Maru and Fuji Maru had been torpedoed in the East China sea, with one sinking and the other being badly damaged.

The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said 10 members of the crew were killed and that 20 are missing. The report did not designate which ship sank.

Jap Offensive Smashed, Say Chinese

Chungking, Oct. 29 (AP).—The Chinese announced today the smashing of the Japanese October offensive within the triangle of Shanghai, Nanking and Hangchow in eastern China with the recapture of Siaofeng. More than 1200 Japanese were killed.

At the same time American air forces supporting a Chinese counteroffensive against 30,000 Japanese who tried to forestall a Burma Road drive in far western Yunnan Province, plastered Lungling, Japan's Burma Road base, and shot down at least 8 Zeros out of 16 which attacked.

Foe Quitting Kwangteh

A spokesman said the Japanese were quitting Kwangteh, 85 miles southeast of Nanking, and villages near Hsuanchen, the two remaining advanced bases which the Japanese took over at the beginning of their October 1 offensive.

On the Yunnan front, the spokesman said, the Japanese offensive has passed its peak and settled down to artillery duels. Prisoners disclosed the invaders are using some Burmese troops in the area.

A bomber sweep off Hainan Island last Tuesday resulted in the sinking of six small transports, tankers and freighters.

Another Freighter Sunk

(An American communique from New Delhi said another 3500-ton freighter was sunk at Rangoon in Burma Tuesday. In a raid on Toungoo, Japanece headquarters was hit.

Moscow Parley Success—Roosevelt

saying he didn't know anything more about that than he did two weeks ago.

"You seem confident of Russia's willingness to cooperate in maintaining the peace," a reporter remarked.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had always been confident of her desire to cooperate. This, he added, had merely confirmed his conviction.

Asked about the Senate debate on a foreign policy resolution, the President said he thought this policy should be kept in general terms. The American delegates to an international conference, he said, couldn't be didactic and say that a thing had to be done just this way and they wouldn't have it any other way. They would have to have the other fellow's point of view.

The President said he was very much in favor of a resolution that would point out in general terms that we want to avoid future wars and that this country will cooperate with other nations toward that end. Such a resolution, he said, would be a very fine thing.

Asked whether the Connally resolution met those specifications, the President smiled and said that this was the whole trouble How could he answer that? He said he couldn't and that the reporters couldn't.

In Moscow, an American spokesman called the attention of reporters to a speech by Secretary Hull on September 11. In this, he praised Russia's fight and said "it is our desire and settled policy that collaboration and cooperation between our two countries shall steadily increase during and following the war." He also praised Chinese perserverance and spoke of American "efforts to achieve a fair and peaceful settlement in the Far East."

Secretary Hull was reported to be in fine health. He was being treated for nose bleed, but this was said not to be serious.

London Papers Jubilant

London (Saturday), Oct. 30 (AP). President Roosevelt's announcement that the Moscow tripartite conference has been a great success was viewed by London newspapers today as indicating that a first big step has been taken by Great Britain, the United States and Soviet Russia toward winning the peace.

First editions said that now any anxiety over the results of the tripartite conference have been lifted.

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express asserted, "In one sentence he (Roosevelt) can give to all the good peoples of the world sure warranty for the future."

The newspaper interpreted the President's reference to the success of the conference as meaning that "considerable agreement must have already been reached on the treatment of a beaten Germany, on problems of the frontier states, on the collaboration of Europe and on the sharing of responsibility for keeping the peace."

Nazis Decree New Blood Bath For Czechs as Unrest Rises

London, Oct. 29 (AP).—A new blood bath for Czechoslovakia recalling the horror of Lidice has been ordered by the ruthless Nazi rulers, the Czechoslovak information bureau said today, and other conquered countries also reported a tightening of the Germans' grip.

Death sentences were meted out to 519 Czech patriots at Olomoue (Olmuetz) in Moravia for what the drumhead Nazi courts charged were "acts of terror and sabotage," and apparently indicated a general uprising in the important rail center which once was recognized as the Moravian capital and had a population of 65,000.

It was the largest mass death sentence yet imposed at one place in Czechoslovakia, where 50,000 patriots have been executed according to Czech records in London. The infamous trial of Lidice resulted in the execution of 483 adult males following the slaying of the Nazi "Hangman" Reinhardt Heydrich.

The Czech bureau said its information came from a dispatch of the Nazi-controlled Scandinavian telegraph bureau.

From other sources came additional reports that the Germans have abandoned efforts to sell the "new order" to the conquered peoples of Europe as unrest everywhere increases.

A state of emergency again has been imposed on once-placid Copenhagen, the Danish capital where Nazi stormtroopers no longer dare walk the streets alone at night.

Spreading uprisings in France have caused Berlin to admit openly that a shake-up in the Laval government is imminent.

A new problem also has arisen in the Baltic states, where a food shortage is developing. Refugees have been crowding into Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania to escape the battle zone as Russian troops advance ever closer.

Execution of a Prussian mayor, August Barsch, of Gussow, for listening to BBC in his office and "trying to stir up the people of his town by spreading false news" was announced today by the German radio.

flight toward Nikopol, the supplement disclosed. Many prisoners were taken along with much loot, it was reported.

To the south, the Russians captured Torgayevka in a direct advance on the Perekop gateway to the Crimea, and to the southeast the Red Army forced the Utlyug River which empties into the Sea of Azov just above the Crimea, the supplement said.

A total of 26 towns were captured by the Russians moving down on Nikopol from Dnepropetrovsk inside the Dnieper elbow, and aimed at closing a huge trap.

At besieged Krivoi Rog the Russians beat off heavy German tank and infantry counterattacks, the Russians said.

The Germans reported a huge tank battle raging for the second day at Krivoi Rog as Axis troops fought savagely to hold open an escape route between that city and Nikopol, and also to protect the flight of the German units being pursued across the Nogaisk steppes to the southeast.

Six hundred miles to the north, the Russian communique said the Red Army's latest offensive strike toward Vitebsk tapered off into "engagements of local importance," but several more villages were seized. The Russians were reported only 25 miles northwest of the White Russian citadel on Thursday.

During Thursday's fighting on all fronts the Russians said their forces knocked out 60 German tanks and shot down 64 planes.

OPA Frees Tires To Aid Deliveries

Druggists, Grocers, Laundries Benefit From ODT Request

To keep retail delivery services rolling, the Office of Price Administration yesterday made used passenger and truck tires available Monday to druggists, grocers, laundry operators and some other business establishments.

The action, taken at the request of the Office of Defense Transportation to keep in operation the 340,000 commercial vehicles used in delivering essentials to the American home, may make it "impossible for operators of passenger cars to obtain used tires," the OPA said.

In another action, which reflects the shortage of new passenger and truck tires, the OPA announced November quotas showing that next month there will be available for rationing 30 per cent fewer new truck tifes and 14 per cent fewer new tires for motorists.

Eligible Deliveries Listed

"Strict rationing of gasoline and tires, an increase in the industrial employment of housewives and long working hours have gradually forced the general public to rely more heavily upon retail delivery services," the OPA said.

Three types of operations are eligible for the used tires, the OPA said. They are:

(1) Bakery goods, groceries, meats, fish, poultry, fresh fruits and vegetables and dairy products; (2) laundry and dry cleaning (apparel only); (3) drugs, medicines and medical supplies.

Limit on Size

Operators of vehicles which deliver these commodities will be eligible for used tires of sizes smaller than 7.50-20 to replace tires no longer serviceable, the OPA said.

"The extent to which the issuance of used tires to passenger car owners may have to be curtailed dep nds on future production of synthetic tires," OPA said.

OPA estimated that a minimum of 550,000 used tires, mainly passenger type, will be required during the next 12 months to keep commercial vehicles operating on a restricted basis. At present trucks delivering goods to the ultimate consumer are ineligible for tires unless they are used entirely to deliver ice, fuel or milk, or are common carriers.

Vinson Denies Oil Price Rise

shipping facilities, making Caribbean and Middle Eastern oil more available, and improved transportation, permitting larger use of available supplies, Vinson said other alternatives have become practical since Ickes' original recommendation. One of them, Vinson said, was the use of foreign oil for the United Nations' war effort.

The alternatives Vinson outlined were:

1. Full use of productive capacity in Texas oil fields not now being fully utilized.

2. Increased drilling in proven areas—as distinguished from wildcatting.

3. Use of foreign oil.

Vinson declared that the United States, with only 38 per cent of the estimated crude reserves available to the United Nations, is supplying 75 to 80 per cent of the oil for the Allies' war effort.

"There can be no justification in exhausting this country's oil reserves at the most rapid rate possible if there is any feasible alternative," Vinson said. Measures are under way, he said, to use at least 337,000 barrels of foreign oil daily by the end of next year, while at the same time the limited reserves in the United States will be relieved of a part of the disproportionate burden" of supply.

Although it was stated that supplies are in sight for all essential needs through 1945, Vinson declared that no matter what alternative measures were adopted, there is no prospect whatever that there will be any increase in gasoline for nonessential civilian use

"Wildcatting Principles

In ordering the PAW to give more incentive for wildcatting and development of new fields, Vinson outlined these governing principles:

1. Avoid any increase in the price of living.

2. Avoid any complex scheme for subsidy, subjecting Government agencies and the oil industry to impossible administrative burdens.

3. Avoid any program that rewards without discrimination those who explore and develop any fields and those who do neither.

Vinson further directed Ickes to formulate, if feasible, some program "other than a general price increase" to give additional financial support to marginal wells and for the recovery of secondary petroleum.

Citing the unused Texas oil fields, Vinson pointed out that a study by the Texas State commission regulating oil production there indicated an unused production capacity of more than 300,000 barrels daily over last month's production rate.

Increased drilling, as recommended by Vinson, may be achieved, it was said, through the increased supply of all types of drilling material and equipment.

Five-Day Debate Ends; No Vote

it wuold be a very fine thing for the Senate to say this country would cooperate with others to avoid future wars. Both Connally and leaders of the "B-2 H-2" group claimed his statement was an indorsement of their own quite different declarations.

2. Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat) of Montana, unrepentant Nationalist opposed to any resolution, made the speech Administration leaders have been fearing would disturb the Moscow talks. Wheeler declared Russia will dominate Europe after the war, that "Communism is going to sweep the greater part of it" and that the resolution meant threeway power ties with Europe which would bring another war. Wheeler argued that if the Senate passed the Connally resolution the U. S. will have to back up Russia in holding any European territory it takes; that Great Britain is not going to stand for Russian domination of Europe; that if England goes to war the U. S. will be told it must go to war again.

Vandenberg's Stand

3. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Republican) of Michigan, backed up by Connally, denied Wheeler's argument that the resolution embodied advice which the President could follow without submitting to treaty ratification. Vandenberg contended that "advice" and "consent" were two separate things, and no Senator voting for the compromise resolution was thereby bound to support the treaty.

4. Senator Harlan J. Bushfield (Republican) of South Dakota told the Senate he would support the resolution only if it embodied an amendment requiring that the treaty be submitted to the Senate for a two-thirds ratifying vote.

5. Senator Dennis Chavez (Democrat) of New Mexico declared the Connally resolution is "so simple and clear anyone can understand it . . . I would not change one word of it."

1,200,086 German Raid Loss Reported

London, Oct. 29 (AP).—A total of 1,200,086 German civilians have been killed or reported missing and believed killed in air raids from the beginning of the war to October 1, Swiss dispatches, quoting official German Government statistics, said today.

Civilian air raid casualties in the British Isles totaled 48,282 killed, or reported missing and believed killed, up to September 30.

Roosevelt Tells Greece Hardest Tasks Lie Ahead

By the Associated Press

President Roosevelt told King George II of Greece yesterday "the hardest tasks still lie ahead" but that already the enemy front has been breached and the Fascist regime destroyed.

"Italy is grimly expiating its crimes," he said in a message sent on the occasion of the third anniversary of Italy's attack on Greece. There have been reports the Greeks are displeased that Italy has been accepted as a cobelligerent.

Jones Added To U. S.-British Food Board

By Christine Sadler

President Roosevelt yesterday signed an executive order strengthening the War Food Administration by designating War Food Administrator Marvin Jones the United States member of the Anglo-American Combined Food Board.

Simultaneously, a reorganization of the board was announced from the White House whereby Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard becomes neutral chairman and Canada is accepted to membership. Jones will replace Wickard as an actual member of the board.

The three members of the board now are: R. H. Brand, representing the United Kingdom; J. G. Gardiner, Canada's Minister of Agriculture, and Jones.

Move to Eliminate Conflict

By replacing Wickard with Jones as America's representative on the board, the President moved to eliminate any possibility of a conflict between domestic food programs and policies—which are a responsibility of the War Food Administrator—and those which might be advocated in international relationships.

At the same time, he abolished the Food Advisory Committee and the Inter-Agency Committee and replaced them with the Food Requirements and Allocations Committee of the WFA—a move which also strengthens the hand of Jones.

The War Food Administrator now "will be in a position to state the American point of view on the combined food board and any possibility of conflicting American points of view in food allocation matters will be eliminated," the White House statement said.

President to Speak

Jones announced last night the appointment of Roy F. Hendrickson, director of the Food Distribution Administration, as chairman of the new requirements and allocation committee and said he would receive and act on the claims of all United States agencies wanting food—including the War and Navy Departments and the Office of Foreign Economic Administration.

The President said his food message to Congress will be delivered Monday, and declared it will contain figures making it plain that "present stabilization methods" are costing the country very little in actual cash and are working out satisfactorily.

As an illustration of lend-lease in reverse, he said this country has been receiving from Australia enough beef and veal to feed practically all our troops based in that country.

The amount received has been about equal to what this country is sending to European areas, he said. Questioned as to whether this included food for our Army, the President replied it did not, but covered what is being sent for civilian needs.

Black Market in Waste Paper Claimed in 10 OPA Suits in N.Y.

Moving quickly to break up the black market in wastepaper, the Office of Price Administration's enforcement department yesterday disclosed that its special investigators had filed suits in Federal Court for the Southern District of New York against 10 wastepaper dealers and consumers.

Injunuctions were filed against all 10 to restrain their alleged black market practices and a total of $55,000 in treble damages was demanded from three defendants charged with violating price ceilings, it was said.

Hearing in Chicago

The OPA also revealed that a grand jury in Chicago will commence hearings Tuesday into the alleged black market operations of scrap paper handlers in the Midwest. The initial inquiry, it was said, will involve more than 100 alleged violators of OPA regulations and ceilings. In these cases the OPA is seeking criminal indictments.

Additional actions, OPA said, will be filed in another big Midwestern city in two or three weeks.

OPA's actions are part of a drive now under way with the cooperation of the War Production Board to save the paper salvage program in which thousands of the Nation's school children and their parents have cooperated.

Only 35 Per Cent Salvaged

Early this week, the OPA and WPB announced that only about 35 per cent of the available waste paper in the country is now being salvaged.

Consumers are charged with buying wastepaper at prices above ceiling and violating other OPA regulations on handling of scrap paper, it was said. A simple example cited was:

The maximum price on old newspapers is $15 per ton and operators of paper mills are paying dealers as high as $22 per ton to meet the quota of scrap paper required before they are permitted to manufacture new paper or paper boxes and cartons for shipping essential military and civilian goods.

OPA Point Values Set on Jam, Jelly

points compared to 21 previously.

The value of a 46-ounce can of grapefruit juice is reduced from 4 to 3 points, but a No. 2 can of pineapple juice will cost 12 instead of 10 points.

Values of such tomato products as catsup, chilli sauce and tomato sauces are increased 1 to 3 points.

Pickled, spiced and brandied fruits, more perishable than ordinary canned foods, were removed from rationing to move out all old stocks.

Dried and dehydrated soups and peas and lentils, listed at zero value for several months, have been dropped from the chart.

A zero value still is assigned to citrus marmalades in connection with rationing of fruit spreads. Supplies are plentiful, OPA said, but they are brought under ration control because of their importance in the over-all picture.

"It was like being buried alive," he said.

Reports at yesterday's meeting raised the fund total to $3,387,191, or to 70.59 per cent of its goal. Two more report meetings will be staged next Tuesday and Thursday.

Coleman Jennings, campaign chairman, stated that although it had been hoped that the drive could be completed in October, the campaign committee had repeatedly said that the objective is a goal and not a schedule, and that none would be willing to stop short of as complete a job as possible in every campaign division.

Herbert L. Willett, jr., executive director, discussed the perennial question of "coercive giving" when an over-zealous campaign worker threatens the job status of those being solicited." Community War Fund does not sponsor coercion in its campaign," Willett said.

An outstanding gift received yesterday was one for $1150 awarded to Advance Gifts Division by the Netherlands Embassy workers. The gift averaged $20 apiece from each worker.

Another gift received yesterday was that of $1100 from students at Landon School. The presentation was made by Robert Simpson, 16-year-old student and football player at the school.

Totals reported at yesterday's meeting are as follows: Advanced gifts, $450,415, 81.89 per cent; business and finance, $992,583, 73.5 per cent; metropolitan, $129,124, 43 per cent; Government, $1,767,566, 73.6 per cent; Arlington, $6613, 13.6 per cent; Montgomery, $30,314, 34.7 per cent; Prince Georges, $10,576, 32.4 per cent.

200 Jewish Cemeteries Marred By Vandals in Chicago Area

Chicago, Oct. 29 (INS).—Graves in more than 200 Jewish cemeteries in the Chicago area have been mutilated and damaged by vandals apparently working in gangs, leaders in Chicago's Jewry revealed tonight.

To avoid patrolling police cars the vandals have been working in the interiors of cemeteries, inaccessible by car.

A sexton of 18 of the larger cemeteries damaged revealed that in the area under his supervision more than 500 tombstones have been overturned.

"Some of these stones are so large that no one person could have dislodged them unaided," he said. "Because of the manpower shortage, it is taking considerable time to get the stones back in place.

"It is terrible the distress these acts have caused relatives and friends. It is a sad sight to see them out here day after day trying to get a grave back in proper order."

Other practices are the smashing of portraits of the deceased imbedded in the memorials and the shattering of mausoleum windows.

Dr. Louis Binstock, rabbi of Temple Sholon, said:

"If this is anti-Semitism, it is most serious and shocking. In any case it is gangsterism directed at our democracy and our war effort. It is not only dangerous to the Jew but to the country. This form of vandalism should be rooted out and attacked at once."

A survey of nonsectarian cemeteries revealed no similar damage has been done.

Nazis Note Gain In English Activity

London, Oct. 29 (AP).—Invasion-conscious Germans today reported increased military activity observed by their reconnaisance planes in south England.

The Berlin radio told of seeing a considerable increase in the volume of shipping in harbors on Britain s south coast, increased activity by minesweepers in the Channel and fresh concentrations of troop units.

$65,000 Tax Lobbying 'Kitty' Admitted at Brewster Probe

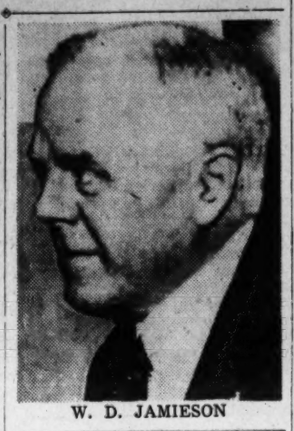
proved by the Joint Taxation Committee.

Thursday, Grant read an official Government report into the record which stated that of the $65,000, $30,000 went to Frank J. Comfort, then Democratic national committeeman from Iowa; $10,000 to Jamieson and $8750 to the New York law firm of Olvaney, Eisner & Donnelly. Olvaney was identified by committee members to reporters as Judge George W. Olvaney, former Tammany Hall leader, and Eisner as Mark Eisner, collector of internal revenue in New York City.

Reached at his home last night, Jamieson declared there was nothing mysterious about the $65,000 fund. He said the second Revenue Act of 1940 appeared to be so drawn as to work an injustice on some of the aircraft companies and that the Olvaney, Eisner and Donnelly firm which had long represented the Brewster Co. rushed into action.



W. D. JAMIESON

Contacted Comfort

"I contacted Frank Comfort," Jamieson said, "and got him to come on here at the last minute. I was the one who made the payment of $30,000 to him. It was perfectly fair and above board. He was an attorney We had to work in a hurry and thought he could help us. As a matter of fact there was no reason why Senator Herring shouldn't have introduced that legislation."

Jamieson revealed that he had previously sought the aid of Senator Wagner (Democrat) of New York in having such an amendment introduced but had failed.

Because the statute of limitations in this case prescribes that action, if any is to be taken, must be within three years, the Justice Department is expected to decide within a short time whether it can act in the case. Grant brought out that an official request for action, together with the report, had been sent to the Justice Department in August, 1942.

An ironical development in yesterday's testimony is that Curtiss-Wright, by being, as Soucek testified, slow in making their payment to Jamieson, had prolonged the case beyond the introduction of the amendment, making it still possible for the Justice Department to bring action, if full evidence is obtainable.

Soucek told the committee that Ferdinand Tannenbaum, a member of the Olvaney, Eisner and Donnelly firm, and a Brewster director, had telephoned him to fly to Washington to confer on the $65,000 fund.

The fund was necessary "for attorneys" in order to obtain rapid action on the revenue act change, Soucek said he was informed.

The Brewster vice president testified that he had no knowledge of where or to whom the money had gone after he had paid it to Jamieson. He said he was told that such quick action was needed that other "tax experts" were needed. Under Grant's questioning he admitted that the New York firm had always been highly regarded as experts.

Grant said yesterday that he believed Comfort, Jamieson, Tannenbaum and others involved in the deal should be invited to appear before the subcommittee.

Since first discussion of the $65,000 "kitty" came out during the testimony of F. William Zelcer, vice president of the American Armament Corp., Grant said he believed the two Miranda brothers, A. J. and I. J., his associates, should also be called. All three were closely connected with the Brewster Corp. at that time.

The Indiana Congressman said he realized the investigation of the tangled affairs of the Brewster Aeronautical Corp. appeared to be getting away from its major purpose—that of solving production difficulties—but he added that no responsible committee of Congress could ignore the sort of scandals now being unearthed.

Commissions Questioned

The youthful Indiana Congressman declared that further Justice Department investigation should also be made of the Miranda brothers and Zelcer, whom he flatly charged, on the basis of official reports put in the committee record, with having evaded the State Department's export rules in order to ship munitions to Japan.

Chairman Drewry (Democrat) of Virginia and others on the subcommittee quizzed Soucek yesterday on details of a transaction by which the Miranda brothers and Zelcer received commissions totalling 17½ per cent from a combination of airplane companies and accessories corporations they were connected with, in addition to either owning the companies or being large stockholders.

Wing Panels Added

According to the record built up over the course of several days on which Soucek was questioned, the Miranda-Zelcer combination owned the Hayes Manufacturing Company which had a seven-million-dollar contract for wing panels with the Brewster Aeronautical Corp. The combine, described in official Government reports as "conspirators," set up the Hayes Aircraft Accessories Company, which obtained from the manufacturing corporation a 5 per cent commission on its sales to Brewster Aeronautical. At the same time the three had organized the Brewster Export Corp., which received 12½ per cent commission on all contracts made with foreign governments for Brewster planes. Grant declared that the wing panels plus the plane contracts added up to 17½ per cent.

Work Made Arrangements

Soucek asserted that James Work, former Brewster president whose stock is now held in a voting trust at the direction of the Navy Department, made these arrangements with the Mirandas and Zelcer.

Work is under subpoena to appear before the committee Tuesday at 10 a. m., Committee Counsel Robert E. Kline said.

The examination of Work is expected to take two days, leaving Thursday clear for the appearance of Tom De Lorenzo, president of Local Union 365 UAW-CIO. Committee members predict that Thursday's testimony will be sensational.

A mild and very nervous former Brewster employe, William M. Grampp, former director of purchasing, who was discharged by Frederick J. Riebel, jr., former Brewster president, was an early witness yesterday.

Grampp Denies Charges

Grampp denied in toto charges made by Riebel before the committee that he had paid from 10 to 25 per cent more than necessary for materials for Brewster.

"I could never take Mr. Riebel seriously," he told the chairman earnestly.

He said he traced his difficulties to the first day he saw Riebel.

Late Recovery Reduces Stock Losses

New York, Oct. 29 (AP).—Stocks generally were subjected to further profit cashing in today's market although late support reduced many early losses of 1 to 4 points and enabled scattered favorites to emerge on the upside.

The fact there will be but one full session between now and next Wednesday — principal exchanges will recess Tuesday for the elections—caused the lightening of accounts in many instances. The coal labor crisis again served as a buying handicap. Individual issues, however, were propped by actual and prospective earnings and dividends.

Liquor stocks, weak most of the day, rallied in the afternoon but failed to hold recoveries. American Distilling, for instance, was off 4 points at one time, converted this into a gain of 2 and ended off ⅜. Schenley was unchanged and National Distillers and Distillers Corporation-Seagrams down ⅛ each. Allied Mills, on the other hand, ended up 1⅜.

The Associated Press 60-stock average, due partly to a fall of 4 points in J. I. Case on sales of only 500 shares, was off .4 of a point at 50.7. Of 821 issues traded, 391 were down, 201 up and 229 unchanged.

President To See That Coal Is Mined

go ahead with a complete shutdown involving 530,000 miners and threatened rejection of the WLB proposal for an alternative contract to replace the one turned down in the Illinois case for containing an unjustified wage increase of 37½ cents a day).

Without mentioning UMW President John L. Lewis by name, the Chief Executive included two pointed digs at the mine leader.

"Certainly in wartime, the miners will not take the position that they will sign no contract other than one dictated by their leaders," the President said. "We are at war, and all of us must make sacrifices for our common good and common safety."

Mr. Roosevelt also said "there is no basis for the assertion that the board's proposals involve in any way a reduction in the basic rates that the miners are receiving," thus challenging a statement made by Lewis in a telegram to his lieutenants which was interpreted as a signal for a general coal strike.

Davis, in a letter to the President which the White House made public when the President's answering letter was released, stated:

"The issue is the same clear one which it has always been since the beginning of the coal controversy, namely: Shall the wage stabilization policies of the Government be applied and enforced irrespective of the displeasure of any group toward these policies?"

The Illinois decision—which indicated the type of adjustment of the portal-to-portal controversy the WLB would approve—"has resolved every reasonable doubt with respect to the requirements of the stabilization program in favor of the miners' demands," the President said.

"Some may reasonably question whether the board has not gone too far," he added.

The President explained that the board's Illinois proposal would give the miners $54 for a 51-hour "portal to portal" 6-day week, or $8.50 a week more than they are now receiving for 42 hours actual work at their working places in the mines, and $2.50 a week less than under the original Illinois contract which WLB rejected. For a 46½-hour week under the old contract—equivalent to 51 hours "portal to portal," the miners would have received $52.25, the President said.

"I am confident that when the patriotic American miners realize the substantial increase in benefits the board's proposal offers them, they will not reject the opportunity given them to secure a contract," Mr. Roosevelt said.

"But, if I am mistaken, and the miners do not accept the board's proposals, I sall take decisive action to see that coal is mined."

Freeze Order

Other developments in the coal situation included the following:

1. In freezing all domestic-size coal in cars at the mines, Ickes and the Interstate Commerce Commission also took control over all industrial anthracite coal now on rails. The freeze of domestic sizes was ordered after a number of major coal-consuming cities reported insufficient reserves of coal to heat homes adequately in the event of a spell of cold weather.

2. Spokesmen for the Appalachian coal operators issued a statement disclaiming any responsibility for the coal stoppages. "Beginning with the wage negotiations that started in March, the operators have at all times supported and complied with every policy and requirement of Government. This present controversy is not between the operators and the mine workers, but rather between the United Mine Workers and the Federal Government."

3. Lewis, reached at his home, declined to comment on the President's statement or other developments.

4. The Department of Interior disclosed that soft coal production declined a second successive week, with 11,300,000 tons produced during the week ended October 23, compared with 11,725,000 for the previous week. A goal of 12,500,000 tons a week has been set.

5. Ickes requisitioned coal from Illinois for the Pennsylvania Railroad and from Ohio for the New York Central Railroad to keep both carriers operating at full capacity.

Hornets' Nest

AFL Charge Assailed by WLB Group

Charges by American Federation of Labor members of the War Labor Board that the board did not decide the coal case "on the basis of merit" yesterday stirred up a hornets' nest in the board, with the four public members vigorously assailing the charges.

Public Member Wayne L. Morse asserted that the comment represented "an unwarranted and unjustifiable attack upon the integrity and judicial independence of the public members of the board," and demanded that the AFL members "prove or retract their charges."

Charges Quoted

The charges were made in a dissenting opinion as follows:

"This decision of the majority adds another to the list of decisions of this board which have been determined not on the basis of merit, but rather by the attitude of the individuals and Government agencies who dominate the actions of the public members of the board."

The CIO members of the board significantly did not join in this opinion.

WLB Chairman William H. Davis and Vice Chairman George W. Taylor issued a joint statement declaring that the paragraph "evidences an irresponsibility which is entirely unworthy of the labor movement which they represent."

Graham Replies

Public member Frank P. Graham said, "The people who control the votes of the public members of the National War Labor Board are the American people who, through the Congress and the President of the United States, have determined the limits of the national stabilization program in the interest of all the people of our Nation at war."

"In the instant coal case," Morse said "the public members of the War Labor Board reached their decision in accordance with their understanding and interpretation of the wage stabilization program, and they reached that decision with complete judicial independence . . .

"The time has come when all economic pressure groups within the country should recognize that they have no right to expect to be paid for winning this war, but that the country and American posterity has the right to expect them to start paying for winning this war by much greater financial sacrifices than any group has made to date."

Group in Ohio Booms MacArthur For President

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 29 (AP).—A "MacArthur for President" campaign formally was launched in Ohio today just as the State's Republican leadership prepared to indorse Gov. John W. Bricker for the presidential nomination.

Bricker's office, apparently surprised by incorporation of a State "MacArthur for President" club, made no comment.

The incorporators are two Republican members of the Legislature, Representatives Robert A. Wilkinson and Guy D. Hawley, and W. Hobart Morgan, former postmaster of the Ohio House.

Lonergan Indicted for Murder, Asks Court to Assign Lawyer

New York, Oct. 29 (AP).—In six action-packed hours, Wayne Lonergan was paraded in police line-up today, arraigned in Homicide Court, and then indicted on a first degree murder charge in the slaying of his wife, Patricia Burton Lonergan, 22-year-old heiress to millions.

Shortly after the grand jury acted, the prisoner informed General Sessions Judge Jonah J. Goldstein that he was destitute and signed the equivalent of a pauper's oath to clear the way for the court to assign him an attorney. The jurist fixed next Thursday to hear a plea to the indictment.

Police said Lonergan told them his wife had left him out of her will and that he knew it four months ago.

Coincident with the indictment, police disclosed that three hours after Mrs. Lonergan was slain Sunday in her home in the fashionable Beekman Hill section, the 26-year-old Royal Canadian Air Force cadet returned to the building and left a toy elephant in the hallway as a gift for his 18-month-old son.

He already had related in a confession, according to police, that he slew his wife in a rage over her refusal to permit him ever to see his son again.

Throughout the day Lonergan remained calm, although his bloodshot eyes betrayed the weariness induced by prolonged questioning that led to his confession.

Conduct in Court

In Homicide Court he stood with hands clasped behind him and looked straight ahead as Assistant District Attorney Jacob Grumet charged him with "the brutal and unprovoked killing of his wife."

Lonergan replied in a polite whisper when Magistrate Charles Ramsgate asked when he wanted a date set for a further hearing.

"Any day, sir," the prisoner said.

Marigny Defense Hits Print Evidence

with the slaying, which took place last July in Sir Harry's seaside estate, Westbourne.

Before turning to the fingerprint, Higgs sought to suggest to the jury that sunburn, and not the flames with which an attacker tried to destroy Oakes' bludgeoned body, might have caused singed and curled hairs reported found on de Marigny's arms, hands and face after the crime was discovered.

"I don't deny that," Barker said.

"Nobody told you he was a yachtsman?" inquired Higgs of Capt. James O. Barker, Miami police officer who told of finding the burned hairs July 8, the day the millionaire's death was discovered.

Spectators stirred with suppressed excitement as Higgs suddenly shifted to another attack on the fingerprint.

Higgs asked Jury Foreman James Sands to touch the bedscreen which stood on exhibit.

Barker transferred the fingerprint to Scotch tape, and Higgs pointed out to the jury that a groove which formed part of the screen's decoration was plainly visible. Then Higgs showed his hand.

"But none of these irregularities shows on exhibit J except the print itself," he demanded. "Why is that?"

"Because it was lifted from a part of the surface where no irregularities would show," replied Barker.

Higgs previously had attempted to have the evidence thrown out because the print was lifted and no signs now remain on the screen for the jury to view.

During the investigation of the slaying, Barker said, he made a microscopic examination of De Marigny's fingernails, but found no sign of blood or human tissues.

Barker said he found ash residue of some burned hairs on De Marigny's arms.

Previously Barker had testified that anyone in the room at the time Sir Harry was beaten and burned to death likely would have burns on his person.

Barker said he examined the print on July 9 but didn't identify it then because it was reversed by the rubber lift. He said he processed it July 19, discarding two other rubber lifts because they were only smudges.

"By lifting the print, don't you destroy the subaceous globules of the print?" asked Higgs.

Barker agreed.

"Is there any way to tell whether the print then is a forgery?" Higgs shot back.

"I don't think there is," Barker answered.

Barker testified he found fingerprints of himself, De Marigny, Major Herbert Pemberton of Nassau police, and Dr. H. A. Quackenbush, attending physician.

"Latent prints are 99 per cent water and evaporation destroys or impairs their quality and will mix with the humidity, which breaks down the print," Barker said.

Higgs brought out that prints left on the screen previously by others probably were destroyed by humidity.

"If the accused were there that night, wouldn't his have been destroyed?" Higgs parried.

"We were fortunate to have found it," Barker replied.

"I don't believe fortunate is the best word," observed Daly, let's say it was a coincidence we found it."

The Pith Of It

Instead of reverting again to the coal decision, and John L. Lewis' adverse judgment upon it, let us subjoin the opinion of Frank P. Graham, public member of the War Labor Board:

"I support the decision of the majority because (1) this decision is within the National Stabilization Program holding the heavily battered line for more than one hundred million American consumers; (2) this decision meets the requirements of the Fair Labor Standards Act as the decision of the court now stands; (3) this decision provides a daily minimum rate of $8.12 for underground mine workers and average weekly earnings, for the proposed week, of approximately $60, and (4) this decision would promote the reduction of average travel time in the Illinois area, a further increase in the production of coal, and a corresponding increase in the earnings of the mine workers. The National Stabilization Program, which this decision upholds, is loaded with the anxieties and hopes of the American people in the midst of the total and global war for human freedom."

Education For Veterans

"We have taught our youth how to wage war," President Roosevelt wrote to Congress in his message on postwar education of service men and women; "we must also teach them how to live useful and happy lives in freedom, justice and decency." That statement will meet with warm response in the hearts of millions of citizens. A Government which, out of the necessity of self-preservation, has trained its young men in the horrible art of killing has a special obligation to reorient them in the ways of peaceful living. We can think of no more appropriate way of meeting at least part of our national obligation to the men in the armed services than to offer them a chance to resume their schooling or to learn a useful trade.

Many of the men and women in the armed services are getting experience that will be invaluable to them in civilian life. All of this training is given, however, with the sole object of building a competent fighting machine. Its benefits are therefore distributed most unevenly. It does not take the place of postwar training designed to restore soldiers and sailors to the occupations or professions of their choice. Surely it is not too much to ask that the Government take the responsibility of giving our defenders a year of schooling or vocational training in recognition of their loss of civilian skills while they have been in the armed services.

Fortunately, the President's committee which studied this problem and the President himself recognize that the educational opportunities to be opened to veterans "should be of the widest range." The absurdity of trying to put all men stepping out of uniform through a year of high school or college would be clearly evident. The type of training must be left to the individual if it is really to serve the purpose or reintegrating him into civilian life.

Incidentally, this plan should also greatly relieve the pressure for jobs in the period of demobilization. By the same token it is likely to overwhelm the educational system unless many special arrangements for training former service men are made. That problem can be overcome, however, if Congress approaches it sympathetically. The whole-hearted cooperation of States and local communities will also be needed, for this constructive proposal is in no way intended to disturb local control of educational systems.

Appropriation Laws

The Comptroller General has brought to light another instance of legislation through an appropriation act. He has concluded that Congress, in providing funds for the National Labor Relations Board, forbade that agency to investigate complaint cases arising out of agreements between management and labor if these agreements were in existence for more than three months prior to the filing of the complaint. As a result, the NLRB has been forced to drop proceedings in nearly all cases involving complaints of company domination of unions. The effect of this is to nullify one vital section of the Wagner Act.

Ironically, this proviso was written into the appropriation measure at the behest of the metal trades department of the AFL. It was designed to smite the CIO, particularly in the jurisdictional dispute over Kaiser shipyard employes. Now it has boomeranged badly. It operates to injure both CIO and AFL and to entrench the company unions which both organizations seek to overcome and which the Wagner Act sought to disestablish. Wherever these company unions are shielded from the NLRB they will make true collective bargaining impossible.

If Congress desires to modify the Wagner Act it has appropriate procedures for doing so. So drastic a modification as this would clearly merit hearings before a responsible committee and a full opportunity for debate. Certainly it should not be slipped across as a rider to an appropriation bill. This method of legislating by indirection is a violation of the House's own rules and an invitation to chaos. In the instant case it amounts to a legalization of contracts which Congress itself has declared to be illegal. The right hand of Congress had better be aware of what its left hand is doing.

Closed Front

It is a commonplace that nothing will promote the dissolution of the German will-to-fight more quickly than the demonstration of Allied solidarity. But this is one of the platitudes that require reiteration. Victories in the field, of course, are vital, but at this pregnant moment in the war the coalescence of the coalition is decisive. This is obvious in any estimate of the military situation. Everywhere the Germans are fighting on the defensive. In history they kept up war-making only when they had calculated coldly and realistically on the surety of a military victory. Any such hope in this war has been dashed repeatedly. At the water's edge of the Volga, at the desert entry into Egypt, in the wild wastes of the Atlantic Ocean, in the skies over Europe, and in Italy—their chances have gone glimmering. Only one thing has sustained German arms. That is a faith that the coalition arrayed against them will fall asunder. With that faith, the Germans might endure many more defeats onto the very soil of Germany and still wage war like a wild beast trapped in its innermost lair. Without it the will-to-fight will wither and die.

It is in this context that the emergence out of the three-power parley at Moscow of a closed front must be viewed. We have only the President's word for it. The bill of particulars awaits release from Moscow. But the satisfaction in all the Allied capitals is too profound to be ignored by Herr Goebbels. The last card of that skillful propagandist has been played. He has inspired the hope which still underpins the war machine of Hitler's Germany. He has conjured it, moreover, out of history. Armed coalitions all have borne within them the seeds of dissension which in the generality of cases have resulted in decay and disintegration. Coalitions grew and collapsed against the might of Napoleon. Goebbels, finally, has sedulously sown new seeds of distrust to activate any potential dissension in the anti-Hitler coalition. But the edifice has withstood all tests. It has now attained the stature of a grand coalition which in the era of Napoleon required a whole 20 years to build up.

This is not to say that all differences of opinion have been settled at Moscow. It was never intended to come to agreement on the details of an Allied program for military and political collaboration. Secretary Hull went to Moscow to find the principle of a common ground of comprehensive agreement. It cannot be doubted that he has found it. The way is thus prepared for a meeting of the Big Three which will find the formulas for binding together the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union. In the meantime the spectacle of unity at Moscow is worth a score of military victories. It will spur the warriors in the field to greater feats of valor and hearten men of good will everywhere to pursue the struggle for the "more perfect peace" which alone can justify war.

Praise Where Due

When the Connally resolution reached the floor of the Senate last Monday, some of the correspondents suggested that in the realm of foreign policy the anticipated debate would be the most important since the debate on the League of Nations in 1919. In view of the worldwide uncertainty regarding America's postwar role, such an assumption was not unreasonable. But it is now evident that the correspondents reckoned without the Senate itself. Despite the importance of the issues discussed—and very ably discussed—by Senators Ball, Pepper, Burton, Hatch and others who have sought to bring about a clarification of the fuliginous obscurities of the Connally resolution, only a handful of Senators have listened to the debate, and an even smaller number have participated in it.

Nonetheless, the Nation owes a real debt of gratitude to the senatorial flying wedge which is back of the clarifying Pepper amendment. Their speeches have been marked uniformly by a profound understanding of the question at issue, by great learning, and by a passionate determination that this time the horrible mistake of 1919 must be prevented from occurring again. Their interrogations, irritating as they may sometimes have been to the unhappy and uneasy chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee—who evidently hoped his resolution would be approved after only a perfunctory debate—have been intelligent, incisive and illuminating. Belonging to both parties, they have shown that great matters of state can be dealt with on a completely nonpartisan level.

Even on the Senate, a large number of whose members were unwilling or not sufficiently interested to listen, these contributions have left their mark. This has been even more true of their effect on popular thinking. The approval given the Pepper amendment by the CIO shows that not all Americans—not by a long shot—will be fooled by the efforts of the Senate Subcommittee to make nothing sound like something, to satisfy the imperious demand for a statement of American intentions by a hodge-podge of weasel words meaning, and intended to mean, all things to all men.

Facts At Last

The statement issued by the President in regard to draft deferments of Federal employes should put a stop for all time to unfounded reports that the Government is harboring a vast army of draft dodgers. Not only do the facts about deferments refute the extravagant statements of ignorant or malicious rumormongers but they show that the Government service is actually a less secure harborage for the would-be draft dodger than private industry. For, as the President explains, local draft boards may entertain requests for deferment of private workers in any of the 2000 occupations classified as essential by the WMC, whereas local draft boards can only defer Government workers on occupational grounds after such deferment has been approved by an independent review committee on request from the employing Government agency.

The low percentages of occupational deferments support the claim that standards set for deferment of Government employes are extremely strict. In case of civilian workers employed in Government-owned plants and shipyards, deferments are on the same basis as in private industry. Less than 5 per cent of all the civilian employes of the Army and Navy Departments have been deferred for occupational reasons—mostly outside of Washington. Of the more than 36,000 departmental employes of the War Department in Washington only 384 are now deferred, while slightly more than 1000 of the 19,000 employes of the Navy in Washington are deferred. Detailed analysis of the status of draft-age single men in other branches of the Government service and of childless married men of draft age show that a large percentage are either classified 1-A and awaiting induction or else have been rejected as physically unfit. Most of the limited number deferred for occupational reasons are engaged in work closely related to the war and calling for skill and experience in performance.

Some of the exaggerated statements that have gained currency are no doubt the result of past instances of abuse of deferment privileges. The President himself calls attention to the fact that in some instances local draft boards on their own initiative had granted occupational deferments to Federal employes, especially before the Government review board was set up. But these loose practices are no longer tolerated, and there is no excuse, therefore, for irresponsible talk about filling draft quotas with Government slackers instead of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers.

Some critics of the Government's deferment policy apparently assume that no man should be considered to be engaged in essential war work if his pay check takes the form of a draft on the Treasury. Yet it would be as foolhardy to deprive the Government of all its able-bodied skilled manual and professional workers as it would be to cripple private war industries by adopting such a policy. To judge from the President's report, it seems that, far from being over-liberal in respect to deferments, the Government may have gone a little too far in the opposite direction in permitting the drafting of Government employes who would be more useful to their country by remaining in the civilian services.

Turn In The Curve

The upward turn in living costs from August 15 to September 15 will undoubtedly be seized upon by groups that are trying to take advantage of the wartime emergency to force wages to inflationary levels. For that reason, care should be taken not to exaggerate the change recorded by the Bureau of Labor Statistics beyond its actual significance. The 0.4 per cent rise in the cost-of-living index falls a long way short of offsetting the decline of 1.5 per cent which had been recorded for the previous three months. In other words, the average consumer is still better off, so far as the prices of the necessities of life are concerned, than he was a few months ago.

In general, too, the cost-of-living curve is far below the wage curve. Average hourly wages in manufacturing industry as a whole have advanced every single month since July, 1940. When living costs turned downward late last spring, earnings continued to climb. Living costs would have to spurt up sharply for many months before the average worker's family would be really squeezed between rising prices and wage ceilings. Our greatest economic danger arises from the fact that the rank and file of consumers have billions of dollars to spend in excess of the goods available for them to buy.

TO CRUISING GULLS

Gulls who must flap your wings to fly,
Lacking the giant, stiff-winged state,
Invaded in your realm of sky,
Do you not feel inadequate?

Though you have watched the historied races
Taking the shore from the dwellers there,
Now that they take your clear, blue spaces,
Will you evacuate the air?

Do you not dream a troubled dream
Of life held grayly to the sea,
Of finding no kind shore's soft gleam,
No clouds through which to rocket, free?

Or, beating your wings past the cratered hill,
Do you know well that on the sand,
Each of your multitude, seeking, will
On rusted wings find a place to rest,
And underneath, on the grass-grown land,
The solitude to build your nest?

Argentine Warning

NEW INDICATIONS that neither the American republics nor the Argentine people are satisfied to see the Ramirez government continue its parade toward openly profascist practices are coming thick and fast. Once again various external and internal pressures are mounting around the Ramirez group and observers in nearby countries are saying that "anything can happen."

Secretary of State Hull's frank reply to the Storni note this summer took the lid off the situation internationally, since it made the United States position clear beyond any question. The Ramirez government emerged from the dust-up that followed publication of this exchange of communications with the bit in its teeth and confirmed its totalitarian character by suppressing newspapers that dared to defy it.

Early this month they called down upon their heads an open rebuke from President Roosevelt and severe criticism from many Latin-American countries by suppressing a number of Jewish newspaper and magazines. On October 16, President Roosevelt called this "an act in character with the most repugnant features of the Nazi doctrine." The ban was quickly lifted with the weak explanation that it was a "mistake."

U. S. Attitude

The latest indication of the attitude of the United States came this week with publication of a story to the effect that the U. S. Government is studying the possibility of freezing Argentine funds in this country. Official announcement about this would only come when the action is taken, but there is every reason to believe that it is seriously contemplated as a protective measure. This would put all transactions in Argentine assets in this country under close official scrutiny and would make it impossible for pro-Nazi groups in Argentina to continue with some of the subversive activities that the Ramirez government's course left them free to engage in.

This would be a strong but entirely justified action on the part of our Government.

Meanwhile, Latin-American countries have been making their feelings in the matter clearer and clearer. On October 12, which Spanish-speaking Latin-American countries celebrate as Columbus Day, or the "Day of the Race," Colombia sent a telegram to Argentina expressing the hope that that country would break relations with the Axis as a gesture of inter-American solidarity. A number of other Latin-American countries joined in with similar messages.

But the strongest protests are beginning to come from the Argentine people themselves.

Some weeks ago this writer pointed out that the press of the Argentine, which has taken a beating from Castillo and his successors, the Ramirez group, were beginning to fight back. This began over the Hull-Storni notes. One of the country's leading pro-democratic papers was a casualty of that incident, but La Nacion and La Prensa, two of the strongest papers in the country, took up the fight, and Ramirez has been afraid to suppress them. On October 15 both these papers published a document known as the "Democratic Manifesto." This document, signed by 150 leaders in Argentina's civic, cultural and political life, demanded that "Argentina not discard her constitution nor disassociate herself from her sister American nations and those who, the world over, fight for democracy."

Ramirez Government

The Ramirez government the next day promptly issued a communique warning that they would not "tolerate any tampering" with the way they were running the country. All of the men signing the manifesto who held any kind of government position or who were connected with institutions receiving Federal support were ordered fired forthwith.

These reprisals only resulted in new defiance from the Argentine people. A number of the men dismissed were professors in the University de la Plata at Buenos Aires. University students declared a strike, which this week has been taken up by the student body of Argentina's six major universities.

Dr. Alfredo Palacios, rector of the Buenos Aires University, refused to dismiss the four "signers" on his staff. When Ramirez stepped in to fire them, Palacios resigned. He has been invited to accept a chair at the University of Havana.

Late reports are that a number of the signers are fleeing the country, that the Buenos Aires chief of police has refused to carry out orders to crack down, that the Bar Association and the chamber of commerce of the City of Cordoba, one of Argentina's first cities, are going to do something about the situation.

The Argentine people, at long last, are beginning to fight back against the dictatorship that has for so long deprived them of their constitutional rights and their freedom of action in international affairs. What they can accomplish remains to be seen.

From Chile, Mexico, Venezuela and other New World republics have come expressions of support from newspapers, students, even political leaders. This new crisis in Argentina will be watched as never before.

In The Dnieper Bend

By Barnet Nover

The Greatest Battle Of The War?

UP TO NOW, the four greatest Allied victories have been those won in the Battles of Britain, Midway, El Alamein and Stalingrad.

Each of these battles was decisive, in the true sense. Each marked a great turning point in the war. Each had consequences extending far into the future.

The Battle of Britain halted Hitler's westward advance at the English Channel, robbed him of a definitive victory when his chances were greatest and compelled him to turn east, where the Wehrmacht was ultimately to be shattered against the rock of Russian resistance.

AT MIDWAY, the Japanese tide reached its flood and began to ebb. It has been ebbing ever since. Had the great Japanese armada moving on Midway succeeded in carrying out its assigned task, the whole western coast of North America, from Alaska to the Panama Canal, would have been threatened. Instead of being able to build up our strength in the Aleutians and the South and Southwest Pacific, a defeat at Midway would have compelled us to concentrate on defending our own shores.

El Alamein marked the end of the Axis effort to smash through Egypt to the Suez Canal and the Red Sea and the beginning of the end of Axis domination of the Mediterranean.

At Stalingrad, the greatest battle of all, the German bid for mastery of Russia finally went aground.

ANOTHER GREAT Allied victory is today in the making in the Dnieper bend, and it may prove the most decisive battle of the war.

As that distinguished British military commentator who writes under the pen name of Veritas points out: "It is not too much to say that between Kiev and the Sea of Azov a great German defeat has become a certainty and a great German disaster a possibility."

The stakes in this Battle of the Bend are tremendous. There is a possibility, as yet only a possibility, that a vast German force of between 500,000 and 1,000,000 men will be caught in a giant Russian pincers, one claw of which is driving west to the lower Dnieper from Melitopol, the other south across the Dnieper from Kremenchug.

A German loss of half or even a quarter of the possible total would be a heavy blow to the Wehrmacht, whose reserves have recently declined to the vanishing point and whose commitments, present and future, are increasing.

BUT EVEN if the German force now threatened with encirclement escapes the trap which the Red Army is setting for it in the bend of the Dnieper, such a "disengaging movement" would provide precious little comfort to the Herrenvolk.

A retreat from the Dnieper to the Bug and beyond would involve the loss of the whole of the Crimea which in turn would enable the Russians to re-establish their mastery in the Black Sea.

It would bring the Red Army into perilous proximity to Hitler's weary and wavering Balkan satellites. And since through their repossession of the principal north-south rail lines west of Moscow the Russians now have the advantage of fluidity of movement, a further German retreat in the south may imperil the German line in the north.

IT IS HARDLY surprising, then, that Dr. Goebbels, making a virtue of truth-telling, now that the truth can no longer be concealed, is saying to the German people that Soviet Russia is "the real danger of this war." But he has also found it necessary to add that Allied bombings "represent the lion's share of our troubles."

Never before has Germany so desperately needed a victory as now. That is why the slow progress made by the Anglo-American armies in Italy, plus the circumstance that Germany has reinforced her army in that country, has begun to create a measure of alarm in London and Washington. The possibility of a strong German counterattack in southern Italy has now to be reckoned with.

WHERE THE GERMAN reinforcements moving into Italy are coming from is not clear. Some of the captured troops appear to have come recently from the Eastern Front.

The chances are, however, that most of the reinforcements came from western Europe, particularly France, the Germans reckoning that an invasion of Europe across the Channel is not likely to occur for some months. And, of course, the longer and harder the fight in Italy, the more men Rommel forces the Allies to commit to the Italian battlefield, the longer such an invasion may be delayed.

Be that as it may, the Allied aerial assault on Germany alone has proved sufficient to give the Germans an endless series of headaches. And with the south Italian airfields now being put in use these headaches will increase. But if British and American air power have undoubtedly helped make the great Russian victory now in the making that victory, in turn, will increase the future effectiveness of Allied air power.

Allied Armies

Like the bright and morning sun rising over the plains of Europe, the Allied armies under Eisenhower and Montgomery appear, bringing freedom from want and fear, and freedom of speech and religion to many hundreds of millions.

Striking indeed are the acts of faith of this liberating army in the people of Italy, whom they are fighting for.

And the leaders of this army, which comes not to enslave but to free a people from bondage, will be celebrated and their names honored for countless generations in history and legend as were the heroes and leaders of other eras.

Great Italian historians such as Gaetano Salvemini, deputy to the Italian Parliament, where he fought the twin evils of nationalism and fascism until Mussolini drove him from Italy in 1926, will tell their people how the four freedoms and the right of self-determination were brought to Italy.

They will tell of the heroic work of the Italian underground in keeping Italian resistance to Mussolini alive.

They will tell of the courage it took to organize strikes and public demonstrations in Milan, Genoa and Turin in August while surrounded on every side by the legions of Mussolini and Hitler.

They will also tell of the sabotage and guerilla warfare the freedom-loving Italian people carried on in Milan, Genoa and Turin against their Fascist and Nazi overlords in August when American troops were landing in the south.

"Aid For Teachers"

May I congratulate you on your excellent editorial, "Aid for Teachers," which appeared in your issue of Monday, October 11, and also express the appreciation of our association for the splendid cooperation which you have given in the campaign for Federal aid.

While the Federal Aid Bill S. 637 was killed yesterday the campaign for legislation in this field will be continued. The need is so great that, while we lost this particular battle, we propose to continue the war until the victory is won.

If all newspapers can be made to understand the situation as clearly as The Post and will give as royal support to the cause as you did, we will, I am sure, be able to secure this legislation which is so important for the welfare of the youth of our Nation.

World Citizens

Since lack of understanding among the peoples of various nationalities has been undoubtedly a factor in causing the present chaotic condition of international relations, it would seem that any method of mutual enlightenment would be a worthwhile subject for postwar planning.

Along academic lines, we have had exchange students, and exchange professors. In the business world we have had many visiting representatives to study American mass production methods. We have reciprocated, in art, by sending our students abroad. And, of course, in the religious field, national boundaries have long been ignored. . . . But with the notable exception of American citizenship accorded to Lafayette and his descendants, have we ever thought of the vast possibilities inherent in "exchange citizenship"?

Outstanding men and women of the world would become "world citizens" in fact, as well as in theory. And these honored citizens would be listened to with a degree of mutual respect and confidence not possible to accord a government's temporary appointee. With the duty of keeping the people informed, without fear of reprisal recall, these citizens could do much to aid in achieving the desired international unity.

Service Emblems

From a recent article on veterans in The Post we learn that the Army is going to distribute service emblems to men who have been honorably discharged. Nothing has been said about giving these emblems to men in 4-F and in essential industries. Why?

By virtue of the fact that a certain percentage of civilians will be wearing these emblems, the rest of the male population will be under suspicion. It will develop that large numbers of innocent men, who are not in uniform through no fault of their own, will be stigmatized by the very means used to protect the veterans This is eminently unfair.

Since the Army is apparently very much concerned about protecting veterans, it ought to extend its helping hand to all men who are not on active duty. Otherwise it will find itself in the embarrassing position of hurting Peter while helping Paul. What's good for one man, in this country, is generally good for the next fellow. Let the Army act accordingly!

The Once Over

More Money Difficulties

As if the people were not having enough money trouble with their money, Washington has turned out a new penny called the "Whatizzit." The Government has gone off the gold standard, changed the value of the dollar, cut the dimensions of paper money, modified the depth of your pocket and shortened your bank statement, but in changing the color of the penny it has gone too far.

A man can hold his temper when he gets a streamlined quarter and a half-dollar with a belt in the back. Even a nickel with pink stripes can be tolerated. And he can endure a dime with ruffles on it. But a penny is something else.

Touch that coin and you hit home, tackle the bulwark of our loose change department and tamper with basic petty cash.

No matter what Washington does with a penny, it should leave it the same general shade. The non-fading red cent is an American tradition.

A citizen may not mind taking a quarter to the bank cashier to have it verified; he may not balk at submitting a half-dollar to a numerologist for identification, but when he has to consult a color chart to see whether he has just been handed 40 cents in dimes or four cents in pennies it is harrowing.

The new penny is of steel with a zinc coating. It could be a dime, a washer or a bath plug.

We have a copper shortage admittedly, but our scientists should be smart enough to make a cent that by any other metal will look as red.

Senator Buck of Delaware has introduced a bill in Congress to restore the red penny if for no other reason than that the Indian on it looks too pale.

There is an old saying that a bad penny always comes back. That's the trouble with this one.

It looks as if the fellow who has been down in Washington changing the shapes, sizes and colors of postage stamps has been switched to the United States Mint.

We talk so much in billions these day that it is hard to get down to pennies. But it is time to call a halt. Money goes so fast that nobody has much time to worry over its weight, shape and shade but it would be comforting to know that its last red cent hasn't developed pernicious anemia.

Taxation

It would appear that the time has come to apply reasoned intelligence to the political problem of taxation.

Taxes are paid only from productive energy applied to the raw materials of the universe to provide goods and services required and demanded by an expanding civilization. Whatever of restriction is laid upon production whether by limitation of the use of machine, better processes, or by waste or restricted output, increases the price which must in some way be paid by the consumer.

All are consumers. The consumer and only the consumer pays the bill. No corporation ever paid a cent of taxes. If it fails to recover its costs of production, it may be called upon to make inroads upon its accumulated capital, which is only the savings from previous productive energy. If required to make continuous inroads upon such reserves, it must ultimately perish.

Individuals, whether water boys or presidents, receive their pay from the consumers of the goods or services which they individually or in association with others provide for the use of the consuming public. Such pay may be regulated by statute or by the individual haggling of the market place. The astounding success of American enterprise has developed from public insistence that the individual must always be and remain free from an excess of governmental restraint, or from organized private restraint to which he does not give willing assent.

When we realize that every added item of expense of production is ultimately paid by the consumer, we will arrange our revenue laws so as to get necessary revenues as painlessly and as simply as possible. A consumption tax is the ready answer.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Serious Study Of War

A FEW DAYS ago the Princeton University Press published a book called "Makers of Modern Strategy," which is destined to exert a deep and long influence. The book is a symposium, almost an encyclopedia, of military thought during the past 400 years — from Machiavelli and Vauban to Mahan, Maginot, Churchill and Mitchell. It is the product of a group of scholars who have been working for years under the direction of Mr. Edward Mead Earle at the Institute for Advanced Study in Princeton.

LIPPMANN

The book does not propound a particular military doctrine—like Mahan's doctrine of sea power, Mitchell's doctrine of air power. The purpose of the book is to lay a broad foundation for the continuing study of military affairs among scholars and by public men.

IT IS A study which has been very much neglected in our universities, and there will be some, perhaps many, to say that as a matter of moral principle, since war is evil, the study of the military art ought to continue to be ignored. But they are mistaken. War will never be abolished by people who are ignorant of war. The fact that the democratic peoples have preferred not to understand war because they hated war so much has meant only that they were unaware of coming events and therefore unable to prevent war; that they were unprepared for war when it came; that they were compelled after the outbreak of war to improvise and to learn by defeat what they might have anticipated; and that they were uninstructed as to how to conclude their wars when the wars were won.

War cannot be waged well or abolished successfully by free peoples who refuse to educate themselves in the art of war. This monumental work will, therefore, exert its influence, long after this war ends, upon those who really take seriously the task of making a long peace. For the book will establish the study of military history and the development of military doctrine as an indispensable subject in higher education and in the intellectual life of the nation.

THE INTRODUCTION of military studies into the curriculum of the universities will encounter strong resistance.

This resistance, as one of the contributors—Mr. Craig—says, arises from the belief in democratic countries that "war is an aberration in the historical process and that, consequently, the study of war is neither fruitful nor seemly." Mr. Craig quotes the words of Sir Charles Oman, who in a plea for military history wrote that modern liberal historians "had often no closer notion of the meaning of war than that it involves various horrors and is attended by a lamentable loss of life" . . . they "strove to disguise their personal ignorance or dislike of military matters by deprecating their importance and significance in history."

We belong to a generation fed upon the prejudice that military affairs were the concern only of "militarists" and that the serious study of war leads to warmongering. What the two great wars of our generation ought to have taught us is that ignorance of evil is not a protection against evil, and that unless war is taken as seriously by those who mean to prevent it as it is by those who conspire to wage it, the free and pacific nations will perish.

WE MAY HOPE, then, that the universities will recognize that military history is history that they dare not neglect, and that research in the theory of war is at least as important as research in the theory of taxation, currency, corporate enterprise, labor relations, and the social services. For war, when it comes, quickly dominates all the other interests of a democracy: how then can a democracy be said to be fit for self-government if it is not versed in the history, the problems, and the issues on which its very survival may depend?

When this war ends, we may hope that many of the younger men, who have interrupted their careers to fight the war, will come back to become not only teachers but thinkers in military affairs. One of them will, we may hope, turn out to be the Mahan of the age of air power, the Clausewitz of the age of mechanized war. We shall need him in the future. For the technological development of modern war has run far ahead of our intellectual grasp of war, and not only in diplomacy but in the structure and composition of our armed forces we shall need true doctrine.

This war has shown that in equipping forces and in employing them in battle, the Nation is well endowed. But it has also shown that our long neglect of the serious study of the grand strategy of war has caught us with an insufficient number of men in civilian life and in the professional services who are prepared to shape policy. There is no short and easy way to remedy this neglect. Only a deep seriousness, of which Mr. Earle's book is so fine an example, maintained in the universities for a long time to come, can give the Nation the men who know how to guard the republic.

Stassen to Run In 2 States' '44 Primaries

The name of Minnesota's former Governor Harold E. Stassen, now a lieutenant commander with Admiral William F. Halsey's South Pacific forces, will be entered in the Republican Presidential primaries of at least two States and pledged Stassen delegates will be sought in several others.

This was reliably learned yesterday, as "draft Stassen" Republicans made it perfectly plain that the Stassen movement is a serious national effort to place the young former Governor's name before next year's Republican convention.

Stassen's friends are shooting at the 1944 nomination, not the 1948 stakes observers thought he was being groomed for. If the movement goes far enough it may cut seriously into Wendell Willkie's amazing preconvention start, and serve as a convention foil to the campaign to "draft" Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Support in Wisconsin

First inkling of the Stassen movement came early this month when John Quinn disclosed that the young naval officer's name would be entered in the Nebraska presidential preference primary and a campaign would be launched in that State.

Later Gov. Walter S. Goodland of Wisconsin announced his support and his name appeared headed into the primaries of that State. In the Dakotas, and other Western and Middle Western States where Willkie apparently is weakest, pledged delegates for Stassen will be sought.

As one Stassen supporter put it yesterday: "We think there ought to be more than one liberal Republican candidate in this race." The Stassen folk argue that not only is Minnesota's former Governor as forward looking as Willkie on domestic questions, but he has been far out front as well on postwar planning.

Lacks Enemies

Despite his advanced views, Stassen hasn't tangled as Willkie has with other members of his party in Congress and elsewhere. Willkie and Stassen in the past have been firm friends, but in this contest their two camps seemed heading for a parting of the ways.

Stassen, 6 feet 3 and 210 pounds of strapping youth, turned 35, presidential age, last April 13, and on April 27 resigned as the Nation's youngest Governor to take up his commission as lieutenant commander in the Navy.

Victory Gardeners Cut Billion From Food Bill

New York, Oct. 29 (AP).—Victory gardeners whittled at least $1,250,000,000 from the country's total food bill this year, the American Institute of Food Distribution estimated today.

The nonprofit research agency said the saving represented an average of about $30 for every family in America—city dwellers and suburbanites alike—and called the estimate "conservative," adding that actually the amount might be considerably higher.

The Gallup Poll

Postwar Job Problems, High Cost of Living Among Chief Worries of U. S. Public

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., October 29. The two chief questions on the minds of the American people today, aside from the war itself, are postwar unemployment and the high cost of living.

These worries are judged by the questions which a representative cross-section of the voters say they would like to ask their Congressmen, if given the opportunity.

Postwar Employment

Persons interviewed in all parts of the country said they would like to ask their Congressmen about "jobs" or "employment conditions" when the war is over. Here are their worries on this score as reflected in their own questions:

"Is there going to be another depression? . . . What is Congress going to do about jobs after the war? . . . What provisions are being made for jobs for returning soldiers? . . . What are we going to do when war plants close down? . . . Will there be enough jobs for both men and women?"

High Cost of Living

The high cost of living still looms large in the public mind. This is borne out by the great numbers who would like to ask such things as this:

"What is Congress doing to bring the high cost of living down? . . . Why don't they keep prices down?

How does my Congressman expect me, a salaried man, to get along with prices sky high? . . . Why doesn't price control work for food? . . . Why do prices keep going up? . . . Something's got to be done about the price of food. What is my Congressman doing about it?"

Rationing

Those who want to ask about rationing are mostly concerned with meat and butter shortages, although many have shortages of gasoline, shoes and other items on their minds.

A great number complain about shortages of points for meat and butter, as is shown in the following:

"How do they expect two people to live on 32 points a week? . . . How can we get more meat?

Is there a chance of lowering points on meat; we haven't enough . . . Why are ration points so high on meat and butter? . . . Where's all the butter? That's what I'd like to ask my Congressman."

Taxation

The next biggest worry revealed in the questions people want to ask is that of taxes:

"How much higher are taxes going? . . . Will there be a sales tax next?

"When are they going to put a ceiling on income taxes?" These are a few of the questions. Equally as important is the question of public spending, so far as the public is concerned: "Can't we cut down on some of the wasteful spending? . . . How about getting rid of some of the workers in Washington? . . . Why do they spend money so recklessly? . . . Why can't we cut down on the cost of Government?"

The Draft

With draft boards throughout the country now dipping into the father category, an increasing number want to ask their Congressmen about the draft problem. Typical of the questions people said they want to ask Congressmen are these:

"Are they really going to take my husband and other husbands with children?

"Why don't they take single men out of war plants and Government jobs? . . . How am I going to take care of my children if they take my husband? . . . Why don't they take all single men first?"

Other Worries

Many of the questions which people would like to ask their Congressmen reveal continued impatience with "governmental red tape, bickering and bureaucracy." Labor problems, such as strikes, also continue among public worries.

Supersurtax, Refund After War Proposed

By Edward Ryan

Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, proposed yesterday that Congress write new taxes grossing 15.8 billion dollars of revenue, part of it through sharply reduced personal exemptions coupled with a wartime super surtax. Six billion of the gross would revert to taxpayers as credits and postwar refunds.

His program, presented in an executive session of the House Ways and Means Committee, was understood to have been criticized by members as "fantastic and visionary." It was doomed in advance by the committee's earlier decisions to limit their search for new revenue to around two billion dollars.

3 Billion from Excises

Out of the total proposed by Eccles, about three billion would come from excises, more than twice as much as the committee has approved, and 800 million from corporations, compared with the 616-million-dollar committee figure.

Twelve billion would be derived fro individuals, of which two billion would be written off currently as tax credits for those with small incomes that had remained stationary or risen only slightly during the war. Another six billion would g back after the war as refunds, up to a maximum of $1000 a person.

Other details of the program, as outlined by Ways and Means Chairman Doughton, and by Colin F. Stam, chief of the Capitol's joint tax staff, called for repeal of the Victory tax, and increase of the normal tax to 10 per cent in line with moves already approved by the committee.

Lower Income Exemptions

Individual income tax exemptions under Eccles' plan would be $800 for married persons, $400 for single and $250 for dependents. He also proposed doing away with the necessity for filing returns for those whose entire income tax is collected by withholding.

Eccles was understood to have cautioned the committee that a program like this would mean between two and three billion dollars would be collected annually by the Government in voluntary savings. At the same time, he presented figures showing the present inflationary gap, and warned of dangerous postwar inflation.

Earlier the committee heard Budget Director Harold Smith discuss the Government's spending and economy program.

Johnson Named Defense Control Center Clerk

Appointment of Henry W. Johnson as Civilian Defense Control Center Clerk was approved yesterday by the District Commissioners, who at the same time cancelled appointment of Raymond B. Carroll, who declined the post.

All control clerk posts were abandoned last May, when it was said the amount of work involved did not merit such expenditure for salaries. Subsequently, several of the centers reported volunteer workers were manning them adequately.

However, the commissioners decided a month ago to reestablish the clerical jobs on recommendation of Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, who said duties of the centers were overburdening volunteer deputies in charge of them.

Gen. Harris Wins Legion of Merit

Brig. Gen. Field Harris, whose wife lives at 3900 Connecticut ave. nw., has been awarded the Legion of Merit medal for "outstanding services as chief of staff of aircraft in the Solomon Islands," according to a dispatch received here yesterday.

General Harris, whose son, Lieut. William F. Harris, 25, was reported missing in action on Bataan, commanded all United Nations air units in the Solomons, including those of the Marine Corps, Army, Navy and of New Zealand, during the early stages of the New Georgian campaign.

He was in charge of the air assault which led to the capture of the strategic Munda air base, and it was under his command that Allied pilots shot down 97 Zeros in one day.

Willkie Assails 'Appeasement' By Democrats

Paterson, N. J., Oct. 29 (AP).—Wendell Willkie asserted tonight "the Democratic Party preaches democracy, yet its statesmen have practiced appeasement with the forces of reaction and fascism all over the earth: With Japan, with Vichy, with Franco, with the King of Italy—indeed, with almost everyone who has ever offered them an an opportunity to appease."

The Republican Party's 1940 candidate for President scored what he termed the "high profession and low performance" of the Democrats in a speech prepared for a political rally on behalf of Walter E. Edge, Republican nominee for Governor of New Jersey.

Willkie said he entered the New Jersey fight because Mayor Vincent J. Murphy of Newark, Democratic candidate and secretary-treasurer of the New Jersey Federation of Labor (AFL), had misrepresented the Willkie opinion of Edge, former Governor, United States Senator and Ambassador to France.

Party Tactics Assailed

"In the light of the mayor's maneuvers," said Willkie, "the voters can see more clearly the tactics of the Democratic Party. . . . They consist in professing one set of principles and in deliberately practicing quite another. High profession and low performance. And this political chicanery—I know no other word for it—has become the accepted technique of the Democratic Party.

"The Democratic Party preaches freedom, yet in the South it is content to abridge the freedom of millions of voters. The Democratic Party preaches liberalism, yet here in the North, and especially here in New Jersey, it relies for its strength on reactionary political machines which are a national scandal.

"The Democratic Party boasts of its leadership in the cause of international cooperation. Yet today Senator Connally, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the Administration spokesman on the floor of the United States Senate, battles for an ill-defined resolution of indorsement of that very principle.

Actions Declared Contrary

"The Democratic Party preaches democracy, yet its statesmen have practiced appeasement with the forces of reaction and Fascism all over the earth; with Japan, with Vichy, with Franco, with the King of Italy—indeed, with almost every one who has ever offered them an opportunity to appease."

Willkie said Edge had urged the Roosevelt Administration to cease a policy of appeasing Vichy in 1942 and otherwise had proved his liberalism.

Coolidge Beats W.-L., 20 to 7; Eastern Wins

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

I won't be needing that $100,000 I have been trying to scrape together for the past 12 months.

Pro-Football Inc., owners of the Washington Redskins (George Preston Marshall, president) seemed to think I owned that much scratch and wanted in, as we say in our set.

POVICH

Pro-Football Inc. (George P. Marshall, president) sued me. They sued the publishers of The Washington Post, too, for $100,000. That may be a trifling sum to some people, but I did not want to be separated from my last $100,000, even if I did not have $100,000.

It was nice to think, however, that Pro-Football Inc. (George Marshall, president) assumed that I possessed or could dig up $100,000 for Pro-Football Inc. (Geo. Marshall, president). And this the year of the withholding tax, too.

Pro-Football Inc. (G. P. Marshall, president) sued me and the publishers of The Post because they didn't like what I said about their football game for Army Emergency Relief, played at Los Angeles on August 30, 1942. They didn't like it $100,000 worth.

That was the article that appeared in this space on September 26, 1942. I must have been feeling very blunt that day. I was commenting on the fact that the Redskins took $13,000 out of the gate of the Army Relief game in Los Angeles and I was asking the Secretary of War to investigate it.

Mr. Stimson had just called off the Louis-Conn fight for Army Relief because he didn't like the way the gate was being split, and he said he was "shocked." I said he should look into that football business, too, and being very blunt that day, I said "in at least one instance, that stinks, too. We mean the game which the Redskins so kindly consented to play with your All-Western Army team at Los Angeles for sweet charity's sake."

I said some other things, too. I said "like the Louis-Conn fight, that game was supposed to be played for the widows and orphans and families of our missing and maimed soldiers. Sure enough when they split up the gate receipts, the widows and orphans came first—after the proprietors of the Redskins got their share."

I said, "By what right the Redskins' owners took $13,000 out of that gate before the Army Relief Society was paid off, we don't know. The game wasn't advertised as for the Redskins' benefit, if we remember rightly. But the owners of the Redskins skimmed more dough off the top of that one than they ever got for any other exhibition game on the Coast."

I said "That's how the Redskins justified their $13,000 take—on the basis of training expenses for the game. But that was strictly malarkey, and it still smells." That's what I said.

And so the owners of the Redskins sued me and the publishers of The Post, and The Post retained Mr. Spencer Gordon as counsel for the defendants, and on Wednesday of this week we went into court before a jury and His Honor Justice James M. Morris of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.

Mr. Marshall took the stand as a witness and put in evidence a letter from the War Department which he said was the contract and which stated that the owners of the Redskins were to be allowed 20 per cent of the receipts, to be limited to $20,000. The 20 per cent turned out to be $13,608.76.

On the witness stand I was asked by Mr. Milton King, counsel for Pro-Football Inc., if I knew at the time of writing the article that the Redskins had a contract with the War Department, and the terms of it.

I quote now from the cross-examination of myself by Mr. King:

Q. "Let me ask you, you said you were proud of this article, you didn't take back anything, and you said you would write it again."

A. "That is true."

Q. "Would you write an article like that about the Redskins taking this money from orphans and widows without knowing the terms of the contract, again?"

A. "When the Redskins, or any other organization, sports organization, takes that much money from any such charity fund, I will be pleased to write the same kind of an article."

Q. "Whether you know whether they were taking it justifiably or not, you still think it is wrong?"

A. "I can see no justice in taking that much money out of a charity affair."

Here is paragraph 4 of the complaint filed by Pro-Football Inc. (G. Marshall, president) in the suit for libel:

"By reason of the publication of the aforesaid false, malicious, scandalous and defamatory article, and the statements therein contained, the plaintiff has been and is greatly injured in its good name, business and credit, and has been brought into great public scandal, scorn, shame and disgrace, and held up to public hatred, illwill, contempt, disrepute and ridicule, of residents of the United States, the District of Columbia and elsewhere, to the extent that many persons do suspect and believe that the plaintiff, in its conduct and practices in connection with its management and control as owner and proprietor of the aforesaid 'Redskins,' has been reprehensible, unscrupulous, fraudulent and unpatriotic, and has perpetrated a fraud at the expense of and to the detriment of a certain charitable organization, operating for the benefit of the armed forces of the United States, in time of war, and known as the Army Relief Society, and to the detriment of the widows and orphans of members of the armed forces of the United States."

The defendants pleaded (1) that the article did not libel Pro-Football Inc.; (2) that it was fair comment and (3) that it was true.

The jury, in fewer than 20 minutes, brought in a verdict for the defendants who, we are happy to note, were the owners of The Washington Post and Povich.

This column rests—but only until there is occasion for further fair comment.

Tiger Eleven Bows, 18-6, To Ramblers

Interhigh Standings

	W.	L.	Pct.
Coolidge	4	0	1.000
Roosevelt	3	1	.750
Western	3	1	.750
*Wilson	2	2	.500
Eastern	2	2	.500
*Tech	1	2	.333
Anacostia	1	4	.200
Central	0	4	.000

*Wilson-Tech, 0-0 tie.

Tech came through with a surprising 34-0 triumph over Anacostia and Eastern upset Wilson, 18-6, but the big football news yesterday wasn't an interhigh game—it was the fact that the Coolidge Colts went on a 20-7 scoring spree against surprised Washington-Lee.

The Colts already were atop the local heap, but their victory over W-L made it convincing. In six starts they've lost only one game, that one to George Washington in Alexandria when several of the regular line-up were unable to play.

The tie for second place in the Interhigh Series will be broken today—one way or another—when Western meets Roosevelt at Central Stadium at 3 p. m. in the spot game of the week. Eastern's victory brings the Ramblers to a tie with Wilson for third place—temporarily, for the tie will drop back to fourth place after the spot game today, when the Raider-Rider loser takes over the third niche. Tech's victory brings the Trainers up a notch, while Central remains the only team in the league which hasn't won a game.

Coolidge Upsets W&L High, 20 to 7

The Coolidge Colts established themselves as the outstanding high school football team in this section yesterday by defeating Washington-Lee, 20-7, on Ballston field. They dealt the Little Generals their first defeat in two years. The Colts have lost only one game this season, to George Washington High of Alexandria.

The longest run of the game was Addie Bassin's 50-yard race for a touchdown in the second quarter. A 30-yard pass from John Shullenbarger started the scoring play. Bassin made the extra point when he caught Greenbaum's 10-yard pass in the end zone.

The first Coolidge score came in the first period. The Shullenbarger to Bassin passing combination had worked the ball to the 12-yard line. The same combination made the touchdown with a pass into the end zone, where Bassin caught it for the score. Bob Webb converted.

A surprised and fighting W-L team worked the ball to the Coolidge 24-yard stripe in the second period on line plunges. Bill Henry threw a 10-yard pass to Wally Pigg, who carried the mail 20 yards for the only W-L touchdown. Don Druckenmiller converted.

Coolidge came back in the same period when Bassin intercepted Billy Earl's pass on Washington-Lee's 25 and carried the ball to the 17. Coolidge sustained a five-yard penalty for too many time outs, but the loss made little difference. On the next play, Shullenbarger passed 30 yards to Bassin, who took it in the end zone and scored. Webb again converted.

The Colts and Generals kept up a nip and tuck battle all through the second half. W-L worked the ball to Coolidge's 5-yard line, but lost it on downs, in the last period.

Eastern Batters Wilson, 18 to 6

An Eastern team that just would not accept the fact it was an underdog, threw a stone wall line against the Wilson machine, stopped its line plays and smeared its passers to kill the Tigers' hopes of getting into the championship playoff yesterday. The score was 18-6.

Eastern forced Wilson to punt early in the first period and its first play of the ball game netted 57 yards when Tom English galloped over right tackle to the Wilson 10. Wilson rallied and an exchange of punts in a high wind found the ball on Wilson's 30, where

Piker Gains for Tech—And He's No Piker

Bob Piker, with ball, Tech halfback, sends one Anacostia man to the ground by a quick shift as another tackles him in the game between the Trainers and the Flatmen yesterday. He had just reeled off 10 yards for a first down when he was tackled. It was one of his many gains in the game which Tech won, 34-0.

Tech Swamps Anacostia by 34-to-0 Score

Tech's Trainers, which have been threatening something awful in every game they've played so far this year, came through with the goods yesterday, defeating Anacostia hands down, 34-0.

One reason may have been that the Flatmen's passing threat, Flea Flaherty, didn't play much. But it didn't seem to do any good when he did, for though he threw a touchdown pass, it was a touchdown for Tech when Boswell intercepted it on the 22-yard line to run the remainder of the length of the field.

You could see it coming when the game started, for in the first three minutes of play Andy Davis went off on a spinner, 40 yards for a touchdown. Stan Fant did some yeoman work to set up the second score in the second period, but it was Davis again that did the scoring in an off-tackle reverse from the 20-yard line.

Anacostia sort of buckled down for a while in the second half and came within 20 yards of pay dirt, making most of its gains on spreaders. Then Tech got the ball again and Fant took a fake reverse over from the 32-yard line for Tech's third score. The Trainers' next one was set up when Tech recovered an Anacostia fumble on the Flatmen's 30. From there Bob Piker tossed a pass to Ernie Bertolini in the end zone. The Flatters seemed determined to make at least one score after that, but their promising march was ended when Flaherty threw that pass right into the arms of Bob Boswell, who scampered to freedom and another score.

Emsweller did all the converting for Tech with four good ones out of five tries.

Mrs. Powell Wins Kenwood Low Net

Carding a 94, which with a 12-stroke handicap gave her a net 82, Mrs. J. T. Powell yesterday captured low net honors in Class A division of the final Kenwood Women's Field Day tournament of the year. Mrs. Arnold McNitt, with 94-10-84, was second. Jane Nelson won low gross honors with 93.

Army, Penn Clash Today On Slow Field

Philadelphia, Oct. 29 (AP).—Army and Penn, two of the Nation's top-ranking football teams, collide tomorrow before a sellout crowd of some 72,000 with Army, already a heavy favorite, bolstered today by the probability that Halfback Doug Kenna will see action for the first time this year.

Kenna, a great star last year, has been on the sidelines during Army's first five victories because of injuries. Lieut. Col. Earl Blaik, the Cadets' coach, reported that "Kenna is in shape to play" as the husky halfback ran through signal drill with the rest of the squad on soggy Franklin Field.

On the Penn side, it was reported that Bob Odell, captain for the game, has recovered from a slight cold which bothered him through the week, and that Grover Jones, 165-pound Navy V-5 trainee from Grindstone, Pa., would start at fullback replacing George Veling, transferred by the Navy.

Pregame odds, at 9 to 5 in favor of Army early in the week, had leaped to 2½ to 1 today despite weeklong rains that left the stadium turf soft in spots.

Blaik was not happy about the condition of the field. "Our scouts say this Penn team has more power than the team that beat us 19-0 last year. Our forte is speed," he remarked.

Probable starting line-ups:

Johnnies Beat Central, 6-0, in Final Minute

Big George Hughes, Johnnie fullback, won the laurels in a 6-0 victory for St. John's last night under the lights at Griffith Stadium when he intercepted an aerial, then threw a touchdown pass, all in the last minute of play, to break a scoreless tie and hand Central High its sixth consecutive loss.

Late in the last box Central was forced deep back into its own territory and Ed Crandal tossed a floating pass that was intercepted by Hughes on the Central 29 and the Saint star galloped to the 2-yard stripe. Walter Bowman lost a yard at the line, but on the next play Hughes connected on a pass to Halfback Andy Hayden. Pete Lalario blocked Joe Dowling's try for extra point.

Central made its most formidable threat late in the third quarter when Crandal passed to End Pete Chipouras on two consecutive passes that found the ball just 4 yards from a score. However, St. John's killed that scoring threat.

Gamecocks Peck Out 20-to-0 Win

Orangeburg, S. C., Oct. 29 (AP).—A sluggish flock of South Carolina Gamecocks showed three flashes of brilliant play here today and scored three touchdowns in overcoming a stubborn crew of Charleston Coast Guard Sailors, 20 to 0, before a county fair crowd of 5000.

Only through the air was either team consistently effective. The Gamecocks squeezed two scores into the second period after the teams had see-sawed behind fine punting.

Little Ordered To Hospital

New York, Oct. 29 (AP).—Lou Little, head football coach at Columbia, today was taken to the medical center suffering from a sinus infection. Little was ordered to bed by his physician early this week and turned the direction of the Columbia team over to his assistant, Sam Cordovano.

St. Albans Wins In Baltimore

Baltimore, Oct. 29.—With Delos (Cotton) Smith again running wild, St. Alban's Prep of Washington registered an easy 20-0 triumph over Baltimore Friends here today. It was the third straight victory in as many starts for the Washingtonians and their second in IAC competition.

Smith put together runs of 60, 15 and 5 yards to tally all three of the visitors' touchdowns. He added one extra point on a plunge and tossed a pass to End McCulloch for another. The high scoring Smith has now tallied 62 points in three games. Capt. "Bez" Miller, St. Alban's tackle, played a big part in keeping the locals in check, averaging 42 yards from the scrimmage line with his booming punts.

Bullis Downs GW High, 14-0

Clyde Scott—beg pardon—Bullis Prep beat George Washington High 14-0 last night and would have piled up a much bigger score than that, but for the kicking of the Presidents' Curtis Kirby.

Kirby was averaging 55 yards on his punts out of danger and usually his teammates were able to make a stand before the Bully Boys could get to pay dirt.

Both of Scott's touchdowns were made on long runs, the first when he ran 45 yards on an off-tackle play, untouched, as the ads say, by human hands. The second one was an 80-yard run from his own 20 on a spinner, after Kirby had kicked 60 yards for a touchback.

80,000 Fans to Watch Navy-Irish Meeting

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Cleveland, Oct. 29.—Notre Dame and Navy collide in big Municipal Stadium tomorrow before a sellout crowd of 80,000 and in the betting marts tonight the Irish are emphatic 5-to-2 favorites to shatter Navy's unbeaten record while preserving its own.

The two teams will be taking the field with designs of furthering their bid for the national football championship, with tomorrow's game perhaps representing the biggest hurdle for each.

Against Notre Dame's powerhouse which rolled up a score of 41-0 against Pitt, 55-13 against Georgia Tech, 35-0 against Michigan and 50-0 against Wisconsin, the Midshipmen are pitting a smart, aggressive line—and Hal Hamberg.

Bertelli vs. Hamberg

A forward passing battle between Hamberg and Notre Dame's famed Angelo Bertelli may develop as the main event, with both Navy and the Irish making full use of the passing weapon this season.

In all of Navy's five triumphs this season, Hamberg has been the transcendant figure with his passing and ball carrying. He is rated the East's only challenger to Bertelli as a forward passer, despite his mere 150 pounds. In last week's game with Georgia Tech, Hamberg passed to three touchdowns, scored one on a 9-yard run and ran back a kickoff for 81 yards.

Bertelli, not so versatile as Hamberg, passed Notre Dame to victory over Navy last year. Tomorrow he will be playing his farewell game for the Irish before being called to service with the Marines.

Georgia Tech has been the only common opponent of the Irish and Navy this season, with Notre Dame rolling up a 55-13 score against the Golden Tornado which held Navy to a 28-14 score.

Navy will be meeting up with the "T" formation as practiced by Notre Dame, and Coach John Whelchel of Annapolis is relying on his first-string line to solve the intricacies and precision of the Notre Dame attack. Whelchel has been using a five-man line against the T-formation.

The marked men of the Notre Dame backfield, in addition to Bertelli, will be Creighton Miller, the break-away back; Julius Rykovich and Jim Mello. Rykovich is the blocker and reverse-play runner and Mello the heavy-duty man in the thrusts at the line.

Arrive in Cleveland

Despite earlier reports that Jim Pettit and Bob Jenkins, Navy backs, might not play in the game because of injuries, those two players arrived in Cleveland with the 44-man Navy squad. Jenkins, a former Alabama backfield star, is expected to play.

In the starting Navy line-up will be Hamberg's favorite pass receivers, Ben Martin at halfback and Channell at left end.

Liment	L.E.	Channell
White	L.T.	Whitmire
Filey	L.G.	Brown
Coeman	Center	J. Martin
Perko	R.G.	Chase

Yonakor	R.E.	Johnston
Bertelli	Q.B.	Nelson
Miller	L.H.	Hamberg
Rykovich	R.H.	B. Martin

Kickoff: 2 p. m. (CWT).

Gonzaga Tops Mount Vernon

Gonzaga High roared back into winning form yesterday to score five touchdowns and boot a few points to boot in swamping Mount Vernon High, 34 to 6.

It was early in the first period that Hickson was unleased for a 40-yard run and the first touchdown. The second came after a 55-yard drive down the field, with Horan taking it over on a 5-yard line buck. Murphy handled the third score, just by way of variety, on a 3-yard buck over after Gonzaga had driven from its own 35 stripe.

Sweetest play of the game came when Hickson drove through the line on his own 15, found his blockers had eliminated every man of the opposition, and loped the 85 yards for the score. Murphy scored the fifth one when he intercepted a pass and ran 35 yards.

Mount Vernon's only score came in the last period when they blocked a kick on the Gonzaga 12, recovered it on the 6 and bucked over on the third try on an off-tackle play.

Terps Battle 'Birds Today

Greenville, S. C., Oct. 29 (AP).—The University of Maryland will test its strength against the Greenville Army Air Base Jaybirds in football here tomorrow at 3 p. m.

The Maryland squad of 30, mostly freshmen, worked out lightly this afternoon to shake out the kinks developed in a bus ride from College Park.

Lieut. Jim Thomason, former Texas Aggie star who is coaching the Jaybirds, said he would be able to muster a fairly heavy team from tackle to tackle, with light ends and backfield.

Army, Notre Dame, Ga. Tech Favored in Big Games

By Harold Claassen

New York, Oct. 29 (AP).—Offering you these football selections but not guaranteeing that they will approximate last week's offerings in which 30 results of 35 games (disregarding ties) were forecast correctly:

Notre Dame over Navy: The year's biggest game to date and indications are that 80,000 fans will be in the Cleveland stands. The game is Bertelli's farewell and that's likely to fire the Irish to their very best—which they will have to be.

Army over Pennsylvania: Penn's attack is one of the most versatile in the country but Army's speed and depth of reserves should break the cadet Franklin Field jinx. Some 70,000 fans saved their cash to see this game.

Georgia Tech over Duke: Because of Navy transfer, neither coach likely will know his exact lineup until the kickoff although Tech has earlier knowledge that Mutt Manning, captain and center, and Tackle Willie Smith would be available. At least 40,000 Dixie fans will be present.

Southern California over California: The Trojans did it earlier in the season, 7 to 0, but that won't keep 40,000 fans from the game.

Indiana over Ohio State: Two of the country's best all-civilian outfits tangling before 25,000 with Hunchy Hoernschemeyer and his Hoosier hotshots getting the edge over Dean Sensanbaugher and Ernie Parks.

Northwestern over Minnesota: Another former Gopher, this time it is Herman Frickey, to spoil the day for Minnesota.

Dartmouth over Yale: Don Kaszprzak's passing to be more effective than Ray Scussel's running in a fray that will lure 25,000 to the Bowl.

Georgia Preflight over Tulane: Pat Harder and Steve Filipowicz should entertain the 20,000 spectators but ruin the day for the Greenies.

Louisiana State over Texas Christian: Navy transfers removed four regulars and three subs from the T. C. U. roster—and Steve Van Buren still is operating for the Tigers.

Washington over Spokane Air Force: The Huskies to continue among the unbeaten elevens.

Holy Cross over Colgate: The Crusaders' wealth of backfield material to decide.

Texas over Southern Methodist: The Longhorns have it.

Cornell over Columbia: Everything happens to Columbia this year, except victory. Now Coach Lou Little is sick abed and won't be at Ithaca to guide his Lions.

Tulsa over Southwestern: This one would have been a thriller had Southwestern retained its Navy stars.

Purdue over Wisconsin: Badger foes have scored 109 points in the last three games and the deluge doesn't stop this week.

Iowa Preflight over Fort Riley: The Seahawks' officers get back into action in this one.

Princeton over Brown: Brown's Navy losses and Doc Savage's injury should tip this one toward the Tigers.

Oklahoma over Iowa State, the home field advantage deciding an important Big Six affair.

Finishing in a hurry: Wake Forrest over Clemson, North Carolina over North Carolina State, Vanderbilt over Milligan, Greenville Air Base over Maryland, Camp Davis over Camp Lejeune, Pittsburgh over Carnegie Tech, Great Lakes over Western Michigan, Missouri over Nebraska, Marquette over Denver, Kansas over Kansas State, Texas A. & M. over Arkansas, Texas Tech over Rice, March Field over St. Mary's Preflight, San Diego Naval over U. C. L. A., St. Mary's over San Francisco, Rutgers over Lehigh, Rochester over Case, Bucknell over Muhlenberg, Tufts over Coast Guard Academy and Penn State over West Virginia.

Silvestra Wins Queen Isabella 'Cap

Mare Scores 3d Straight By ½ Length

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Pimlico Race Track, Oct. 29.—Woolford Farm's veteran mare Silvestra raced to her third successive victory today to win the third renewal of the Queen Isabella Handicap, a transplanted Laurel feature.

Scratches reduced the field to five starters and in closest pursuit of Silvestra at the end of the mile and a furlong journey was Barbara Childs, a rejuvenated plater. Silvestra's margin of victory was a half length, while Barbara Childs headed Kanlast four lengths for second honors. O. K. Sugar was a distant rear guard.

In Deference to Mr. Widener

Among the declarations to the stake was Stefanita, overnight favorite. Owner George D. Widener ordered Stefanita declared out in deference to his uncle, the late Joseph E. Widener, who was buried today in Philadelphia.

Silvestra was an odds-on choice in the small field and her straight payoff was $3.70. The running time was 1:55 4-5, over a muddy track.

Silvestra, under Nick James, led from flag-fall to finish, but the 5-year-old daughter of Insco had to be ridden out through the last sixteenth to repel a bold challenge by the fast-closing Barbara Childs. The latter moved up to chase the winner at the head of the stretch and was closing in on the pacemaker with every jump.

10,000 Fans on Hand

Approximately 10,000 fans witnessed the program under ideal conditions.

The day's heavy money came in the third race when W. E. McDonald's Flying Duke, after campaigning on the smaller tracks, scored a surprise victory. The 6-year-old won by a length margin and forged the hanging out of a $178.90 mutuel, top individual price of the meeting. Apprentice W. Rudert rode him well and brought him home in front of Heloria and Arestino.

Two well-played horses figured in a $27 pay-off in the daily double. Rupaca Farms' Charge won the first event at $7.40 and Mrs. G. H. Ballou's Sunnytown proved a galloping winner in the second at $6.70.

Cape Cod has been assigned 120 pounds for the $5,000 added Janney Handicap on November 4 . . . This horse should be required to wear four bandages because it was with all legs wrapped that he ran his last disgraceful race . . . Thumbs Up is back working on the track after recovering from leg cuts and is likely to start in the Riggs Handicap. Pensive was scratched out of the Eastern Shore because of a bruised foot . . . Trainer George Mohr says the next start for Royal Prince, the Eastern Shore winner, will be in the Thomas K. Lynch Memorial . . . The son of Dauber could be 1944 Kentucky Derby timber . . . Dauber, by the way, stands at the Sagamore Farm. E. E. Fogelson bred Royal Prince and the colt is one of four sold for $2,000 . . . Apprentice Arnold Kirkland has a bruised leg but hopes to get back in action next week . . . Marlboro and Charles Town are going to get a lot of excellent horses if all the trainers ship who have been talking about it . . . No steeplechase today or tomorrow . . . No steeplechase Sunday, so why can't they make it Monday and always.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHARGE, $7.40, $4.80, $3.10; TRUE LASS, $6.50, $4.20; BULRUSHES, $2.90.

CHARGE was all slowly, improved position between horses, came through on rail to dispose of BULRUSHES and held on gamely in final drive. TRUE LASS was in thick of forward contention from start and came willingly in final test. BULRUSHES went to front at pace, set good pace, but weakened under pressure.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1200; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good for all but AIR WATCH. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 12:40. Off at 12:44. Winner, Mrs. G. H. Ballou's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUNNYTOWN, $6.70, $3.90, $3.30; ELCAN (entry), $36.00, $18.50; SAUCY SONG, $12.20.

SUNNYTOWN rushed between horses to take command leaving backstretch, drew out and won with speed in reserve. ELCAN was slow to begin, rallied in stretch and closed with good energy. SAUCY SONG was off slowly, came out for racing room and then bore out in final stages.

Daily Double, CHARGE and SUNNYTOWN, Paid $27.

THIRD RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1200. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 1:14½. Off at 1:15. Winner, W. E. McDonald's b. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLYING DUKE, $178.90, $42.90, $17.10; HELORIA (entry), $4.60, $3.00; ARESTINO, $4.20.

FLYING DUKE was not hurried for half, came between horses to improve position, came wide in stretch and wore down HELORIA to win going away. HELORIA went to front boldly leaving backstretch, shook off NEDDIE LASS, but could not resist winner. ARESTINO was sluggish early and came willingly in final stages.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 1:44½. Off at 1:44½. Winner, J. Tysowski's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FREELAND'S LAD, $20.00, $9.50, $5.20; CHICAGO DR., $4.20, $2.80; WILTON, $2.80.

FREELAND'S LAD was rated in the first flight, responded when shaken up and disposed of WILTON to win going away. CHICAGO DR. raced wide, responded when placed to pressure, but was held safe by winner. WILTON set good pace and was tiring at end.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $2500. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:14½. Off at 2:15. Winner, Greentree Stable's b. c. (2), by The Porter—Delight. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BROAD GRIN, $3.80, $2.60, $2.40; TAGEL, $3.50, $3.20; ALORAYE, $4.20.

BROAD GRIN, not hurried through opening quarter, moved into contention with a rush on backstretch, moved to leader several times and was going away at the end. TAGEL assumed lead at once, was well rated and failed to last despite showing a game effort. ALORAYE, well placed and saving ground throughout, was kept in close quarters by TAGEL in stretch run.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $7500 added; the Queen Isabella Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward; fillies and mares. Start good. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post at 2:45. Off at 2:45. Winner, Woolford Farm's gr. m. (5), by Insco—Pieche d'Argent. Trained by R. O. Higdon. Net value to winner, $6000; second, $1500; third, $750; fourth, $350. Time, 1:55⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SILVESTRA, $3.70, $2.40, out; BARBARA CHILDS, $3.00, out; KANLAST, out.

SILVESTRA took command at once without being extended, was well rated while setting pace and was never seriously threatened until final sixteenth, where she tired badly. BARBARA CHILDS, within striking distance throughout, was hard ridden in stretch run and was getting to winner. KANLAST saved ground while well placed, but weakened in final test. O. K. SUGAR trailed from start.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:16. Off at 3:16. Winner, M. Gilbert's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—COMPANY REST, $32.10, $10.40, $6.60; GINOCA (entry), $3.80, $2.60; BAYPORT, $4.30.

COMPANY REST, well handled while showing in front, responded to hard drive in closing test and just lasted while carrying GINOCA out. The latter, hard held while nearest leader, moved to even terms at eighth pole and then was outgamed while being carried wide. Thornburg's claim of foul was not allowed. BAYPORT, off in first flight, was shuffled back going to turn, worked way up gradually and showed good effort.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $2000. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:48. Off at 3:48½. Winner, J. W. Rodgers' b. c. DOVE PIE, allowed to settle into stride when badly outrun early, saved ground while bettering position and won in going-away fashion. ALQUEST, under restraint while in first flight, allowed HADAWIN and QUILLON to race each other into submission, but could not resist winner. QUILLON tired after taking lead from HADAWIN in stretch.

Five Named For Special At Pimlico

Baltimore, Oct. 29 (AP).—The weather, which dangled a cloud of uncertainty over the Pimlico Special all week, finally cleared today a few hours before five colts were named to compete in the $25,000 classic, and it appeared that three and possibly four would go to the post tomorrow.

A heavy favorite in the early odds was Greentree Stable's Shut Out, tenth largest money winner of all time and the leading 3-year-old of last season. Shut Out had been regarded as a doubtful starter all week, because of the condition of the track.

Overnight Nomination

Named overnight to run against Mrs. Payne Whitney's son of Equipoise in the mile and three-sixteenths, weight-for-age special were W. E. Boeing's Slide Rule, runner-up to Count Fleet for 3-year-old honors this year; Hal Price Headley's Anticlimax, Fairy Manhurst, from the Foxcatcher Farm Stables of William duPont, jr., and Eurasian, racing in the colors of Frank and Joe Rabinovich's Havahome Stable.

Shut Out and Anticlimax, both 4-year-olds, will carry 126 pounds and the other three 120.

The Greentree star was quoted in the overnight odds at 6-5, with Anticlimax the probable second choice at 5-2 if he starts.

Eurasian was held at 4-1, Slide Rule at 6-1 and Fairy Manhurst at 8-1.

Trainer Augustus "Sarge" Swenke chose tomorrow's card to start Alsab on another comeback attempt, naming Mrs. Albert Sabath's bargain colt to go to the post in tomorrow's $3500 Tom Ochiltree Handicap.

English passed to "Sonny" Settle on the 20 and Settle went over for the Lincoln Parkers' first 6 points.

Wilson countered with the same effectiveness early in the second period when Pearce Godfrey tossed Wilson's only two complete passes of the first half, the second of which went to Fullback "Stu" Brown on the 20, who chalked up the tying 6 points. Taking the ball early in the third period Eastern marched to two first downs on four plays to put the ball on the 4, where three line bucks failed, but a quarterback sneak by Mike Pappafotis registered the tally.

Final score for the Ramblers came after converted End Eddie Nicholson dropped back on his own 47 and heaved a 43-yard pass that bounced off the tips of Josh Dorsey and into the arms of Settle on the 107 who crossed the line unmolested.

YOU RATE HIGH WITH US, MISTER

Fifty years ago, Kann's catered almost entirely to women customers. They used to see to everything then, from papa's mustache cup to junior's bicycle clips. But these days we find that the male sex likes to cast its vote in person on such matters as the white collar problem or the derby-homburg decision.

We're all for it! Our Men's and Boys' Store is the proof. 100% masculine—even has its own entrances to keep you safe from ladies' lingerie en route. Here, you'll find everything you need from ties to topcoats, banjo shorts to banker's stripes, studs to suspenders—all chosen with the selective skill of Kann's long experience, and with the good taste only a man can appreciate.

If you've never visited our Men's and Boys' Store we hope you'll make it a point to do so soon—and let us show you how high you really rate with us.

How Apartment Helped Job Seeker Get Ahead

Editor's Note: Federal employes tell their stories in this column today.

WASHINGTON STORY

I came to Washington two weeks ago to look for a job and since that time I've wasted about 5 pounds of precious paper filling our Form 57a. My experiences would make a side-splitting movie. I've gathered enough stories to keep up a lively conversation for hours.

But the best of all happened yesterday. I was being interviewed by a prissy 20-year-old who took her responsibilities and authority very seriously. She asked me a number of questions and in her cold way she appeared to be the least bit encouraging. About that time another young girl came up and said to her: "Can you go now?"

The interviewer turned to me and asked if I would mind returning in an hour. I asked if it would be all right if I returned the following day, and I explained that I had an appointment to see an apartment and, as apartments were hard to find in this crowded city, it was definitely to my interest to keep it. The young lady changed completely.

"Apartment, did you say?" she inquired, and then she told me her story. This girl, this interviewer, told me in a confidential sort of way that she had been here only three weeks and she was looking for an apartment, too. She implied that I was her type and suggested that we share the apartment. She was certain then that I could have a job in her agency. (This was my first setback.)

The second girl who had overheard us talking said she was searching for an apartment, too, and she asked if she could "share" our apartment. (This was a second surprise.)

Since I had become a "chum" of the two girls in a matter of minutes they suggested that I join them in a coke and peanut crackers. This excursion to the lunch stand, it seems, was the reason why I had been asked to come back in an hour.

This was my third surprise and I was so overwhelmed by it all that we three girls spent a very pleasant half hour together and if I get the apartment I do believe I'll ask them to share it with me—if they don't move in first.

PENTAGON STORY

I've had two weeks work since September 1 in my War Department job. I took up the problem of my idleness with my chief who told me he had no control over the work but he was sure, he said, that we'd have more work than we could do eventually. I suggested resigning in my resignation but I was told I wouldn't be given a release.

At that point I called and asked your advice and you suggested that I go to the personnel office.

Well, I did. I told the personnel officer my story and it was obvious that he was antagonistic. Realizing I was wasting my time, I remarked that I had taken my problem up with someone outside the War Department and I had been urged to go to the personnel office. What I was really doing was making an excuse why I had bothered the Great Man.

This made the personnel officer furious. Problems of the War Department, he lectured me, must be settled within the department. He went on to say that it was hampering the war effort to take the problems to Congress or anyone else outside the organization. And then he warned if I repeated that course of action I'd be blackballed and I could never get another Government job.

P. S. Your advice is no good and I'll quit without the release. Editor's note: I'm sorry.

SECRETARY'S STORY

What has happened to the merit system?

In attempting to get a raise from $1800 to $2000 I find that I am confronted with the following situation:

I work for a section chief who is employed at $5600 and it seems that the secretaries employed by these men can receive no higher grade than $1800. I cannot, therefore, achieve $2000 until my supervisor is promoted to $6500. Merit alone probably won't help me, although I have two "excellent efficiency ratings." I might even be acclaimed the most efficient in my organization, but nevertheless I must wait until my supervisor is promoted.

There are several secretaries in this agency who came in after I did—in fact, I trained one of them in my section—and, through the promotion of their supervisors, have now attained the $2000 grade. They may be the most inefficient secretaries in the division, but nevertheless they advanced with their supervisor.

All of this does not seem fair and in accordance with the merit system. Certainly one who does excellent work, and who has been with an agency from the very beginning, should certainly be allowed to advance on her work alone and not be dependent on her supervisor's success. "MFT."

Teachers' Conference

The fourth Biannual Regional Conference for Elementary Schools will convene at Miner Teachers College today at 9 a. m. Gertrude Hildreth, professor of education at Columbia Teachers College, will be the principal speaker.

10th, Penn Cab Stand Is Abolished

One taxicab stand in the downtown section was abolished yesterday by order of the joint PUC-District Commissioner Board. The action came one day after a meeting of the taxi industry and the PUC to discuss citizen complaints that stands were not being used by drivers. Taxicab company officials then protested any elimination of the cab stands, particularly in the downtown area.

The stand abolished was located on the east side of 10th st. nw. near Pennsylvania ave. and was for the use of two cabs.

At the same time the board ordered a change in three Capital Transit bus routes during rush hours, as follows:

Route N-2: Buses designated for limited stop operation along Massachusetts ave. in the afternoon rush hour shall go directly along Massachusetts ave. to Ward Circle. Ordinarily the bus follows Cathedral ave., New Mexico ave. and Nebraska ave. before entering Ward Circle.

Route S-1: Buses inbound during the morning rush period shall not discharge passengers at stops east and north of Connecticut ave. and K st. nw. This will keep riders not going to Potomac Park from crowding out those traveling that far. S-2 and S-6 buses will accommodate those not using the express.

Route A-6: Buses carrying passengers west from the Anacostia-Congress Heights area shall not discharge passengers east and south of 12th st. and Constitution ave. nw. Those not able to use the express will be served by A-2, A-4 and A-6 buses.

On the Glover Park-Foxhall Village-Trinidad line a permanent change in the route at Union Station will stop operation on California st., a one block thoroughfare which officially is part of the Capitol grounds. Possibility of the Federal Government closing the street prompted the change.

Eastbound buses now will leave Union Station Plaza on 1st st., go east on 1st to F st., and then continue the old route. The same change will be made in the westbound trip.

Rodeo Cited For Using Rubber Tires

More troubles descended on the Larry Sunbrock Wild West and Rodeo Show last night.

One was the issuance of a bench warrant charging violation of an order from Justice F. Dickinson Letts, in District Court, which forbade the use of rubber-tired vehicles in stunt acts in the show at Uline's Arena.

Sunbrock was required to post $1500 bond for his appearance at a hearing Monday.

The other action was the filing of a plea for an injunction which would forbid the show's using the name of "The Lone Ranger," the phrases "Hi Yo Silver" and "Hi Yo Silver Away." This plea was filed by the Lone Ranger, Inc., of Detroit.

Uline Posts Bond

Miguel (Mike) Uline, proprietor of the arena, also was ordered to show cause why he should not be cited for contempt of court by allowing the show to continue. He posted $500 bond. The Uline Ice Co. also was cited in the show cause order.

Justice Letts on Wednesday issued an order on the show forbidding the use of rubber-tired vehicles in stunt acts, which, the order said, was a violation of Office of Defense Transportation regulations.

On Thursday two investigators from the District Attorney's office, T. I. Herlihy and George Robinson, attended the show and reported their continued use. District Attorney Edward M. Curran then issued the bench warrant.

In the plea for injunction the Lone Ranger, Inc., charged that they had spent considerable money building up the popularity of the Lone Ranger and that the Sunbrock Shows were advertising the Lone Ranger in such a way as to damage the Lone Ranger Co. The company said that the "Lone Ranger" was not with the shows and that efforts to use impersonations were destroying the air of mystery with which they had surrounded him.

On Friday and Saturday of last week steers belonging to the show escaped from their pens and roamed about the city.

Demotion Delayed Pending Trial

Justice F. Dickinson Letts issued an order restraining the District Commissioners and Police Superintendent Edward J. Kelly from demoting Detective Sergeant Robert J. Maghan to a private until the case is heard in court.

Maghan, through his attorney, James J. Laughlin, claims that he was never given a hearing but was demoted only with the word "for conduct unbecoming an officer."

The case is to be heard in court on November 2 and the demotion is suspended until November 8.

Fortas' Induction Delayed by Navy

A 30-day delay in the induction of Abe Fortas into the Navy has been ordered, Secretary Knox announced yesterday. Ths action in the case of the 32-year-old Undersecretary of the Interior was taken at the request of Secretary of Interior Ickes in order that Fortas may complete a special assignment for the Government on which he is now working, Knox said.

Police Shoot One

Dogs Bite Four More In District

Four more persons reported yesterday they had been bitten by dogs and District police shot a brown and white mongrel, believed to have been poisoned.

The victims who were bitten by dogs were William L. McEwan, 9, of 4623 43rd pl. nw.; Mrs. Thieda Luber, 43, of 613 Fourth st. se.; Police Pvt. Reed P. Maughan, 30, of 100 Rosemary Lane, Falls Church, Va.; Anthony Easterling, 53, who is connected with the Naval Air Station.

The McEwan child was given first aid by the police for a bite on his right wrist received while he was playing with a group of children on the Janney School playground at 4100 Wisconsin ave. nw. Mrs. Luber was bitten on the right hand by a stray dog near her home. She was treated at Providence Hospital.

Private Maughan, while on duty at 22nd and N sts. nw., saw a dog shaking in the gutter. Believing the dog to have been struck by a car, he went over to help it and was bitten on the left hand. He was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Easterling was bitten on the right hand while walking by 1123 9th st. nw. An airedale in the yard of the 9th st. address knocked down the fence and attacked Easterling, who was treated at Sibley Hospital.

Pvts. Melvin Coner and Robert Weaver of the Thirteenth Precinct, answering a call to the rear of 145 Adams st. nw., found a brown and white dog apparently poisoned and shot it. Several persons said they had seen the dog around the neighborhood at different times.

Fake Police Operate Here In Shakedowns

Assistant United States Attorney Bernard Margolius warned yesterday that citizens should beware of bogus policemen here who, he said, are approaching innocent persons and accusing them falsely of crime in order to extort money from them.

There are two indictments charging this offense outstanding here now against men in prison in New York, where they engaged in the same racket. Margolius said that several complaints on this action have reached his office recently.

Margolius asserted that "shakedown artists" are habitues of bus terminal cafes and are also approaching easy targets on the street. The pattern, he said, is generally that a man shows a badge, accuses a citizen of some crime, then offers to let the accused out on bond pending trial and accepts money for the bond. One man, according to Margolius, was able to receive $3000 in one night here.

The practice was brought to light yesterday when John J. Lamp, 30, was ordered extradited in District Court to Massachusetts to face a charge of impersonating an officer. Lamp was released Monday from Lorton Reformatory, where he served one year and a half on an extortion charge. In Massachusetts, he faces charges of having posed as a policeman in an attempt to get $10,000 from a businessman.

Market Concern Sues to Restrain OPA Suspension

The Country Garden Markets, Inc., of Arlington, Va., filed suit in District Court yesterday to prevent the Office of Price Administration from carrying out an order suspending operation of the stores for 15 days.

Attorneys Frank Ball and Albert Brick told the court for the company that OPA's administrative penalties are unconstitutional in that only the State and Federal courts have power to pass judgment.

An agreement was noted between attorneys that the suspension order, which was scheduled to take effect on November 1, be stayed until after the case is decided. The hearing date is November 18.

Halloween Celebrations Start Tonight

Although official observance of Halloween will be held tomorrow, the holiday of spooks and witches will be celebrated with widespread joviality in Washington tonight by fun-loving adults as well as more youthful pranksters.

Yesterday's brisk business at counters displaying grotesque "false faces," costumes and noisemakers indicated that countless District residents will forget the cares of wa in the type of foolishness indulged in on only one night in the year.

District Police announced that innocent pranks will be permitted but warned against deliberate mischief. Police officers will be out in force tonight with instructions to watch for window-soapers, ash-can dumpers, hose cutters and other celebrants with a penchant for destruction.

Dances for the Services

A series of holiday entertainments for the week-end was opened last night for the grown-ups as well as children. The opening dance event for men stationed in Washington and surrounding territory was held last night at Thomson Recreation Center, 12th and L sts. nw., with music by the U. S. Navy Yard School of Music Dance Orchestra. It was sponsored by the District Recreation Department's Woman's Battalion. Another was a dance at WAVE headquarters at 18th and G sts. nw.

A dance for service men and women will be held tonight at the USO Club, 1911 H st. nw. A highlight of the entertainment will be a square dance to be called by Miss Barbara Feiker.

Filipino Dance

The Filipino Executive Council will celebrate Halloween with a dance tonight at Hotel 2400. Osmundo Reynante, director of the social and literary department of the council, is chairman of the arrangements.

Residents of Georgetown, Glover Park and Burleith will join in a sectional Halloween celebration at 7:30 p. m. tonight at Gordon Junior High School. A parade will start at 28th and M sts. nw., at 6:30 p. m. and proceed to the school. In the line of march will be groups from Stoddert, Georgetown and Montrose playgrounds, the Georgetown Girls' Club, Boys' Club of Washington and the Georgetown Children's House.

The Texas Society of Washington will celebrate in the grand ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel and the Washington Temple Youth Group will sponsor a "gremlin ball" at 8:30 p. m. tonight in the vestry room at 8th and I sts. nw.

Walter D. Avery Co. Gets Contract for Camp Springs Job

Two contracts totaling $800,000 for construction work at the Army Fighter Base at Camp Springs, in Prince Georges County, Army officials reported yesterday.

One contract for $400,000 was awarded to the Walter D. Avery Construction Co. of Washington for the building of temporary frame structures to be used as barracks.

The second, for approximately the same amount, went to the Larkin Co. of Camp Hill, Pa., for the construction of roads, runways, taxiways, aprons and parking areas at the base.

No further details were given.

Peanut Butter Prices Cut Back

Prices on peanut butter were rolled back 6½ to 7 cents per pound yesterday by the Office of Price Administration and should begin to reach the retail level about November 11, the agency said.

The rollback was made possible by a subsidy of 4½ cents a pound paid by the Commodity Credit Corporation. Since the Government is sole owner of the peanut crop, the subsidy will not necessitate payment checks but means the CCC will release quotas to manufacturers at lower prices.

The average price of peanut butter when the rollback takes effect will be 26.5 cents per pound, rather than 33.1 cents, OPA said.

Victory Sidelights

Auto Users Warned of Long Period Without Replacements

Civilian car owners who are neglecting proper care and driving of their automobiles now must face the "probability" that it will be many years after the war before they can buy new replacements, T. E. Allen, director of the car service division of the American Automobile Association, declared yesterday.

Speaking before a group of women instructors for Red Cross and AWVS Motor Corps who received graduation certificates after an intensive course in motor mechanics and maintenance, Allen pointed out that some 37 million car owners, including demobilized servicemen, will want to buy automobiles that "will not be on the market." The "automotive picture," he said, "is not cheerful, and we must conserve what we have."

The graduates, including a lone man, Kenneth Williams of 1332 Massachusetts ave. nw., who will instruct civilians in safe driving are:

Marian Anderson, 4508 Burlington rd., Hyattsville; Mrs. T. H. Andrews, 4409 Fairfield dr., Bethesda; Mildred Le Blake, 3217 N. Pershing dr., Arlington; Frances P. Bowles, 2704 Cameron Mills rd., Alexandria; Mrs. Theresa Carmody, 1316 New Hampshire ave.; Pauline M. Charron, 6202 44th ave., West Riverdale.

Mrs. Patricia T. Cheney, 2231 California st. nw.; Margaret H. Dudley, 116 Park ave., Takoma Park; Anna Lee F. Goldsborough, 3119 Belleview ave., Cheverly; Irene Butterfield Goodwin, 109 Brookside dr., Kenwood; Mrs. Irving P. Hall, Horseshoe Point, Annapolis; Margaret D. Handy, 223 Duke of Gloucester st., Annapolis.

Ethel M. Hilferty, 6203 43rd st., Riverdale; Ruth Y. Ivers, 612 Fern pl. nw.; Mrs. Clifton H. Luce, 3 W. Grove dr., Alexandria; Mrs. Edna M. Pottle, Carvel Hall, Annapolis; Blanche Horner Rowley, 911 S. st., Aseph St., Alexandria.

Navy Awards Ceremony

The Navy Meritorious Civilian Service Award will be made today at noon to 80 or 90 employes of contractors working at the Patuxtent Naval Air Station. Comdr. D. B. Ventres USNR, will make the presentations at a ceremony at Cedar Point, Md.

Tuberculosis Study

As the basis for an accelerated program to eliminate tuberculosis, the District Health Education Committee of the Tuberculosis Association has recommended a survey to determine the extent of public knowledge of the disease, it was announced yesterday. Previous surveys have been inadequate, it said.

Driver Held For Action of Grand Jury

A coroner's jury yesterday ordered Lawrence Collitt, 3003 Longfellow st., Queen Chapel Manor, Md., held for the grand jury under the Negligent Homicide Act in the death of Matthew Byrnes, 72, of 4923 North Capitol st., who was Washington's sixty-ninth traffic fatality.

Byrnes died Wednesday at Gallinger Hospital of injuries suffered early Sunday when he was struck at New Hampshire ave. and Gallatin st. nw., by a Capital Transit Co. bus, operated, police said, by Collitt.

Mrs. Ethel Jackson, 54, of 1126 4th st. se., was still in serious condition at Providence Hospital last night from injuries suffered when she was struck Thursday by a Capital Transit Co. bus on the crosswalk at 4th and M sts. se. Police said the bus was operated by Olin Harold, 33, of 1014 18th st. ne.

OPA Suspends Firm's Sales For 90 Days

Stanley Horner Gasoline, Inc., Fourth st. and Florida ave. ne., was suspended by the District OPA hearing commissioners yesterday from making gasoline sales for 90 days, with the agreement that should the company submit an approved method for making up the coupon shortage of which it is charged the suspension will be held in abeyance.

The gasoline dealer, through Attorney Walter B. Guy, admitted two of six charges of coupon shortages of the OPA, but said the management was not aware of the shortage at the time and would take immediate steps to remedy the situation. The firm is required to submit its plan of correction to OPA Enforcement Attorney Carl W. Berueffy within two weeks.

Cases of the Square Deal Market Co., 1420 7th st. nw.; F. Ross, grocer at 919 4th st. nw., and Max Rabnowitz, 1310 7th st. nw., were continued by Commissioner Clifford Snider, who said he was noting proposals for consent decrees of short suspensions.

Also contiuued was the case of Andrew J. Dargan, of Rargan's Restaurant, 3947 Minnesota ave. ne. All were charged with violations of rationing regulations.

TWA Would Link Capital to London

Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., applied yesterday to the Civil Aeronautics Board to establish an air route between the United States and Cairo, Egypt.

Permission also was sought to link Washington, New York, Boston, Chicago and Detroit—the American terminals of the proposed route—with London and Paris, via the Azores.

Sinfonietta Premiere Played With Spirit by WPB Orchestra

Division of Personnel Management (Recreation Unit) presents the War Production Board Orchestra on Friday night in Social Security Auditorium. Conductor: Van Lier Lanning. Program: Overture to "Ruy Blas" (Mendelssohn), Quintet from Act III "Die Meistersinger" (Wagner), Sinfonietta (Diehn), Prelude to "Le Deluge" (Saint-Saens), "Danse Macabre" (Saint-Saens) Overture-fantasia, "Romeo and Juliet" (Chaikovski).

By Ray C. B. Brown

Usually spicing his program with something unfamiliar, Van Lier Lanning presented a mint-new composition at last evening's concert by the War Production Board Orchestra and at the same time honored a resident composer who has recently become an American citizen. It was the premiere of a sinfonietta by Ludwig Diehn, a native of Singapore, musically trained in Germany, who at the age of 33 already has four symphonies and other works to his credit. According to a program note, the three-movement little symphony was originally written as a sonata for piano and violin and later revised into its present dimensions.

In the expanded form, the sinfonietta sounds more like reinforced chamber music than an orchestral utterance, for the fundamental ideas remain more intimate than oracular. They have been clothed in brighter instrumental colors without undergoing a parallel change in their inherent lyrical nature. One surmises that some of the alterations, such as the deliberately discordant phrase of the trumpets that cuts through the fabric of the slow introduction, were made for modernistic effect. The music is thematically attractive, particularly in the poetic adagio, and most of the harmonization is conservative. One enjoyed this first meeting with a composer who writes with imagination and intelligence, expresses himself with ardency and leaves an impression of sincerity.

The concert opened with the overture that Mendelssohn wrote on commission from the Theatrical Pension Fund of Leipzig for a performance of Victor Hugo's "Ruy Blas." When one considers that the composer thought the subject of the drama "loathsome," he certainly dissembled his feeling remarkably in the overture that he dashed off in three days. The music is a very successful recapitulation of the Hugo brand of romanticism; it has the cloak-and-sword swagger and the histrionic tone.

A variation from the usual Wagnerian excerpt was offered in a transcription of the vocal quintet from the third act of "Die Meistersinger." Other items on the program were Saint-Saens' "Danse Macabre" and prelude to "Le Deluge" and Chaikovski's "Romeo and Juliet" fantasia. The orchestra of 70, whose members vary in age from the 'teens to the sixties, played with commendable spirit and showed progressive coherence.

Effort to Bribe WPB Official Costs Salesman $3000 Fine

Charles Egon Kerpen, 40, a New York salesman, was fined $3000 and given a 6-to-18-month suspended jail sentence after pleading guilty in District Court to giving a WPB official $2000 as an attempted bribe.

Kerpen's attorney asked Justice Edward C. Eicher of District Court to apply the $2000 bribe as part of the fine. This Justice Eicher refused to do and Charles B. Murray, Assistant U. S. Attorney, said the money would be given to the Treasury.

Kerpen then went into the clerk's office, where he paid the fine with three $1000 bills.

Kerpen, who sold tire patches and auto parts, was informed in June by Seymour Martin, WPB official, that charges of irregularities in the sale of rubber goods would be preferred. FBI men arrested Kerpen while he was in the act of giving an envelope containing the bribe to Martin in Union Station on July 1.

Justice Eicher sentenced John King, 43, Negro, to one to three years imprisonment on charges of housebreaking and larceny. King was arrested on the same day that he was relased from jail on another charge.

Justice David A. Pine imposed a one-to-three-year sentence on Joseph L. Mundy, 33, Negro, for housebreaking and larceny. Howard Cockrill, 30, Negro, was given two to six months for writing numbers.

Kaiser Again Wins Production Award

The Oregon Shipbuilding Corp. of Portland, Oreg., managed by Edgar Kaiser, chalked up another first in ship production yesterday by winning the Maritime Commission's Gold Wreath.

Awarded for the first time, the wreath indicates that the shipyard has delivered Liberty ships from all its ways in less than 105 days from keel-laying to delivery for 22 consecutive times. The wreath is awarded in place of a second gold eagle and will be placed around the original eagle on the "M" pennant.

Future Use Urged For Paper Saved

New York, Oct. 29 (AP).—A proposal that newspapers voluntarily saving newsprint paper in November and December be permitted to use an equal amount during the first quarter of 1944 without restriction was announced today by the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

The ANPA said H. M. Brittner, director of the printing and publishing division of the War Production Board, had approved the plan and was recommending it to top WPB executives.

Mergner Held For Grand Jury Action

Fred C. Mergner, 44-year-old widower accused of the murder of Mrs. Charlotte Robinson, was ordered held for the grand jury by a coroner's jury at an inquest yesterday, although the lone witness to the crime Monday night was unable to identify him.

Mrs. Grace Lucas of 631 A st. ne., who said she chanced upon a man trying to stuff a woman down a manhole at 7th and A sts. ne. Monday night, was unable to identify Mergner as the same man but said she recognized him only from newspaper pictures, printed after his arrest.

Mergner, who is the father of five children who are heirs to a half-million-dollar estate, appeared at the inquest without an attorney. He asked no questions of the witnesses although he was asked, as each finished testifying, if he wished to question the witness.

Offered Chance to Talk

Nor did he defend himself of the charge of murder brought against him when, near the end of the inquest, Coroner MacDonald said, "Although you are not represented by an attorney, you may speak in your own defense. However, you must realize anything you say can be used against you. Do you wish to make a statement?"

"No sir," was Mergner's only answer.

The accused murderer sat stolidly throughout the inquest, showing signs of nervousness only toward the end when a report was made of the autopsy on the dead woman.

Asked Detective To Call

Most of the testimony of the witnesses was a mere repetition of that given to police earlier in the week.

The only new testimony offered was that of Inspector Robert Barrett, who said that Mergner had called him Tuesday morning while he was out working on the case. He said Mergner had left a message with the clerk asking him to call "Fred" about a very important matter and leaving his telephone number. Inspector Barret did not get the message until that afternoon after he returned from questioning Mergner at the Tenth Precinct station.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Robinson's body, which lay unclaimed at District Morgue since the tragedy, was removed to the P. J. Saffel funeral home, 475 H st. nw. Funeral arrangements had not been completed last night.

Troupers to Solve Housing Shortage With Park Tents

If the G. I. boys can do it, roomshort members of the "Sons o' Fun" cast figure they can do it, too—so on Monday morning they will begin pitching tents in Post Square, they said last night.

Moving in with Washington's most select group of starlings will be 12 or 15 of the boys and girls of the chorus, who will tent out across the street from the National Theater, where the Olsen and Johnson musical will appear for the next two weeks. Permission has been granted by District officials.

The AWVS will set up a booth nearby to sell bonds to the curious.

City News In Brief

No one has yet claimed or identified the 2-month-old boy found abandoned in a carriage in the basement of a downtown 10-cent store October 25. While officers of the Women's Bureau are still trying to locate the man who was seen trundling the child in the topless carriage in a pouring rain, Gallinger Hospital staff members reported the boy is doing very well.

Fire Razes Gas Station

A fire started by an oil stove destroyed the Home Oil Co. gasoline station at 1704 Benning rd. ne. and sent a Negro employe to Gallinger Hospital shortly after noon yesterday.

Police report that Grant Carpenter, Negro, 20, of 916 19th st. ne., was taken to the hospital for treatment of multiple burns received when he attempted to scrub the floor of the station with gasoline, which was ignited by a small oil stove used to heat the building. Hospital officials say Carpenter's condition is critical. No. 10 Engine company prevented the flames from reaching a quantity of gasoline stored nearby, but was unable to save the brick and stucco building, which was wrecked.

Say It With Sweaters!

By Ruth Gregory

In spite of the wool shortage, there is an abundance of fine sweaters in the stores from which to choose.

FOR THE GIRL:

Imported cashmere sweaters, 100% wool, haven't been the easiest things to find, but we discovered a fine stock of them in one of the F st. stores. Sleeveless styles (around $9), long sleeve pull-overs and cardigans (from $10 to about $13). Beautiful colors, from pastels to deep shades, and wonderfully soft and downy. A perfect gift for schoolgirl or career girl.

FOR THE BOY:

The same store has a fine assortment of all-wool plaid sweaters which will brighten the life of any school boy. Finely-blended color patterns, in a variety of rich tones. The sleeveless ones are about $5 and the long-sleeved are under $7.

If you want to make his an extra-special gift, you might throw in a pair of imported wool socks, in colors that'll match up with the sweater. About $3.50.

FOR THE WOMAN:

Here's one of the nicest we've seen for the woman of mature figure—a fitted coat sweater, woven out of soft chenille yarn (50% wool and 50% rayon). It comes in a whole spectrum of colors and is available all the way from misses sizes up to 44. About $9.

FOR THE MAN:

This is a repeat. We mentioned this sweater before for the same reasons we've included it here—it's one of the best values in a man's sweater we've found. An all-wool cardigan in sizes up to 46 for under $7 deserves rehashing. This one comes in blue heather, navy, oxford gray, and a beige-brown shade. It's our suggestion for father, husband, uncle.

Incidentally, if you're adept with the knitting needles, why not get busy right now and whip up a sweater or two. You'll find good yarn stocks vailable in the stores.

Women's Club News

By Genevieve Reynolds

There's enough dynamite in town to change the whole course of history. Much of it is all bundled up in three energetic, dynamic Latin American feminists. They are Senora Alicia de Troncoso, wife of the former President of the Dominican Republic and mother to the present Ambassador, Dr. J. M. Troncoso; Senora Blancharie Baralt, mother-in-law of Dr. Mariano Brull, Counselor of the Cuban Embassy, and Senora Serafine de Toro, whose husband, Gen. David T. Toro, was president of Bolivia.

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

All three met for the first time at the American Newspaper Women's Club luncheon meeting Thursday, honoring Mrs. Roosevelt. No doubt in the next few days they will get together to compare notes and reminiscences. Senora de Troncoso now is chairman of the Permanent Commission of Women which was established by the first Congress of Women in the Dominican Republic. Hers is a story of stamina and fight for the women of her country.

Senora de Baralt, poet laureate of Cuba, although she's a New Yorker by birth, is outstanding not only in her adopted country, but South America, Europe and the United States, as well.

When Senora de Toro returns to her native Bolivia she expects to take up the fight for women's equal rights there. While she sympathized with the feminists, there, as first lady she could take no active part.

Srta. Bernardino, Too

No list of outstanding feminist leaders would be complete without the name of Senorita Minerva Bernardino, chairman of the Inter-American Commission of Women, who also hails from the Dominican Republic. It was only last week that she moved up from vice chairman to chairman of the commission. Senora Anna Rosa de Guerrero of Argentina withdrew from the commission as its chairman. Could that have political implication?

Incidentally, other distinguished guests at the Newspaper club's luncheon which boasted the wives of two former presidents of Latin-American Republics, Senora de Troncoso and Senora de Toro as well as our own First Lady, were the sister in law of Queen Elizabeth of England, the Honorable Mrs. Bowes-Lyon, Senora de Gauchalla, wife of the Bolivian Ambassador; Mrs. Robert Brennan, wife of the Minister from Ireland; Mrs. Sean Nunan, wife of the Counselor of the Irish Legation; Mrs. William H. Standley, wife of the former U. S. Ambassador to Russia; Mrs. Tom Connally, wife of Senator Connally, and Mrs. Ralph Brewster.

Back Health Group

The District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs joined with the public health committee in asking that both sides of the Gallinger Hospital controvery be heard in Congress.

The War Area Child Care bill was indorsed by the federation. Also indorsed was the Equal Rights Amendment.

Mrs. Carlton Duffus, chairman of the ambulance plane committee, gave the committee's final report over $445.000 worth of War Bonds sold and allocated for the purchase of three ambulance planes.

Mrs. Tilman Bacon Parks, chairman of American Citizenship, urged the members to bring gifts for the Christmas party for the veterans at Mount Alto.

A State federation pin is to be purchased, and is to be worn by the president during her administration.

Five dollars was appropriated for a Bible to be sent to some United States soldier now a prisoner of war.

A Way to Help

Are you willing to give some time to an unglamorous job to help win the war? There'll be no uniform except an old smock or apron. You may get paint on your fingers and your back may ache from running the sewing machine. But what's that if you're making some soldiers happier? It's work that pays its dividends in the satisfaction of knowing that you have definitely done something to ease the loneliness and bring a little cheer into the lives of the men in service who are pouring into the camps and hospitals around Washington, some for a brief stop, others for indefinite periods.

The Army does its best to give them shelter, food and clothing. But there's no time to add "trimmings." That's where the Red Cross Work Room at 3120 O st. comes into the picture. Here donated furniture has its face lifted and goes out gay and bright. But right now this work room is desperately in need of volunteers to help in this rejuvenation. To make curtains, slipcovers, paint furniture, sort books and records. Just come over and see for yourself. Or, telephone REpublic 8300, extension 422.

Ballerina Tells How to Develop Figure

By Ida Jean Kain

My nomination this week for the girl with the most gorgeous figure in our part of the world is Mia Slavenska, the famous and beautiful ballerina. Her specifications will tell you why: Bust, 33 inches; waist, 23½ inches; hips, 34 inches; thigh, 19 inches; calf, 13½ inches; ankle, 7½ inches. And the beauty of it is, she is normal weight for her height; 117 pounds for 5 feet 3.

Mia's measurements conform almost exactly to the Hollywood standard for streamlines. According to this standard, the wrist measurement is the basis for all the others. The waist should be four and one-fourth times as large, the hips six times, the chest above the bust five and one-half times, the thigh three and one-half times, the calf two and one-fourth times, and the ankle one and one-fourth times the size of the wrist.

Our lovely ballerina has calf and ankle measurements more fully developed than the Hollywood standard allows, but they are still beautifully tapered. If your legs are too skinny, you couldn't do better than take up ballet. And if your legs are too heavy, you might at least try this tip of Mia's. She wears woolen tights—in the ballet world they're called "gamache"—for all her practice. She knits them herself, of 100 per cent wool. You might, at least, try woolen stockings with your leg-stretching exercises!

If your figure is the average, the waistline is the measurement most in need of slimming and also the most easily reduced. The upward arm flinging, stretching, twisting and bending a ballerina does for art, you can do for exercise. This does more than reduce the waist. It also firms and molds the bust. Mia never wears a brassiere—she thinks that is what muscles are for!

But even though you have perfect measurements, you can ruin the effect by slumping. This dancer has such a graceful carriage that I wanted the secret. She says to let the muscles from the waist down do the work.

Carry yourself tall but keep your shoulders relaxed. The minute you have tension through your shoulders, you become awkward. And one of the first rules in keeping the shoulders relaxed, Mia says, is to keep the hands relaxed, because tension from the hands spreads up your arms and into your shoulders.

Children's Bureau Issues Pamphlet

The Children's Bureau, United States Department of Labor, has just issued a pamphlet, "A Maternity Policy for Industry." The bureau's recommendations on such subjects as staying on the job during pregnancy, periodic check-ups, maternity leave before and after the baby is born and the importance of adjusting the job to the strength of the individual are included.

The pamphlet may be obtained without cost by writing the Children's Bureau, United States Department of Labor, Washington 25, D. C.

Martha Ellyn's Platter Chatter

When you have left-over meat and vegetables you can fashion a meat roll which will make the diners think that every morsel of food contained in it is fresh from the market. This dish is the one for which the recipe is given today utilizing left-over foods.

Food conservation is a reality in every home. No one can conscientiously discard one morsel of leftover food who has a whit of interest in the country's welfare. But beyond it being a patriotic duty to utilize every morsel of food, it is also interesting adventure to make something delicious out of very little.

Martha Ellyn

Anyone who has ever pieced a number of little pieces together to make a crazy quilt, or knitted an afghan from bits of yarn, gets pleasure from making a finished product from the bits of material. Just so it is when a cook uses bits of food to make a flavorsome dish.

The mild, sweet flavor and goodness of dairy products makes them ideal foods to extend and put together bits of foods. Meat, fish, eggs and cereal products, as well as vegetables, combine well with a creamy white sauce to make countless appetizing main dishes. And since dairy products are not on the list of abundant foods, it is extremely important that none should be wasted.

Take good care of all of the milk you buy. Keep it clean, covered and stored in the coldest part of the refrigerator and away from strong-odored foods. And do not allow milk to stand at room temperatures for long periods of time during meal preparation.

A smooth white sauce made of milk, butter, flour and seasonings can be used to hold a mixture of left-overs together. But be sure to make creamy, smooth white sauce—no lumps allowed.

Here is a dinner pattern in which Meat Roll with Creamed Vegetables is the main dish. This dish can be made with left-over meat and vegetables.

Look into your refrigerator before you make up your shopping list. Perhaps you will need to buy only the ¾ pound of meat needed to make the meat roll. You may have enough vegetables. Or if you have left-over meat you may need to buy only a few vegetables. Here is the recipe for the meat roll with vegetables:

MEAT ROLL WITH VEGETABLES

Melt 1 tablespoon butter or meat drippings in a skillet. Add ¾ pound of fresh ground beef or its equivalent in ground left-over meat. Next add 1½ tablespoons chopped onion and 1 tablespoon chopped green pepper. Saute until the meat is browned. Add 1 teaspoon salt, stir well and cool. Combine ½ cup of white sauce with meat mixture. Roll out biscuit dough on a floured board, to a rectangular shape about 1/3 inch thick. Spread cooled meat mixture over the dough and roll up like a jelly roll. Cut roll in 1 inch slices, bake on a baking sheet in hot oven, 425 degrees, about 18 minutes, or until golden brown. Add 3½ cups cooked vegetables to 2 cups of white sauce and serve hot over the baked meat rolls. Serves 6.

Smith Club Meets Today

Roy Veatch, head of the international relations division of the Office of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation, will speak on "Shall We Feed the World?" at the annual fall luncheon of the Smith College Club of Washington at 12:45 p. m. today at the YWCA. His talk will be followed by a question and discussion period. Veatch, who will play an important part in the international conference on foreign relief and rehabilitation to be held here in November, is well qualified to talk on this subject.

All Smith alumnae in Washington are urged to attend the luncheon whether or not they are members of the club, and it was voted at a recent meeting of the executive committee to extend complimentary membership to all alumnae who are members of the armed services.

Your Baby And Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Despite the opposition every parent must accept the results of impersonal, objective research that too early training often is responsible for the older child's violent opposition to toilet controls, at an age when he is well able to manage them.

Any mother, by personal diligence, can cut down the number of baby's diapers daily. But, later, if the child refuses to heed her demands, she has not been successful, however successful she may have considered her training of the small baby.

Wetting is purely involuntary in the young child, so that one is not getting cooperation from the child but is merely advertising one's own efforts when one keeps the child dry by frequent attentions. Some children are more tractible, some develop toilet habits more easily, so that some mothers might get excellent results from early training. But advice is for the majority not the minority.

The obvious disadvantage of too early training is that small children cannot exert personal control. By the second year, when they can, they are bored with the many demands made upon them to be good boys or girls and stay dry.

This is the negativistic age and this weapon of opposition toward the parent's demands is used ruthlessly. It is their rich opportunity to be personalities with only the small effort of being wet instead of being dry, of soiling themselves as they please and when they please instead of heeding the dictates of the parent.

Naturally every parent will be conscientious about giving attention and will make use of regular habits as an aid to cleanliness. But she won't expect personal cooperation from the child until well in the second year and then will have some chance of achieving it.

Our leaflet "Types of Stools," suggests the usual training procedure. Send a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Speech Difficulties Aided In Clinics on Languages

By Logan Clendenning, M.D

Different forms of speech difficulties in children have become so frequent that in many large cities the board of education has instituted a language clinic where they can be studied and where the exact nature of their difficulties can be assessed. It is from the report of one of these clinics that I abstract the following high points in their experience.

Speech is a very complicated function. It depends for one thing on accurate hearing. As well as upon sound vocal organs.

Then it depends on good vision in reading, for much more of our speech than we are aware is but an imitation of our reading. Finally it requires relative mental maturity—not only the content, but the tone and form of the speech is a reflection of the mental status.

Diagnosis Takes Time

When a child is brought to the language clinic the task of diagnosis is usually a long drawn out one. Parents who bring a child to the clinic about two weeks before the opening of school do not realize how far from simple the situation is.

Parents of the late talkers are usually apprehensive about the child's intelligence, but only a very small proportion of cases are found to have defects of that kind. It is much more frequently due to a defect of hearing. This goes unsuspected because the child does not know how much he is expected to hear, having no standard of comparison. The mother will say the child hears all right because he responds to commands.

That may be true and still a great deal of hearing is lost in the high frequency range—this excludes a number of consonants such as s, sh, t, th, f v, from the child's hearing. They are unable to reproduce speech they cannot hear, and their speech is quite unintelligible. This group is quite hopeful from the standpoint of treatment.

Stutterers and Stammerers

The stutterers and stammerers are a large group. In these there is almost without exception no defect of the hearing, intelligence or speech organs and to explain them we have to fall back on theory. The theory held in most clinics is that they are in reality, or potentially, left-handed. The speech center is on the left side of the brain in right-handed people: probably left-handed people are right-brained. But why that makes them stutter is something that involves a great deal of shaky theorizing.

Organic difficulties which are seldom thought of by the parents include faulty alignment of teeth. A tonsillectomy or throat operation may during the period of soreness make the child hold its palate in a rigid manner with a consequent speech defect that becomes habitual.

The language clinc approach to this old problem holds out great hopefulness.

Reception at Turkish Embassy Celebrates Independence Day

Ambassador and Mme. Ertegun Welcome Several Hundred Guests at Fete

By Marie McNair

To be able to say it's our "Independence Day" celebration, and mean it, is something of an accomplishment, these days, when the whole world is at war struggling to defend or destroy the meaning of the words.

That's just what the Turkish Ambassador and Mme. Ertegun said but couched in more formal phrasing when they issued engraved invitations to a reception to celebrate the twentieth anniversary of the Proclamation of Independence of the Turkish Republic on October 29.

So-o- there was real cause for rejoicing yesterday, and the friends of the hosts, two of the most popular members of the Diplomatic Corps, turned up in shoals to celebrate the event.

The Turkish Embassy is spacious, with one room opening into another, but as six o'clock rolled around there wasn't an inch of space to be found anywhere. Around the long buffet table in the dining room with its centerpiece of red and white flowers, clustered chattering groups, many of them surrounding the Saudi Arabian Princes—their Royal Highnesses Amir Faisal and Amir Khalid, just back for another visit after a tour of the country, picturesque figures in their sheer brown and white robes, their gold trimmed burnooses.

Archbishop Is An Arresting Figure

At the bar where champagne filled one glass after another there was another milling mob and in the frescoed ballroom with its handsome carved wood paneling another buffet table was set up with another bar and here too, guests gathered for conversation and food.

Catching the eye almost immediately in the throng was the Archbishop of the Greek Orthodox Church, down from New York for the fete, a striking figure with a fine face in long black robes, a black miter resting on his gray hair and a graying beard reaching almost to the waist.

There were easily 500 guests asked to this pleasant party, including the members of the Diplomatic Corps, the congressional circle, the Judiciary, Army and Navy and a large group from resident society with which the hostess is particularly popular.

Glimpsed here and there were the British Ambassador, Viscount Halifax, just back from England; Senora de Michels, wife of the Chilean Ambassador; the Yugoslav Ambassador, Constantin Fotitch, and from the Embassy staff, Vladimir Rybar, Counselor, and Mme. Rybar. The Greek Ambassador and Mme. Diamantopoulos were there; so too were the Guatemalan Ambassador and Senora de Recinos, the Honduran Ambassador and Senora de Caceres, the Nicaraguan Ambassador, Dr. Guillermo Sevilla Sacasa, without his pretty wife, the former Lillian Somoza; the Portuguese Minister and Mme. de Bianchi, and the Irish Minister, Robert Brennan, not often lured to a party these days.

Thailand Minister There With Wife

Then there were the Egyptian Minister and Mme. Hassan Walter de Bourg, Counselor of the Swiss Legation; the Minister of Iran and Mme. Shayesteh and the Thailand Minister and tiny Mme. Pramoj.

The friendly French delegation at the fete included Mme. Bethouart, wife of General Bethouart; Admiral and Mme. Fenard, Mme. Georges-Picot and the former Premier of France, Camille Chautemps and Mme. Chautemps.

Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley and Mrs. Joseph E. Davies were two of the prettiest women there and outstanding also in beauty were Baroness Stackelberg who was with Baron Stackelberg and her aunt, Mrs. Martin Vogel; and blonde Miss Jane Culbertson, with her parents, Col. and Mrs. William S. Culbertson.

Merchant Mahoney Loses Wife in Crowd

More? Yes. The Minister of Iceland, Thor Thors was there, and the Counselor of the Canadian Legation and Mrs. Merchant Mahoney, who came together but were soon searching each other in the crowd; Senora de Munilla, wife of the Cuban Military Attache, Count Zamoyski of the Polish Embassy, Mrs. Charles McNary, wife of the Senator from Oregon; Senator Arthur Capper, Senator and Mrs. Ralph Brewster, Gen. and Mrs. Alexander D. Surles, Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Mrs. Robert W. Imbrie, who spent several years in the Near East; Mrs. Charles McEnerney and her daughter, Nancy; Mr. and Mrs. Wade Ellis, Senator Theodore Green chatting with Mrs. George Mesta; Tom Burke, Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Mrs. Effingham Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Davis, Mrs. Emil Hurja with her father, Captain Andreson.

Mrs. Woodard Is Hostess At Luncheon

Autumn foliage and fruits decorated the tables at the Army and Navy Country Club yesterday, when Mrs. J. Marcellus Woodard entertained at luncheon. Sharing honors were Mrs. Henry Grady of San Francisco, Mrs. Earl Ray and Mrs. Harvey Schmitt of Logansport, Ind.

Mrs. Ray and Mrs. Schmitt have been the guests this week of Mrs. Claude Wickard, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, and have been honored at a number of fetes.

Assisting Mrs. Woodard at the informal luncheon was Mrs. Walter Wyatt. Among those in attendance were Mrs. Wickard, Senora de Michels, wife of the Chilean Ambassador and her daughter, Miss Cristina Michels; Mrs. Dennis Chavez, Mrs. Joseph McNarney, Lady Bajpai, wife of the Indian Agent General, Senora de Munilla, Mrs. Henry Hunt, Mrs. William Disque, Mrs. Irene Caldwell, Mrs. Henry Deimel, Mrs. James Hamilton, Miss Laura Belle Wyatt, Mrs. N. Webster Gokey, Mrs. Leslie Biffle, Mrs. Leland Miller, Mrs. William C. Murphy, jr., Mrs. Frank Hall, Mrs. Ray Henle, Mrs. Harvey Branch and Mrs. Stanley Hornbeck.

Also there were Mrs. Stanley Miller, Mrs. Albert L. Warner, Mrs. Ray Tucker, Mrs. Lorton Sims, Mrs. Conrad Goldstrohm, Mrs. Warner K. Bigger, Mrs. William Pope Anderson 3d, Mrs. Hugh Peterson, Mrs. Thomas Burke, Mrs. Seifort Stellwagon, Mrs. Garland S. Ferguson, jr., Mrs. Neil Deitrich, Mrs. Peter Constantinople, Mrs. Allan Smith and Mrs. Alexander Symon.

In addition were Mrs. Stephen Farrand, Mrs. John O'Brien, Mrs. V. A. Randell, Mrs. Aubrey Moore, Mrs. Edmund C. Chamberlain, Mrs. Robert Sherrod, Mrs. Barnet Nover, Mrs. Leslie Clark Stevens, Mrs. Gerald Grace, Mrs. George Farrand, and Mrs. Thomas F. Ford.

Party Given for Colonel Romulo

In honor of Col. Carlos P. Romulo, newly appointed member of Philippine President Manuel L. Quezon's War Cabinet as Secretary of Information and Public Relations, Philippine Resident Commissioner Joaquin M. Elizalde gave a cocktail party at his home in Foxhall rd. Thursday evening.

The party was attended by American and Philippine officials and about 100 members of the Washington press corps.

Until the Japanese invasion of the Philippines, Colonel Romulo was editor-publisher of a group of Manila newspapers. He was aide-de-camp to Gen. Douglas MacArthur in Bataan, Corregidor and Australia. He holds the Silver Star for gallantry in action (awarded him by General MacArthur in Bataan); two Oak Leaf Clusters, and the Purple Heart (awarded by Lieut. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright).

Colonel Romulo is the author of the best-seller, "I Saw the Fall of the Philippines," and won the Pulitzer Prize for distinguished correspondence awarded last year.

Before his appointment to the Philippine cabinet, he had been on a speaking tour in which he covered 60,000 miles, visited 289 American cities and delivered 364 lectures.

Down Virginia Way

By Nina Carter Tabb

ONE OF THE most important weddings of the fall season will take place in Richmond on November 6, when Miss Nell Carter Osburn becomes the bride of Eugene Blackford Noland.

Relatives and friends of the couple here are planning to journey to Richmond for the ceremony. Officiating at the service in the Church of St. James will be the bride-elect's father, the Rev. Herbert Stabler Osburn of Tappahannock. Mrs. Osburn is the former Miss Fanny Scott Beverley of Fauquier County, daughter of Mrs. Robert Beverley of The Plains.

Miss Osburn has selected as attendants at her wedding her sister, Mrs. Randolph Scott Copeland 3d of Richmond, and Miss Mary Wells Moore, Miss Frances Robinson and the Misses Lucy Landon and Jane Byrd Ruffin.

Serving his brother as best man will be Francis C. Noland of Ashland, Va., and ushering will be Churchill C. Noland, William Hoge, William N. Beverley, Nelson B. Noland and Randolph Scott Copeland 3d. Miss Osburn will be given in marriage by her uncle, William Welby Beverley of Richmond and Fauquier County.

VICE ADMIRAL Thomas C. Kinkaid, USN, and Mrs. Kinkaid have been guests of their cousin, William H. Lipscomb of Raspberry Plain, in Leesburg, this week. Admiral Kinkaid recently returned to Washington for leave from the North Pacific, where he was in command of the fleet.

Mr. and Mrs. Aldrich Dudley of Alexandria and Bluemont have sold their farm, Homewood, near Middleburg, to Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Wyatt of Coatesville, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt are spending this weekend in Middleburg at the Red Fox Tavern and will take possession of their new home in the near future.

Expected next week at Red Fox Tavern are Clifford Anderson and his bride, the former Peggy Winton, who will be married today in Washington.

Mrs. Norman Toerge and her daughter, Miss Nancy Redmond of Long Island, have arrived at the home near Middleburg to spend the fall season.

Honor guest at several parties here this week has been Miss Janet Fish of Washington, who is visiting Mrs. Raymond Belmont near Middleburg. Mrs. Belmont entertained at a luncheon recently at the Red Fox Tavern for Miss Fish, and other hosts have been Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Harper, and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Tartiere.

MELVILLE CHURCH, jr., of Washington, who has been living in Middleburg for the last year, arrived here recently from Dayton, Ohio, to join Mrs. Church, and will return tomorrow to his post in Dayton. He and Mrs. Church were entertained at dinner on Wednesday evening, by Mr. and Mrs. James B. Skinner.

Back in Middleburg from Lexington is Mrs. H. Clay Bayly, who was in the south Virgina town for the wedding of Miss Jean Taylor and Capt. Flournoy H. Barksdale.

Lieut. John C. Butler, jr., USMC, who has been on duty on the Pacific Coast for the past several months, left recently for overseas service. He is the son of Col. and Mrs. John C. Butler of Rectortown.

Pfc. Louie Duffey, USA, of Middleburg, who has been stationed for the last year at Nashville, Tenn., has been transferred to the Remount Depot at Front Royal and arrives there for duty this week. Mr. Duffey, one of Virginia's outstanding young horsemen, will be welcomed at the Remount Depot, as well as in Middleburg. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Duffey of Mount Olive, near Middleburg.

Lieut. Murray Forbes, USA, who graduated from VMI, Lexington, Va., in June, has recently finished officer training school and has been appointed aide to General Burruss at Fort Jackson, S. C. Lieutenant Forbes' father is Innis Forbes of Charleston, W. Va., formerly of Warrenton. Lieutenant Forbes is a nephew of Mrs. Victor Froment, Mrs. Edwin King and Mrs. Frederick Haserick, all of Warrenton.

'Party for the Cast,' Says Hostess, Feting 'Oklahomans'

Mrs. George Mesta, Herself a 'Sooner Stater,' Gives After-Theater Party at Sulgrave Club

"It's a party for the cast," said Mrs. George Mesta about the party she gave yesterday evening for the entire cast of the musical comedy "Oklahoma," now playing at the National.

On the evening of the opening of the play, at the reception which followed at the Willard, it was really Gov. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma, who stole the show, and so Mrs. Mesta thought the cast deserved a party all for themselves. The result was last night's party. And what a party it was.

It began at 11:30 p. m. just after the show ended, and it went on and on through the wee small hours, with everyone having too much fun to think of going home. The scene was the swanky Sulgrave Club, Sidney and his orchestra were on hand to provide music for dancing in the ballroom, and in the dining room, everything one could think of was provided in the way of food and beverages.

It started out to be an all-cast celebration with the "Oklahomans" keeping the spotlight on them, and then, right in the middle of the party, a tall, bronzed gentleman in uniform came quietly into the room, and the spotlight swung, bang, right over to him and stayed there all evening. The strange thing was that none of the others minded at all, in fact they were pretty thrilled to see him too. Maybe because his name was—Capt. Clark Gable!

Cuban Envoy Host At Luncheon for Cuban Delegate

The Ambassador of Cuba and Senora de Concheso entertained informally at luncheon yesterday at the embassy in honor of Dr. Cosme de la Torriente, delegate to the conference of the International Center of Intellectual Cooperation, and Senora de la Torriente.

Others in the company were Dr. G. Arostegui and Dr. A. Vieta, both of Cuba; Jose I. Rivero, jr., Jose Maria de Lasa, Attache of the Cuban Embassy and nephew of Senora de la Torriente, and Senorita Consuelo Batista, attache of the embassy.

Dr. Cosme de la Torriente served as first Cuban Ambassador to the United States following the raising of the legation to embassy status.

'Let's Face It'—New Bill At Earle Is Pretty Peppy

FOR THE IMMEDIATE REASSURANCE of those in whose minds hope springs eternal, it must be recorded that while "Let's Face It" is a "book" musical, as opposed to the strictly "gag" or revue form, Bob Hope still shoulders the bulk of the comedy burden, ably seconded and almost matched by Betty Hutton, his costar.

Adapted from the stage musical of the same name, by Dorothy and Herbert Fields and Cole Porter, with additional songs by Sammy Cahn and Jule Styne, the Paramount nonsense now on the Earle screen is a brief and breezy frolic that pursues a familiar "plot" that the years have proved unfailingly amusing, no matter how many times, or in what variations, it is employed.

It is built upon the time-honored device of having three neglected wives recruit three youthful Romeos to match the romantic meanderings of their husbands, who have gone on a "fishing" trip without indicating what it is for which they are angling. The lads happen to be three soldiers from the nearby Army camp, whose own girls friends also turn up at the rendezvous jointly shared by the wives, the husbands, the husbands' girl friends, the soldiers and the girls to whom they are engaged, or about to be. This situation has always rolled the customers in the aisles—and still does.

In this version of the fable, Hope is Pvt. Jerry Walker, perpetually in trouble with his top sergeant, his pals, the three aging wives, the errant husbands and as many girls as there are around. Eventually, he gets deep into the bad graces of a German submarine commander and his crew, by beaching the craft with the aid of a pocket mirror in as funny a sequence as has come along in many a moon.

Only an hour and a quarter long, "Let's Face It" is packed full of laughs for that entire length of time.

In addition to his nimble handling of his comic lines and energetic performance of the ridiculous "business" inherent in the part of the Army's pet Patsy, Bob sings a few licks in this one as half of a duet with Miss Hutton dedicated to whatever is implied by "Who Did, I Did, Yes I Did." Run off on some large rubber balls and the flying rings, this item takes on strange and unusual qualities of humor. "Let's Face It" and "Let's Not Talk About Love" also are given high place and Miss Hutton has one brief inning with as tricky a song as you ever heard, fast as a streak of lightning with tongue-twisting lyrics. The costars, however, are not the only ones who come in for a fair share of credit. Even Arden, ZaSu Pitts and Phyllis Povah, as the wives; Raymond Walburn, Andrew Tombes and Arthur Loft, their husbands, and Joe Sawyer, the Sergeant Wiggins, are in there swinging most of the way. The juvenile feminine decorations are nicely supplied by Dona Drake, Marjorie Weaver, Grace Hayle, Evilyn Dockson, Kay Linaker and Andrea Moreland, and in one scene Nicco and Tanya execute a burlesque ballroom dance that is exceedingly de luxe.

New Navy Branch Saluted on Stage

The "Salute to the Seabees" dominates and adds a novel touch and effective atmosphere to the new stage bill. Introduced by Eileen Ritter, Seaman Second Class Thomas R. Flanigan lives up to his billing as "harmonica virtuoso," from the orchestra pit, and is closely followed, on stage, by Winfield Crawford, storekeeper second class, who displays a rich and resonant barytone and a fine knowledge of how to use it, in "People Will Say We're in Love," from "Oklahoma," current at the National. Comes then Ensign Hal Sher, at the microphone, to interpret briefly the series of tableaux depicting the Seabees at their various chores of construction work, loading transports, blasting their way through jungles, etc. The innovation is run off in true professional style in Managing Director Harry Anger's customary colorful manner.

Interwoven with the Seabees salute, is a swift and skillful tap dance by Betty Jane Smith, as agile a blonde as you would care to see, and later Walter "Dare" Wahl and his patient partner present their well-known travesty on the conventional acrobatic act. Miss Ritter does extremely well in her song interludes and the Roxyettes provide atmospheric pulchritude, finally coming in for a precision tap routine in the finale, executed with clocklike perfection.

Nor are the auxiliary screen attractions to be lightly laughed off. The Warner Brothers present an interesting short-reel, "The Voice That Thrilled the World," celebrating the coming of sound to the screen; "Falling Hare," offers that extravagantly amusing Merrie Melodie rabbit in a weird adventure with a Gremlin aboard a plane, and Betty Field appears in a fleeting defense of the ration book and ceiling prices under the title of "Share and Play Square." The news-reel gives the final fillip to a rip-snorting program of high-speed entertainment.

Dots and Dashes

When Verdi's "Rigoletto" is presented in Constitution Hall this afternoon at 2:30, by the Columbia Opera Company of New York, the role of Gilda will be sung by Grace Panvini, who enjoys the high regard of Mrs. Roosevelt and has previously been heard on the same stage with the San Carlo Co., and Sigmund Romberg's concert group . . . Tonight's bill of the Columbia Company's inaugural Saturday will be Bizet's "Carmen" . . . Precedent will be broken when Loew's Capitol presents Donald O'Connor in Universal's "Top Man" the week of November 18, and RKO-Radio's "Fallen Sparrow," costarring Maureen O'Hara and John Garfield, the week of November 25 . . . These producers heretofore have utilized other downtown, first-run outlets . . . And at the last minute, Loew's Palace joins the list of houses that will be giving a Halloween midnight performance tonight.

So They Face It—but With Surprise!

BETTY HUTTON AND BOB HOPE

thoroughly startled in the costellar roles of Paramount's "Let's Face It," which yesterday opened its first Washington engagement as chief screen feature for the new week at the Earle Theater.

The statement made by Gov. Landon last week, in which he described a British-American alliance as "joint isolationism," was a reminder to the Republican chieftains that the 1936 nominee for the Presidency is still available for next year. Landon, like all men once bitten by the Presidential bee, has a recurrence of the urge . . . Some weeks ago a reporter who was making a check-up in the Midwest, found himself in the same building where Landon has his office, and decided to meet him. "I've just been through Iowa, Oklahoma, Texas, Mississippi," the reporter began, as a feeler, "and I find surprising sentiment in your favor." . . . Landon smiled, and replied: "That's what people have been telling me lately."

Last week-end 36-year-old Maj. Gen. Sir Robert Laycock succeeded Lord Mountbatten as head of the British Commandos . . . Once, in Cairo, before setting out on an important Commando mission, Laycock wrote a farewell letter to his wife. "If I haven't returned in 22 days," he told Capt. Randolph Churchill, "please deliver this letter to my wife." Laycock didn't return in 22 days. Churchill waited, however, before mailing the letter. He waited two days longer, then three, five, and on the seventh day he mailed that farewell letter to Lady Laycock. The next day General Laycock showed up safely in London, dressed as an Arab.

In the bombing of Milan which followed Mussolini's resignation, Arturo Toscanini's home in Milan was destroyed . . . Bernard Hermann, the composer who won an Academy Award and a Guggenheim Fellowship, has signed a three-year contract to become musical director of a radio network. John Garfield was anxious to play the role of George Gershwin, ever since Warner Brothers announced the plan to do a film biography of the composer. Garfield went to a teacher and learned how to sit at a piano, in front of movie camera, and make it appear that he plays it expertly. But the Gershwin role went to a youngster named Robert Alda . . . "This is no reflection on your talents," Director Irving Rapper told Garfield, "and you probably could play it well—but it just wouldn't be convincing, if John Garfield were shown wearing a high-hat at Carnegie Hall."

Louis B. Mayer, now head of the MGM studios and the most powerful figure in the entertainment business, once owned a chain of movie houses in Massachusetts. One day he decided to dispose of these theaters and instructed his press-agent to prepare a newspaper advertisement announcing the sale . . . The ad was duly prepared and submitted to Mayer. He studied the glowing descriptives and said: "If the properties are that good, I'll keep them myself"—and destroyed the ad.

Every picture made by Alfred Hitchcock has a characteristic scene in which a passer-by lends authenticity. In his new picture, "Lifeboat," eight torpedoed survivors are shown on a lonely sea, but Hitchcock, nevertheless, is having his passer-by interlude. He made it a "vision," seen by William Bendix after 21 days in the boat . . . Harnett Kane, whose "Bayous of Louisiana" has just been published and well-received, is finishing a new book and has contracts for two additional ones.

Hollywood, Calif., Oct. 29.—Tallulah Bankhead has had applause for many fine performances, but nothing has ever given her the satisfaction she got when the whole crew on "Lifeboat" cheered and yelled after she'd had a couple of tons of water thrown on her. She did an underwater kiss with John Hodiak which lasted 30 seconds. She's got black and blue marks on both legs the size of dinner plates. They got the scene in one take. When it ended, Director Alfred Hitchcock and Cameraman Arthur Miller said, "We've been making pictures for years. We've never come across anybody who had more guts. Tallulah, you not only can, but did take it." She turned around and replied, "Henry Hull is the one who took it.. Look at him—he's nothing but skin and bone! Let's cover him up with blankets, boys, quick."

Charlotte Greenwood is all set for "Up in Mabel's Room." Sol Lesser wants her for "Three's A Family" and Twentieth Century for "Something For the Boys." Reports from sneak preview of "The Gang's All Here" are that Charlotte practically walks off with the picture . . . The Shuberts are about to break into the picture business after all these years. Plans being made for them to produce "Blossom Time" and "Student Prince" with Allan Jones . . . Eddie Brackeen's imitation of Swoonatra is plain murder! . . . Bob Crosby takes over for Bing while he's on five weeks' vacation, with Bob Hope, Fibber McGee and Molly, and others making guest shots . . . Brenda Joyce and Twentieth Century have settled her contract by mutual consent. She's the girl Clarence Brown said would startle the world when she appeared in "The Rains Came." She's a nice kid, but didn't startle.

The great Garbo is willing to play the life of Sarah Bernhardt, but her friend, Salkta Viertel, doesn't think she's right for it . . . Carole Landis hopes to call her book, "Four Girls and a Jeep.' They named their jeep "Jessica"—which sounds too precious for me . . . With many boy babies coming into the world, Charles Boyer hopes supply of boys won't run out before his arrives on Thanksgiving

On His Way

Comdr. John Ford sent his wife, Mary, a miniature purple heart to wear over her heart to bring him luck. In his last letter, he wrote, "Don't expect another for months. I'm traveling." In his outfit are Wesley Barry, the freckle-faced boy, and Billie Dove's brother . . . Anne Baxter denies an engagement to Richard Derr. She's going out with three other guys.

Pvt. Bill Jacobson writes from London that he saw Vincent Sheehan and Thornton Wilder in Tunis, then pushed on to London where the legitimate theater was flourishing.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

ONLY SENATE insiders know it, but Cordell Hull executed a complete right-about-face, shortly before he went to Moscow, on the whole question of adopting a Senate resolution for permanent peace plans.

More than a month ago, after it was generally reported that Sumner Welles, not Hull, would go to Moscow, the question of a postwar peace plan resolution came up in a secret session of the Foreign Relations Committee. Peace-crusading Claude Pepper of Florida raised the question. At that time there was no debate over the form and wording of a resolution, as today. It was a matter of whether the Senate should pass any resolution, no matter what its form.

Senator Pepper opened the question by asking Chairman Connally why a resolution was not being taken up in the Foreign Relations Committee. Connally replied that Secretary Hull didn't want it brought up. Michigan's Vandenberg added that he was informed Hull wanted no resolution committing the Senate until after the war.

Then Pepper brought out that he had seen Secretary Hull personally just the day before and that the Secretary of State had changed his mind, and now wanted a resolution committing the Senate to postwar collaboration with other nations. It was then developed that during the interim, since he talked to Connally, Mr. Hull had been selected to go to Russia.

Note: In Moscow, Hull's only hope of winning Stalin away from territorial gain at the expense of Poland, Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia is by offering a virtual alliance with the USA and Britain. If Hull puts through what his advisers say he will, then the "willful" young Senators insisting on specific, all-out peace collaboration are doing him a real service.

Even Lewis Has Friends

YOU NEVER WOULD have thought it to hear Government bigwigs cuss out John L. Lewis a few months ago, but some of them now actually think there are some good things about John.

The refusal of Alabama and Indiana miners to go back to work despite Lewis' pleas has made some officials wonder whether it wasn't a mistake to tear Lewis down. In a turbulent union like the coal miners, it takes a powerful man to rule. John L. has been able to rule first because the men trusted him, second because he usually got something for them.

British officials have tipped off their opposite numbers in Washington that they had all sorts of trouble with British coal miners as long as they lacked strong leadership.

Strongest man next to Lewis in the United Mine Workers is Vice President John O'Leary. Most prominent, though considered not so strong, is Secretary-Treasurer Tom Kennedy, former lieutenant governor of Pennsylvania. His influence is with anthracite not bituminous miners.

More Airplanes Needed

TOUGH, TWO-FISTED Charles E. Wilson, WPB production wizard, hopped into a plane this week for Dallas to warn North American Aviation that unless its production spurted upward, there would be a change in management.

This marks a new war production chapter. There will be more warnings of this kind. Some production—tanks, artillery, shells—has been greater than the Army needed, and due to changes from ground to air warfare, these factories have been curtailed. But with air chiefs exultant over the terrific damage done to Nazi war plants by United States bombers, Wilson is sharpening the knife for all slowpokes.

He has taken a leaf from the British book, which showed that it is necessary to weed out a lot of management. Wilson is ready to do the same.

Most notable previous experience was when he delivered a blunt warning to his old friend Charley Sorenson, Ford's production genius, rgearding Willow Run.

"You and I speak the same language," he told Sorenson, "and you know I mean business when I say that you've got to produce bombers or we'll put someone else on the job."

"That'll be tough for me to tell the old man," replied Sorenson.

"I'm not asking you to tell him," said Wilson. "I'll go with you and we'll both tell him."

Since then Ford's Willow Run production has jumped about 20 times.

GOPolitics

ERIC JOHNSTON, breezy young boss of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, tells friends that Willkie could easily carry Washington State, but could never swing the GOP delegates. It illustrates the resentment of GOParty workers against W. W. Political advisors recognize this as his worst handicap . . . Friends are urging Eric Johnston to run for Senator in Washington, his home State . . . Albert Lasker, the advertising executive, says Willkie already has about 350 Republican delegates in the bag . . . Officials of the Rosenwald Foundation, experts on Negro psychology, say Roosevelt has lost a good hunk of the Negro vote . . . Michigan's Senator Vandenberg, most ardent silent MacArthur booster, believes the South Pacific general is the only man who can stop Willkie, contends that MacArthur can come from behind with little build-up and take the convention . . . Those who think MacArthur would refuse are told how, when he was merely a brigadier general, commanding West Point, MacArthur sent two representatives to the Chicago convention of 1920 which was deadlocked over Gen. Leonard Wood and Governor Lowden of Illinois. Warren Harding got the nomination instead.

Religion in the News And News in Religion

By Robert Tate Allan

The Christian Mission on World Order, which comes to the Capital November 9, opened nationally in New York City Thursday night, when Sumner Welles, former Undersecretary of State, pleaded for a new international order based on close political and economic collaboration of nations.

SUMNER WELLES

More than 6000 persons of practically all Protestant denominations attended the service in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. Welles was unable to attend because of his wife's illness, but his message was read.

Seventy-five leaders in religion, education, law, government and other fields will serve on "teams" that will visit 100 major cities from November 1 to 20, and emphasize the need of a peace based upon the "Six Pillars of Peace" as proclaimed by the Federal Council of Churches' commission on the basis of a just and durable peace.

The six pillars are an enduring international political organization; economic and financial collaboration of national governments; provisions for such changes in the future peace structure as may be required by changing conditions; autonomy for subject peoples with adequate provision for the realization of this idea; procedures for controlling military establishments everywhere, and establishment of the rights of individuals in all countries to religious and intellectual liberty.

MRS. MORGAN

Senator Joseph H. Ball of Minnesota, coauthor of the Ball-Burton-Hatch-Hill resolution committing the United States to cooperation with other nations in the establishment and maintenance of international peace, was among the speakers. He said this country must play the role of a full partner in the task of preventing war through the creation of machinery set up by international agreement.

Sponsors of the Mission are the Federal Council of Churches, the Foreign Missions Conference of North America, the Home Missions Council of North America, the International Council of Religious Education, the Missionary Education Movement and the United Council of Church Women.

Washington sponsors will be the Federation of Churches, of which Dr. Frederick E. Reissig is executive secretary and Dr. John W. Rustin president, and the Washington Council of Church Women, of which Mrs. Joy Elmer Morgan is president and Miss Etta Mai Russel, executive secretary. Dr. S. Paul Schilling, pastor of Brookland Methodist Church and chairman of the federation's commission on a just and durable peace, is local chairman.

On the local mission "team" will be Dr. Henry Hitt Crane, pastor of Detroit's Central Methodist Church; the Rev. Ewart Edward Turner, former pastor of the American Church in Berlin; Dr. Herman J. Sweet, of the International Council of Religious Education; Representative Walter H. Judd of Minnesota, former medical missionary to China, and Mrs. Paul Erdman, wife of the managing editor of the American Mission Press, Beirut, Syria. Mrs. Erdman comes in place of Mrs. Samuel McCrea Cavert.

The local mission will be held at First Congregational, Calvary Baptist and Mount Vernon Place Methodist churches. Additional programs have been arranged in 20 high schools and 4 colleges.

Methodist Worker School to Open On Wednesday

The Washington Methodist School for Christian Workers will open its twenty-fifth annual session at Mount Vernon Place Church, Massachusetts ave. and Ninth st. nw., Wednesday at 6:45 p. m.

The school is operated primarily for the Methodist Church Schools in the metropolitain area of Washington. However, church school workers from any other denomination are invited to enroll.

Classes are scheduled in church school government, use of materials, methods of teaching, missionary activities, the work of the Woman's Division of Christian Service, and principles essential for a Christian world order. Instructors for the courses are all specialists in their respective fields with years of teaching experience. Approximately 500 workers are expected to enroll.

Dr. Cartwright Will Be Speaker At Critics' Forum

The Rev. Dr. John Keating Cartwright, pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, a member of the faculty of the Catholic University of America and director of the Washington Catholic Radio Hour, will be the speaker at the second meeting of the autumn-winter series of the Critics' Forum on Catholic thought on the best sellers, on Wednesday, at the Mayflower Hotel, at 8:30 p. m. The book to be analyzed is Maisie Ward's latest work, "Gilbert Keith Chesterton."

Doctor Cartwright is the founder and director of the Critics' Forum, which has become the forerunner of similar forums in many other cities. He is assisted in the management of the Critics' Forum by the Rev. Joseph E. Gedra, assistant pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

Christ the King Services Set For Tomorrow

The feast of Christ the King will be observed with services tomorrow at 8 p. m. in St. Peter's Catholic Church, when two new banners will be blessed. The banners, representing the Holy Name Society and the banner of Christendom, will be blessed by the Most Rev. Bishop Michael J. Keyes, S. M., titular Bishop of Aeropolis, who will preside at the service.

The services will be preceded by a parade in the southeastern section of the city, adjacent to St. Peter's Church, at Second and C sts, se., starting at 8 p. m., to be composed of the various societies attached to St. Peter's, and augmented by detachments from the Army, Navy, Coast Guard and Marines, with the St. John's College Cadets and band leading the parade.

The Very Rev. Ignatius Smith, O. P., dean of the school of philosophy, Catholic University, will deliver the sermon. Bishop Keyes will be assisted by Lieutenant Hayes, USN, chaplain of the District of Columbia Naval Units, and Capt. E. J. Komiskey, USA, chaplain of District Defense Units of the United States Army. The Rev. Martin W. Hyland, spiritual director of the Holy Name Society St. Peter's, will be the master of ceremonies.

Solemn benediction will follow the blessing of the banners, and an appropriate musical program will be rendered by St. Peter's Choir, under the direction of Prof. Christopher S. Tenley, organist.

Masonic Clubs To Attend Service

For the ninth time the Masonic Clubs of the District of Columbia have selected the Ninth Street Christian Church, 9th and D sts. ne., as their gathering place to celebrate the anniversary of the "elevation," of George Washington to Master Mason. They will be the guests of the church at the service tomorrow at 7:45 p. m. A special musical program has been arranged. John L. Bateman will lead the song service and Mr. Howard F. Newsom and Miss Constance Kreuger will sing solos. The minister, Carroll C. Roberts, will bring the message on the theme, "A Wise Masterbuilder."

At the hour of morning worship the Rev. C. C. Roberts will speak on "The Church's Manpower Problem."

Dr. Welliver's Topic to Be Victory

Dr. Lester A. Welliver, new president of Westminster Theological Seminary, Westminster, Md., will speak tomorrow at 9 and 11 a. m. at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church. "Our Victory" will be his theme.

"The Church and Drama" will be emphasized at 8 p. m., when Lloyd H Snyder, jr., will preach. Members of the drama course in the School for Christian Living will be special guests.

'The Defense of Man' . . . .

Pvt. Benn Lewis of Fort Myer, a chaplain's assistant, stands by one of his paintings, "The Defense of Man," which was exhibited last Sunday night at the Universal School of Truth, 1727 H st. nw. Private Lewis, who was honored by the Army Chaplains' Corps for his paintings, is becoming known as "the Rembrandt" of the Army.

Reformation Rites Tomorrow

The festival of the Reformation will be celebrated in Washington and nearby Lutheran churches tomorrow with special services.

At Reformation Lutheran Church on Capitol Hill, the anniversary will be recognized at three worship services at 8:30 and 11 a. m. and 8 p. m., and also at a musical service at 4 p. m. under the auspices of the District Chapter, American Guild of Organists.

The afternoon program will include an address by Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder in "The Contribution of Classical Protestantism to Church Music." The choir of Reformation and Epiphany Churches will sing. Adolf Torovsky will direct them, and Theodore Schaefer will be organist.

A special program of Reformation music will be given at 6:30 at Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle. The Rev. Robert W. Long, pastor of Arlington's Faith Lutheran Church, will be in charge. The Rev. L. Ralph Tabor will be out of the city tomorrow addressing Reformation Day Services in Columbia, S. C.

As Faith Lutheran Church, Arlington, observes the anniversary, the Lutheran seal with its black cross, red heart and white rose will be displayed in the church chancel. Munson's arrangements of "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," will be sung by the senior choir at 11 a. m. Another service will be at 8:30 a. m.

National Head Of YWCA to Talk

Mrs. J. B. Calkins, national president of the YWCA and member of the local YWCA board, will address the Woman's Council of National City Christian Church Tuesday at 11 a. m. in the social hall, 1308 Vermont ave. nw. "World Fellowship Through the Ecumenical Church" will be her theme.

Mrs. Harold E. Beatty, wife of the pastor of Georgetown Lutheran Church, will lead devotionals. Mrs. Maxwell Galloway Adams, soprano soloist of National City Church, will sing.

Girl Scout Week Opens Tomorrow

National Girl Scout Week will begin tomorrow with special services in a number of churches, with Girl Scout troops as guests.

Girl Scout Troop 94 will attend services at Trinity Methodist Church, 5th and Seward Square, se., where World-wide Temperance Sunday also will be observed. The Rev. Daniel W. Justice will speak on "They Testify to Abstinence." His evening theme will be "Religion as Righteousness."

Girl Scout Troop 167 will attend services at 11 a. m. at Eldbrooke Methodist Church. The Rev. Elmer A. Lambert will speak on "Youth in Training."

Attorney to Address Baha'i Audience

Herny W. Davis, a retired Government printer and attorney, will speak at the Baha'i Hall, 1308 I st. nw., tomorrow at 8:15 p. m. on "Education." Peoples of all races and religions are welcome at Baha'i meetings, which are free.

Davis has been actively engaged in Baha'i work for many years, and is now a member of the Washington Bahai'i Spiritual Assembly. He is a graduate of Hampton Institute, and also of the Howard University Law School.

McKimmie Chairman

Simon McKimmie, 903 Allison st. nw., has been elected chairman of the official board of Park View Christian Church, 627 Park rd. nw. New members of the board are Robert E. Lee, August Elsasser, Oliver W. Youngblood, O. H. George, Larry Artz and W. M. Collis.

Warner Memorial Service Set

Terminating a month's observance of its fiftieth anniversary, the Warner Memorial Presbyterian Church, Kensington, Md., will hold a service tomorrow at 3 p. m. at Connecticut ave. and Washington st.

Dr. Edward H. Roberts, dean of students at Princeton Theological Seminary, Princeton, N. J., will speak. Dr. Roberts officiated at the installation of the Rev. Wendell S. Tredick, jr., present pastor, here five years ago.

Special music will be rendered by the D. C. Bar Association quartet, including J. Nelson Anderson, Howard L. Cranford, Jean M. Boardman and Emory Neale Miller.

A brief history of the church will be given by B. W. Kumler, elder and treasurer of the church for 40 years. The Rev. James Trimble Marshall, retired pastor emeritus of Georgetown Presbyterian Church, who served as pastor at the Warner Memorial from 1894 until 1906, is expected to attend.

Following the service an informal reception and tea will be given in the church hall under the sponsorship of the Annie F. Gayley Circle. Mrs. Robert MacHatton is in charge.

To Mark Men's Day

Men's day will be celebrated at services tomorrow at Albright Memorial Evangelical Church, 4th and Rittenhouse sts. nw.

"PANGE LINGUA GLORIOSI"

Now, my tongue the mystery telling
Of the glorious Body sing
And the Blood, all price excelling
Which the Gentiles' Lord and King,
Once on earth amongst us dwelling
Shed for this world's ransoming.

Written by St. Thomas Aquinas for the office of Corpus Christi in 1263, this, the greatest of all Communion hymns, is modelled on the Pange Lingua of Fortunatus. The translation is based on the versions of Caswall and Neale.

ABDU'L-BAHA says: "Although the DIVINE TEACHINGS are TRUTH and REALITY, yet with the passage of time THICK CLOUDS ENVELOP AND OBSCURE them. These clouds are imitations and superstitions; they are NOT the FUNDAMENTALS. Then the SUN OF TRUTH, THE WORD OF GOD arises again, shines forth once more in the glory of its power and DISPERSES the enveloping darkness. For a long time the divine precepts of the effulgent WORD were obscured by clouds of superstition and error until His Holiness BAHA'U'LLAH appeared upon the horizon of humanity, RENT THE SHADOWS, SCATTERED THE CLOUDS AND REVEALED ANEW the FOUNDATIONS of the teachings of God."

Fairlington, Park Farifax Census to Open

Through an interdenominational census beginning Monday in the Fairlington and Park Fairfax developments, churches there hope to provide eventually for spiritual care for about 2400 families. The survey will extend a week.

An interdenominational commission appointed by the Alexandria Ministerial Association will work in close cooperation with the Washington Federation of Churches' department of survey and church planning in the project.

Members of the special commission are the Rev. A. E. Gysan, Lutheran, chairman; the Rev. J. Guy Saunders, Baptist; the Rev. F M. Haverkamp, Presbyterian; the Rev. J. H. Blakemore, jr., Methodist; the Rev. James A. Cales, Baptisit, and the Rev. Robert F. Gibson, jr., Episcopal.

Volunteer workers from the various denominations will take the census and cards will be turned over to various denominations after classification.

Baptism Will Conclude 15-Day Revival Effort

The Rev. John E. Myers, of St. Albans, W. Va., will conclude a 15-day evangelistic effort tomorrow at the East Washington Heights Baptist Church by preaching at the morning service on "The Privileges and Responsibilities of a Christian Life," and by preaching at the evening service on "The Righteous Judgment of God."

This evening service not only concludes the evangelistic effort of this campaign but also is the occasion for a baptismal service.

YESTERDAY'S ANSWER

Dr. Manning To Be Buried In Arlington

Military funeral services for Dr. William J. Manning, 75, a former physician for the Government Printing Office and a resident of the District for 45 years, will be held at 11 a. m. today at Fort Myer Chapel. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Dr. Manning died Wednesday at St. James' Hospital in Newark, N. J. after a long illness. He had lived at the Wyoming Apartments here until the death of his wife, Mrs. Margaret E. Manning, three months ago.

Surviving are five daughters, Mrs. William F. Cruise and Mrs. Daniel T. Hagen of Providence, R. I., and Mrs. David L. Thomson, Mrs. Myra Wilkins and Miss Pearl Manning all of Washington; a son, Gates Manning, four grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Edmund C. Barwell

Funeral services for Edmund C. Barwell, 43, president of the Yellow Cab Co., who was killed when his car collided with a truck near Ironsides, Md., Tuesday, will be held on Monday at the Church of Our Savior, 16th and Irving sts. nw., at 2:30 p. m. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Barwell was a native of Litchfield, England and came to this country shortly after the World War I. He became president of the cab company in 1939 when it was reorganized.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Connie Barwell; a daughter, Mrs. Mary Shepherd; and a son, Warren Barwell. His mother, Mrs. Clara Barwell of Riverside, Md. also survives.

The body was brought to Washington yesterday and taken to Chambers funeral home, 517 11th st. se.

Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Clarkson

Requiem mass will be said today at 9 a. m. in Holy Trinity Church for Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Clarkson, 82, of 3007 P st. nw., who died at her home on Thursday. Burial will be in George Washington Memorial Park.

She was the wife of Frank B. Clarkson, sr., who is a retired superintendent of the pressroom of the National Tribune.

In addition to her husband she is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Cecilia Fitzgerald and Mrs. Florence Durkin, and a son, Frank B. Clarkson, jr., all of Washington.

Merlin A. Thompson

Funeral services for Merlin A. Thompson, 36, Bureau of Standards architect, were held yesterday at the Church of the Latter Day Saints, with burial in Cedar Hill Cemetary.

Mr. Thompson died Tuesday at Garfield Hospital of a heart attack following an operation.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Zina Thompson; three children, Merlene, Stanley and Joyce, all of 5515 Southwick st., Bethesda, Md.; his mother, Mrs. Olga Thompson of Brigham City, Utah, four brothers and a sister.

Gustavus Frank Swift

Funeral services for Gustavus Franklin Swift, 62, son of the founder of Swift & Co., who died at his Chicago home Thursday, will be held today in the Rockefeller Chapel, University of Chicago, it was announced last night. A son, Gustavus Swift, jr., resides at 3619 Upton st. nw.

Brig. Gen. Robert Van Vliet

Brig. Gen. Robert Campbell Van Vliet, graduate of West Point in 1905, who died Thursday at New Smyrna, Fla., will be buried with military honors in Arlington Cemetery following services at Fort Myer Chapel at 2 p. m. today.

Washington area survivors of General Van Vliet, who was a lieutenant colonel with the 165th Infantry in World War I, are Morris E. Van Vliet of 5316 Moorland, and Thomas A. Van Vliet of 8812 Reading rd., Silver Spring, cousins.

He was retired from active duty 25 years ago after 40 years of service.

Among honorary pallbearers will be his grandson, Stewart Van Vliet, son of Colonel Van Vliet.

Miss Gertrude Athey

Funeral services for Miss Gertrude Athey, 78, retired Interior Department employe, will be held at 3 p. m. today at Hysong's chapel. Miss Athey died Wednesday at Doctors Hospital after a long illness.

She is survived by her sister, Mrs. Ida Croxton, with whom she made her home at 1417 Newton st. ne. Burial will be in Oak Hill Cemetery.

RIGHT AROUND HOME — By Dudley Fisher

SEE, SUSIE? I'VE GOT THE HOSE POINTING RIGHT AT THE FRONT DOOR AND I CAN REACH OUT THE WINDOW AND TURN IT ON!
SO WHAT?
WHEN THOSE HALLOWEENIES COME TO RING OUR DOORBELL, I'LL GIVE 'EM A LITTLE SURPRISE
WELL-NORAH HAVE TO WAIT UNTIL IT'S DARK RING!
QUIET, CHILDREN! I DON'T HEAR ANY RIOT!
HEY STOLE MY HOSE!

JOE PALOOKA — A Lesson — By Ham Fisher

I'M SO HAPPY WHEN YOU'RE AROUND, HONEY—PLEASE DON'T WORRY ABOUT MY OPERATION—THAT IS TOO MUCH.
OH POOR DEAR JERREE.
WE'LL NEED THAT TABLE NOW. LET'S TEACH HIM A LESSON. DO AS I TELL YOU.
YES, DOCTOR.
I MUST TAKE THE NEXT CASE INTO THE OPERATING ROOM.
OH POOR JERREE—
THE NURSE TALKS TO NADA IN SERBIAN
PSSST—HE IS ALL RIGHT. WE ARE TEACHING HIM A LESSON.
I DON'T UNDERSTAND.

JANE ARDEN — The Signal — By Monte Barrett and Russell Ross

IN A LAST DESPERATE EFFORT TO TRAP STUN INTO A PROPOSAL, FLORA THREW HER ARMS AROUND HIM, BUT—MY DEAR MISS FLORA—YOU MUST BE MORE DISCREET—
I UNDERSTAND YOU'RE JUST A SWEET IMPULSIVE GIRL—BUT OTHERS MIGHT NOT!
OKAY—THAT DIDN'T WORK—I'LL GIVE FLASH THE SIGNAL—
OH, MY ANKLE—I'M AFRAID I'VE SPRAINED IT—
I—I CAN'T WALK—
YOU POOR CHILD—LET ME HELP YOU—

SUPERMAN — Hear Superman 5:45 P.M. Today—WOL — By Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster

FUNNY WEATHER! CALM ONE MINUTE, WIND THE NEXT!
GOT TO GET TO THE FRONT OF THE BUILDING IN A HURRY!
MEANWHILE, BACK IN THE BASEMENT OF THE BUILDING...
THTEP PATHT, MY THWEET THUPERMAN MAY WITH UTH AT ANY MOMENT!
A MOMENT MORE AND WE'LL BE IN THE CAR—AND AWAY!
BUT AS THE SPIES REACH THE STREET—
MR. AND MRS. DOUT, NO DOUBT!
THUPERMAN!
YOU'RE CLEVER, SUPERMAN—BUT THIS TIME YOU'VE OUT-SMARTED YOURSELF!
YOU SEE, ON THE WAY OUT, I EXCHANGED MY INEFFECTUAL LUGER FOR THIS WEAPON WHICH WAS DESIGNED ESPECIALLY FOR YOU! NOW WE SHALL SEE IF YOUR SKIN IS TRULY IMPENETRABLE!
(—IS IT POSSIBLE THEY'VE DEVELOPED A WEAPON WHICH MAY ACTUALLY DESTROY ME!!—)

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — By Clifford McBride

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Move on Yellow Light — By Milton Caniff

YES, SIR, COL. CORKIN...
AS TERRY CONTINUES HIS TRANSITION FLYING, AN AIRPLANE BREAKS THROUGH A HEAVY OVERCAST FAR TO THE SOUTH...
NOTHING ELSE TO IT... I'M LOST! THERE'S A CLEARING—BETTER GIVE IT A JIMGLE...
HMMM—WRONG NUMBER!

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — By Dale Allen

THE TRAIN WON'T START FOR 20 MINUTES...BUT YOU LIE DOWN AND REST! I'LL SEE THAT YOU'RE NOT DISTURBED BETWEEN HERE AND YOUR DESTINATION!
THANK YOU, CONDUCTOR! I FEEL A LITTLE BETTER NOW!
SUCH A LOT OF SPACE FOR ONE OLD LADY TO OCCUPY...WITH TRAINS SO CROWDED!
I MUSTN'T GO TO SLEEP AND MISS ELM CITY! WONDER WHAT SORT OF PLACE BILL BIFF HAS FOUND FOR US TO LIVE IN? HE DIDN'T WRITE...
WHAT WAS THAT? SOMEONE JUST CAME INTO THIS ROOM!

MICKEY FINN — A Horse Choker — By Lank Leonard

NOW DON'T TRY TO DENY IT, PHILIP—YOU HAVE BEEN BETTING ON THE HORSES, HAVEN'T YOU?
WELL, I GUESS SOME PEOPLE WOULD CALL IT THAT!
IT'S NONE OF MY BUSINESS, PHIL—BUT YOU'RE OLD ENOUGH TO KNOW THAT NOBODY CAN BEAT 'EM!
OF COURSE THEY CAN'T! I SUPPOSE YOU HAVEN'T GOT A CENT IN YOUR POCKET RIGHT NOW!
HMMM—LET'S SEE IF I HAVE!
—AND THAT'S ONLY THE BEGINNIN'!

MR. AND MRS. — Treading on Dangerous Ground — By Arthur Folwell and Ellison Hoover

FELLER DOWN AT THE OFFICE WAS TELLING ABOUT THE LEMON MERINGUE PIES HIS WIFE MAKES YES?
YEAH. WAY HE DESCRIBED IT WOULD MAKE YOUR MOUTH WATER. 'BOUT THAT THICK
SO?
BEATS THE WHITE OF EGGS UP WITH POWDERED SUGAR—JUST LIKE A FROTH, HE SAID
I KNOW HOW LEMON PIE IS MADE
AND I SUPPOSE YOU KEPT QUIET ABOUT YOUR WIFE'S ABILITY TO MAKE ANYTHING?
GEE WHIZ, CAN'T SOMEBODY ELSE BE PRAISED WITHOUT YOUR GETTING SORE?

DIXIE DUGAN — Mothers Are Wonderful! — By J. P. McEvoy and H. J. Striebel

FIRST THING IS NOT TO WORRY ABOUT IT—
THEN LET "TIME" TAKE CARE OF EVERYTHING—
TIME?—BUT, MA—
YES, TIME! IF YOU TOLD THE LAD NOW YOU ONLY PROMISED TO MARRY HIM BECAUSE YOU THOUGHT HE WASN'T GOING TO GET WELL HE'D—WELL IT MIGHT BE FATAL
LET HIM BASK IN ANTICIPATION—LET HIM GET REAL STRONG AND FIT AGAIN—THEN WE'LL MAP OUT AN EASY WAY TO TELL HIM SO HE'LL BE ABLE TO TAKE IT
OH, MA—I LOVE YOU SO
AND THAT'S WHY MOTHERS WERE BORN

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — What's in the Letter — By Frank Martinek

MEANWHILE, VAN AND M-22 HAVE RETURNED TO THE HOUSE IN ELMHURST
WHEW! LOOK AT THESE HEADLINES!!
THE DAILY TELEGRAM
WINSLOW KIDNAPPED
WHERE'S CHIN? I'VE BEEN BUZZING FOR FIVE MINUTES!!
LET'S INVESTIGATE!
HE'S GONE!
HERE'S AN ENVELOPE ADDRESSED TO YOU!

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — By Saunders and Woggon

DO I LOOK LIKE A BRIDE, TEX?
YOU'RE AS PURTY AS A LITTLE RED WAGON, MINNIE-HA-CHA! STEVE'S GONNA BE POWERFUL PROUD OF YOU!
I DON'T SEE HIM AND WAHOO! —WHAT TIME IS IT?
WELL—IT'S NINE-THIRTY—BUT YOU KNOW HOW HARD IT IS TO GIT A CAB HERE IN WASHINGTON!
TAP TAP TAP
40 MINUTES LATER!
TEX—WHAT TIME IS IT NOW?
AW—DON'T GIT EXCITED! STEVE JUST LOST TH' RING—OR SOMETHIN' LIKE THAT—(AH HOPE!)

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED — By Zane Grey

IN THE NAME OF THE LAW, DIABLO, STOP!
TH' MOUNTIE!
THANK HEAVENS! SERGEANT KING!
YOUR GAME'S UP, DIABLO!
DON'T MAKE ME LAUGH, KING! WHILE I'VE GOT THEES INDIAN KEED, YOU NOR THE REDSKINS DARE TOUCH ME!
EEF YOU DON'T BELIEVE EET LOOK BACK! AN ARROW EES AIMED AT YOUR HEART!

HAT 'N' BAG ENSEMBLE

Stunning match-mates that make a glamorous ensemble to highlight any costume! Glowing colors in bright fabric or muted jewel-tones in rich velveteen . . . in the pertest and prettiest of "pomps" (perched back on your head) . . . teamed up with a huge, dramatic bag exactly to match. (Large sketch at left) $15 SET

Head-Start on Glamour

HATS as potent as T. N. T. . . . high-voltage in appeal . . . because they're dynamically on the glamour side! . . . Consider the electrifying attraction of a soaring crown pierced with a flagrant feather . . . the poetic flattery of a "jewel" studded calot, soft with a sigh-of-a-veil . . . or the gallant bravura of a Chinese "coolie" beaver brim with a glitter-accented "Garden of Allah" sash. Dramatic . . . yes! . . . and new and spirit-lifting . . . and bewitchingly easy to wear—as you'll see—when you try these "come hither" sirens on! So—for different, distinctive, utterly feminine hats—for hats that provoke dreams and promote charm—see The Hecht Co.'s collection of flattering beauties now!
